Alger Hiss Denies All Red Accusations Made by Chambers

Doesn't Recall Him, House Probers Told; Time Editor May Be Called Back

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Alger Hiss, former top-ranking State Department official, made a complete denial under oath yesterday of charges that he was a member of an "elite" group of Communists in Washington.

Hiss said he didn't believe he had even heard the name Whittaker Chambers until 1947. Chambers, a Time magazine senior editor, had sworn before the House Committee on Un-American Activities he had known Hiss as part of the Communist underground about 15 years ago. At the time Chambers was going under aliases, the committee aide said.

Appearing before the committee at his own request, Hiss said, slowly and with emphasis:

"I am not and never have been a member of the Communist Party. I do not and never have adhered to the tenets of the Communist Party.

"I am not and never have been a member of any Communist-front organization.

"I have never followed the Communist Party line directly or indirectly.

"To the best of my knowledge none of my friends is a Communist."

The direct conflict between the testimony of Hiss and Chambers, confessed former Communist, who accused Hiss, left Committee members dumbfounded and discussing the laws governing perjury.

Chairman Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) told reporters the committee would recall Chambers and probably confront him with Hiss.

Chambers Sticks to Story

From New York last night, Chambers commented briefly:

"Mr. Alger Hiss has seen fit to deny under oath the sworn testimony which I gave before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. I have no change whatever to make in my testimony concerning him."

Mundt formally congratulated Hiss for his "very cooperative attitude" and "forthright statements" and for the fact that he was first among those named in the current inquiry into Communist influence in Government to demand a chance to deny charges under oath.

Meanwhile, developments came thick and fast throughout the day.

Wreckage Found Where 52 on Big Plane Vanished

New York, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The United States Coast Guard cutter Campbell reported today it had picked up a pair of aircraft seats and numerous charred fragments believed to be part of the wreckage of a giant French flying boat which disappeared in the Atlantic Sunday with 52 persons aboard.

The Coast Guard here said the Campbell sighted the wreckage this afternoon 65 miles southwest of the plane's last known position, 1570 miles from San Juan, Puerto Rico, and 1200 miles from Dakar, French West Africa.

Additional wreckage was sighted in the same area by a United States Air Force plane, the Coast Guard reported.

The plane had provisions for only four days. This was the fifth day of the search.

Yesterday a French vessel said it picked up an SOS and a second message, both feeble, from the area. There were no reports of radio signals today.

Starting Sunday:
"The Iron Curtain"

Beginning this Sunday, August 8, The Post presents in fifteen installments "The Iron Curtain" by Igor Gouzenko.

Especially timely in view of today's Soviet spy hearings, "The Iron Curtain" is the sensational true story of Soviet atom bomb espionage in Canada. Told by a former Russian intelligence agent, it reveals full details of his training, the operations of the spy ring in Ottawa (aided by Canadian and American officers), and the extent of Moscow's international network. Gouzenko tells of his own decision never to return to Russia, and of his subsequent escape.

President Calls Spy Hearings A 'Red Herring' To Avoid Duty

President Truman told reporters yesterday that the Capitol Hill spy hearings were a "red herring" to divert attention from his anti-inflation program.

"Yes, you can quote me," he said. "They are using this as a red herring to keep from doing what they ought to do."

He then read a prepared statement in which he made these points about the sensational hearings that have been taking place at both ends of the Capitol:

"No information has been revealed that has not long since been presented to a Federal grand jury.

"No information has been disclosed in the past few days by congressional committees that has not long been known to the FBI.

Indictments Not Justified

"The Federal grand jury found this information insufficient to justify indictment of the Federal employes involved.

"All but two of the employes involved have left the Federal Government, and these two have been placed on involuntary leave.

"The public hearings now under way are serving no useful purpose. On the contrary, they are doing irreparable harm to certain persons, seriously impairing the morale of Federal employes, and undermining public confidence in the Government."

The Chief Executive, in a question-and-answer session with reporters, said flatly that the Ferguson subcommittee would get no confidential information about William W. Remington, a Commerce Department official now on indefinite leave. Remington has denied charges that he gave secret data to a courier for a Communist spy ring.

Ferguson Quizzed Sullivan

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) had tried to get from Secretary of the Navy Sullivan the reasons why Remington had been asked to resign as an officer of the Naval Reserve last year.

Secretary Sullivan told the Ferguson subcommittee on Wednesday he was putting up to President Truman the question of whether he could divulge the information.

A reporter asked Mr. Truman yesterday about what the answer would be to Secretary Sullivan.

That's the answer for John Sullivan right there, the President said.

Set Forth in Statement

He referred to two paragraphs of his prepared statement, which read as follows:

"1. In responding to a written request from a Congressional Committee for information relating to the employment of individuals, the department or agency may forward to the committee all unclassified routine papers (such as Civil Service Form 57, records of promotion, efficiency ratings, letters of recommendation, etc.).

"2. No information of any sort relating to the employe's loyalty, and no investigative data of any type, whether relating to loyalty or other aspects of the individual's record, shall be included in the material submitted to a Congressional Committee. If there is doubt as to whether a certain document or group of documents should be supplied, the matter should be referred to the White House."

A reporter asked President Truman whether he thought the Ferguson Subcommittee would get all the information it wanted on Remington.

Mr. Truman replied that they would get all the information they

Witness Tells Of Warning On Remington

Told Commerce Aide Of Espionage Inquiry Before Hiring, He Says

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A Commerce Department assistant secretary was warned that William W. Remington was the "subject of an active investigation for espionage" before he was hired last March, a Senate subcommittee was told yesterday.

Samuel Klaus, a State Department lawyer, testified before the Senate Investigations Subcommittee that he told David Bruce, former Commerce assistant secretary, of this situation March 14. Klaus was then on loan to the Commerce Department to set up an enforcement system for export controls.

The subcommittee was informed later that Remington, placed on indefinite leave of absence June 28 pending a full investigation into his loyalty, was still drawing his salary of $10,330 a year. Bernard L. Gladieux, executive assistant to the Secretary of Commerce, testified that he would continue to be paid until he had exhausted his annual leave.

Stricken With Chicken Pox

In addition, Gladieux said, Remington was stricken with chicken pox immediately after going on indefinite leave and had two weeks or so of sick leave.

Klaus told the subcommittee he heard "accidentally" that Remington was coming to the Commerce Department the day before he was to take a confidential position handling export controls. He met Bruce in the hall, he said, and told him of the information he had regarding the loyalty investigation.

Bruce, according to Klaus, said he would take up the matter with Thomas C. Blaisdell, jr., then acting assistant secretary for foreign and domestic commerce. Shortly afterward, Klaus said, he saw Bruce entering Blaisdell's office, but did not know whether he had taken up the matter of Remington's employment.

Truman's Loyalty Board Gives First Report to Senate Group

The first report of the President's Loyalty Review Board, set up by executive order last October, was made public yesterday when it was placed in evidence before a Senate subcommittee investigating employment of suspected persons by the Government.

In presenting the report, Lawrence V. Meloy, the board's executive secretary, said that since the loyalty program began 3177 reports had been received from the FBI. Of these, he said, 2449 had been forwarded to agency and regional boards.

Of the latter, Meloy explained, 1911 had gone to agency boards and 538 to regional boards, where charges would be filed where indicated and individuals involved would be given an opportunity to be heard.

In the Loyalty Review Board itself, Meloy said, 676 cases had been closed or were in process and 16 appeals from agency action had been received.

Of 548 cases closed, Meloy said, employes had been cleared in 396, unfavorable findings were had in 54, and 98 had resigned while under investigation. In the cases which resulted in unfavorable findings, Meloy said, 16 had appealed to agency heads. Twelve of those, he said, were concurred in by the agency head and four were reversed.

During July, Meloy said, activity under the loyalty program occurred in all but 11 agencies. These were the Civil Aeronautics Board, Council of Economic Advisers, Export-Import Bank, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, Federal Power Commission, General Accounting Office, National Capital Housing Authority, Office of Defense Transportation, Office of Selective Service Records, and National Capital Parks and Planning Commission.

Stalin Talk Call Fails To Develop

(From Press Dispatches)

Moscow, Aug. 5.—An expected meeting between Western power envoys and Prime Minister Stalin failed to materialize here tonight.

Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, American Ambassador, reportedly waited at his telephone for a call summoning the envoys to a new talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and possibly Marshal Stalin. No such call was received at a late hour tonight. Later, it was said authoritatively that the three Western power diplomats would not visit the Kremlin tonight.

Smith, Yves Chataigneau, French Ambassador, and Frank Roberts, British special envoy, have received instructions from their governments and today held a series of conferences coordinating views. It was understood they reached agreement on the tenor of a memorandum to be presented, probably to Molotov, at their next talk.

Blockade Lift Held Vital

There is every reason to assume that elimination of the blockade of Berlin is a condition of the Western Allies for any meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers. It is understood that the Russians insist that at any conference, the whole German problem be reexamined, including the German Ruhr, in the administration of which Russia wants a voice.

What earlier dispatches described as the optimism of American spokesmen as the result of Monday's meeting with Stalin is now being explained simply as "encouragement that negotiations are proceeding."

General Smith himself is not showing the slightest inclination to entertain false hopes.

The present phase of negotiations is drawing to a close and probably will end within the next few days. It was emphasized that negotiations as a whole are still in the preliminary stage and undue optimism as to the ultimate result should be avoided.

Western Powers Plan West German Regime

London, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—A British Foreign Office spokesman reaffirmed today the Western powers' intention to go ahead quickly with plans for a west German government this fall.

His statement came amid mounting speculation in well-informed quarters that the Russians have set deferment of these plans as their price for a settlement in Berlin and the holding of a new four-power conference on ending the East-West cold war in Europe.

Several British newspapers reported that Stalin had told Western envoys those were his terms in talks last Monday night with United States Ambassador Walter B. Smith, French Ambassador Yves

In Bench Conference

Judge Raedy Says Prosecutor Drops Cases Against Friends

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy yesterday accused the Corporation Counsel's office of failing to prosecute "driving while drunk" charges against friends of the office.

The accusation was made to Assistant Corporation Counsel Philip Brophy and Attorney Robert H. McNeill during a bench conference in the jury court branch.

The two lawyers were in court to serve respectively as prosecutor and defense counsel in the trial of Okey Leonard Payne, 38, of 1316 Monroe st. nw., charged with driving while drunk.

Shortly after the conference began, Judge Raedy was heard to ask Brophy why he had nolle prossed a case brought into court several days ago.

"The urinalysis showed a .12 per cent alcohol content 14 hours later. What did it show at the time he was arrested?" she asked loudly enough to be heard throughout the courtroom.

"We had no way of proving what it showed at the time of arrest," Brophy stated. "Our position is . . ."

At this point Judge Raedy interrupted to declare:

"Your position is that you nolle for your friends and not for others. I know what you are doing."

Nothing further was said about the case to which she had referred. Payne's trial then was continued to September 14.

Asked later, why she had made such a statement, she replied: "I was having a private conference with my lawyers."

When it was pointed out that a number of people in the courtroom, including several newspaper reporters, had heard the statement, she answered:

"Well, it was not meant for your ears. What I say to my lawyers is my own business. I'll say what I want to them."

Both Brophy and McNeill refused to comment at any length on the subject or to reveal the discussion which had led up to her statement.

Brophy did admit, however, that he had at first thought it was a personal attack.

"It was all a misunderstanding, and it was not meant personally against me," he later explained. He said he could not remember any of the names in the case to which she had referred.

A check of court records showed that a Thomas L. Dabney had appeared before Judge Raedy August 3 for a jury trial on a charge of driving while drunk. The case was nolle prossed by Brophy, according to the records.

Brophy would neither deny nor affirm that Dabney's case was the one Judge Raedy referred to yesterday. Judge Raedy's secretary said she was too busy to see the press when reporters sought the judge's comment on this fact.

Clark King, head of the Corporation Counsel's office at Municipal Court, said he knew of no instances in which assistant corporation counsel had shown any favoritism in handling cases.

"It is a standing rule here that when a urinalysis shows an alco-

Party-Appproved Bill Shelved for T-E-W In Committee Vote; Adjournment Near

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Senate GOP revolt upset the Republican leadership program yesterday as the House passed a limited anti-inflation measure and drove within sight of a Saturday adjournment.

The Senate Republican setback came on a pivotal special session issue—public housing—and threatened to spread today to the problem of inflation controls.

As a result, the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill recommended by Mr. Truman, and not the GOP leadership's own non-public housing compromise, became the unfinished business of the Senate last night.

By unanimous consent, the public housing showdown will come up in the Senate at 1 p. m. today after the Senate meets an hour early to choose between the leadership's private housing measure and the T-E-W bill, twice previously approved by the Senate.

House Banking Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) predicted the House will do nothing about housing if the Senate again sends over the public housing, slum clearance measure.

Opening debate in the Senate, Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), whose Banking Committee okayed the T-E-W bill by a 7 to 5 vote, accused Wolcott and other House GOP leaders of dictating to Congress. He said he accepted their "challenge."

"There is just one duty on us," the defiant Tobey told the Senate. "That is to back up the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill; repudiate any substitute for it, and carry it through, as we are all pledged to do, both great parties having pledged themselves to it."

Credit Curbs Passed

While Senate leaders sought to smooth over party differences in time for a Saturday night getaway, the House high command in full control in that chamber pushed to passage two of the GOP's three special session points:

1. By a 264-to-97 roll call vote, the House passed the Wolcott anti-inflation bill after 40 minutes debate. The bill reimposes wartime controls on installment buying, modestly tightens bank credit and raises Federal Reserve Bank gold reserves over Administration opposition. Completely passed over were standby price controls and rationing as well as materials allocations asked by the President. Senator Tobey may demand at

'Failure,' Truman Says Of Special Session

President Truman in an angry statement yesterday called the special session of Congress a failure and said it is apparent the Republican leadership will take no effective action on his proposals to curb price rises. Story on Page 14.

Greek Rebels' Defenses Fall Before Attack

Athens, Aug. 5 (A.P.). — Defense positions of Markos Vafiades' Communist rebels collapsed one after another today under the impetus of a heavy 48-hour government attack.

Tonight the guerillas were reported holding but four villages of any size in the entire Mount Grammos area, and the remnants of Markos' guerillas were reported fleeing in a disorganized retreat to Assimohori on the Albanian border.

A general staff spokesman said Kastaniani, Pyroso, Ani, Kantzikon and Langada were toppled by government forces today and the whole area south of the Sarandaporos River cleared of guerillas.

The height of Ghiftissa was captured in the same area.

Markos' western front also collapsed. Vourbiani, and Steno on the slopes of Mount Kaemenic on the Albanian border were both reported in the hands of Greek troops.

Steno was the key to Markos' supply route from Albania.

The four villages still in rebel hands are Actomilitisa, Lykorrachi, Assimohori and Grammos itself barely a mile from the Albanian border.

Crump Men Trailing in Early Count

Nashville, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Two Democratic primary candidates supported by Memphis political leader E. H. Crump trailed opponents in unofficial returns from one-fourth the State's precincts today during an election day marred by a killing in Polk County, southeast, Tennessee.

Returns from Crump's populous Shelby County, which has usually given whooping totals to the candidates he favors, had not begun to trickle in, however.

Representatives Estes Kefauver took an early lead in the race for Senator with Senator Tom Stewart pressing closely behind. Crump-backed Judge John A. Mitchell was third.

Gov. Jim McCord, backed by Crump in his race for a third term nomination, trailed former Gov. Gordon Browning.

In the Senatorial race 1348 out of 2300 precincts in the State showed: Kefauver 68,703, Mitchell 34,917, Stewart 72,280.

Hungry Germans In Demonstrations

Berlin, Aug. 5 (NYHT).—Hunger demonstrations are erupting throughout the Soviet occupation zone of Germany, the western-licensed press reported here tonight.

The French-licensed newspaper Der Kurier declared that "special police units to watch food trains" have been ordered at Halle. "During the period of train loading, the whole station is blocked off," the paper said, but nevertheless, "mobs gather around the station trying to break the blockade and to rob the train." (More news of Berlin situation on Page 8.)

FCC to Curb Radio 'Prize' Programs

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday announced a new set of rules designed to pull the switch on give-away broadcasts based in any way upon lot or chance.

The rules will apply not only to cash awards but to any other thing of value. That takes in the familiar mink coat, trip around the world, deep-freeze locker full of food, and family helicopter.

The FCC proved it knows a trend when it hears one. The commission announced it drew up the new rules because of "the growing number of 'money' programs on the radio."

It hasn't determined when the new regulations will go into effect. However, the commission said it will accept statements from interested parties up to September 10.

The announcement called attention to a section of the Communications Act which says that no radio station "shall knowingly permit the broadcasting of any advertisement or information concerning any lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme, offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance, or any list of the prizes drawn or awarded by means of any such lottery, gift, enterprise or scheme."

Each program may require individual study to determine whether it is within the law, the commission said. It added, however, that any program will be considered illegal if it involves the award of money or other valuable prizes to any person whose selection depends upon chance or lot.

Also barred, the commission said, would be programs where as a condition to winning a prize the winner must furnish any money or other thing of value, or have in his possession any specified product of the sponsor, or be required to be listening to the program (or viewing it, if on television), or required to give an an-

Dewey Presses Revercomb On DP Bill Amendment

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Republican presidential nominee, is bringing pressure on Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.), to force action to amend the displaced persons law at the special session, it was learned last night.

Senator Revercomb is chairman of a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee considering an amendment which would admit more Jewish war victims to the United States by advancing the eligibility date from December 27, 1945, to April 21, 1947. The subcommittee met all day yesterday without action.

Governor Dewey, it was learned, has caused Senator Revercomb to be advised that this amendment should be passed before the special session adjourns. If it is not, Senator Revercomb has been told that Governor Dewey or his vice presidential running mate, Gov. Earl Warren of California, will (eel called upon to make a speech in West Virginia during the campaign explaining their position on the matter. Senator Revercomb is running for reelection this year.

This intercession by Governor Dewey was reported yesterday to have improved chances of getting action on the amendment, which is sponsored by Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.). It is assured of Senate passage once it gets out of committee, and Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, has promised House passage once the Senate approves.

The subcommittee has been divided in a two-to-two split, with Senator Revercomb and Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), opposing the amendment and Senators J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), and John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.), favoring it.

Senator Revercomb said yesterday that extensive hearings would be required on the amendment which would preclude action at the special session driving toward adjournment.

U. S. Track March Halted at London: Swimmers Star

London, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—An American march of triumph in track and field events of the fourteenth Olympic games was interrupted today when Arthur Wint of Jamaica raced to victory in the 400 meter dash in record-equaling time and three stanch Swedes scored a grand slam in the 3000 meter steeplechase.

It was the first time since the opening day that the United States failed to win a single gold medal in track.

Ewing Criticized On U. S. Cook Use

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing last night was charged by a Senate subcommittee with using a St. Elizabeths Hospital cook for the preparation of lunches in his office dining room.

The cook, Neaser James Kelly, still wearing his kitchen garb, was taken from the FSA kitchtn yesterday at noon directly to a hearing of the Senate Appropriations Subcommitte on Labor and Federal Security by two committee investigators.

At the Capitol, he told the committee that since November 30, 1947, he has been preparing food for luncheons in the 4th st. nw. and Independence ave. building for Ewing and his guests.

Denies Impropriety

Ewing denied any impropriety in the arrangement whereby Kelly was employed part-time in the FSA building. He declared, "We reimburse St. Elizabeths for it from our funds." Kelly's salary is $3225 a year.

As for the cost of the food, "I pay every dime of the food bills myself from my personal funds," Ewing, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, told The Washington Post.

He said the arrangement was made to "expedite" office conferences, sometimes of staff members, and often of special groups conferring on mental health or cancer problems. He explained that since there are few restaurants in the vicinity of the building, meetings would be greatly delayed if participants had to go downtown to eat.

In adidtion, the FSA head pointed out that some meetings involved both Negro and white persons. If luncheons had to be obtained outside the structure, the conferences would be held up since there are no restaurants in the area where both groups may be accommodated, he explained.

At Hospital 8 Years

Kelly, the cook, told the Senators he has been at St. Elizabeths, a Federal mental institution under control of FSA, for the past eight years and is head cook of a dining room feeding some 2000 patients daily. He supervises 31 employes in the unit.

Last November, when he was directed to begin working part-time at FSA, he began reporting daily at the administrator's office, except when Ewing was out of town, he testified.

Upon arrival there, a menu would be available and the food from which to prepare the meal, he said. His job was to "fix the food on the menu," including the "baking and everything."

Asked for a sample of his culinary output, he said that yesterday he turned out cinnamon buns, hot rolls, cookies, fruit salad, dessert ices, tomato juice, tea, coffee and milk.

For these labors, he received no extra pay, other than transportation tokens for his trips to and from the hospital, situated in the Anacostia area.

Ewing's Idea, He Says

Leo L. Miller, executive assistant to the administrator, told the subcommittee he had arranged for the use of Kelly's services, but said the idea originated with Ewing. A kitchen had been built in the building and preparation of lunches there would save considerable time for the administrator and his conferees, it was thought, Miller explained.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) jumped on this explanation. "If we carried that on out to its legal conclusion, we ought to furnish a valet to each one of the administrators to help him get down in the morning a little earlier and he could shave a little quicker and get a bath and get on his clothes."

A Republican colleague, Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota, agreed. "While it may increase his efficiency, it is nevertheless a personal service to him as an individual, and normally we do not use Government funds for personal services.

"I mean, if you can stretch it to that, I do not know why you could not stretch it to buying a dress, suit or a top hat or a residence or anything else that might increase his efficiency as an administrator," Senator Ball declared.

Bridges Gives Warning

The head of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), accused Miller of dealing lightly with the subcommittee charges during his testimony and warned, "If there is a misuse of Federal funds, that is not a very light thing, you know."

Miller immediately denied that he viewed the situation lightly, but added that he felt no dishonesty or misuse of public funds was involved in the matter.

Another objection to the personnel loan came from two hospital officials who testified that the institution was short of help.

Ewing, who addressed the Democratic Party's national convention last month, had been under fire earlier this week. Last Sunday, Appropriations Committee members received and made public copies of a letter from former Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker, charging that Ewing's office had blocked efforts to launch an "Expose Communism" drive in the public schools. Ewing, who is numbered as one of President Truman's top advisers, has denied the charges and asked for a public hearing on the issue.

Today Ewing will hold a news conference in his office at 10 a. m. to discuss both sets of charges leveled at him by the Appropriations Committee members.

Witness Tells Of Warning

Ferguson (R., Mich.) placed in the record a cable from Bruce, who is now in Paris with the Economic Cooperation Administration, denying recollection of any conversation with Klaus. The cable, addressed to Committee Counsel William P. Rogers, read:

"Have no recollection statement by Klaus regarding subject telephone conversation. Believe Commerce Department files will indicate thorough security check in normal fashion including FBI clearance."

Klaus said Bruce told him the question of Remington's loyalty was raised before his appointment and was "all cleared up." The witness said he was greatly concerned that his own enforcement work would be frustated if "this man got this job" and became "more concerned" when he learned that Remington was including enforcement of export regulations as one of his functions.

"I had been advising all round," he said, "that ECA could not succeed it the export program broke down."

Answering a question by Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), Klaus said he didn't know if Remington's presence had affected his own enforcement work. He didn't, he said, feel any "actual frustration."

The subcommittee wrestled at great length with Matthew Hale, assistant solicitor of the Commerce Department, in an effort to learn what data on Remington's loyalty existed in the department's files. Hale said he had personally removed "some papers" from the file before turning it over to the committee, but he didn't know how many. But he conceded they did concern Remington's loyalty.

Slight, greying and soft-spoken, Hale calmly but firmly declined in a slow Boston accent to talk about the papers he had removed. He said he had stripped the file after talking with Presidential Assistant Clark Clifford at the White House. He said Clifford advised him to remove any documents, reports recommendations or other papers whose transmittal to the committee might violate President Truman's prohibition of last March 13.

Then, under relentless prodding, he declined to say whether the file was ever at the White House or anything about his dealings with Clifford. That, he said, was a matter between the President and the Secretary of Commerce, to whom he stood in the relation of lawyer to client.

Finally, while the committee went into executive session, Hale telephoned Commerce Secretary Sawyer and got permission to give those details. He said the file went to the White House last Monday and was returned Wednesday with oral instructions to strip it of all evidence touching on Remington's loyalty.

Asked by Ferguson if he thought it possible for the committee to consider the question of Remington's loyalty without the complete file, Hale said he couldn't discuss the merits of his instructions. Senator Thye (R., Minn.) then said there was little left for the committee but to believe there was "something against Remington" in the record, whereas the committee was "trying to clear this young man."

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) pointed out that Congress had appropriated 11 million dollars for loyalty investigations and said that under the President's order "we are not entitled to know what was done with the money or what results were obtained." The people, he said, were entitled to know "how their tax money is being spent and we are deprived of that information."

Questioned by Bricker, Hale said he was "personally inclined to agree" that the President's order prevented the committee from determining the efficiency of the Commerce Department in checking its employes.

Thomas J. Scanlon, Commerce Department investigator since 1941, said he was asked by the executive assistant to the Secretary to make a "suitability check" on Remington last May 11. Within 24 hours, he said, he was "apprised of the fact that a loyalty investigation was being made" and passed this information back on May 13.

Gladieus testified that he learned some time after this was done that Sawyer had received a message from Attorney General Clark about that time concerning Remington. That, he said, was the reason for Sawyer's request for an investigation.

Under questioning Gladieus said he had not seen the Clark memorandum and that it since had disappeared and could not be found.

He explained that Remington's appointment had been formally requested by Francis McIntyre, assistant director of the Office of International Trade in the Department. At that time, he said, the Council of Economic Advisers, of which Remington was a member, reported nothing derogatory in his record.

The request, he added, was then approved by Bruce and Undersecretary William C. Foster.

The subcommittee will meet at 11 a. m. today. Ferguson said he did not know last night who would be called as witnesses.

Prof. Watson Contends 'Red' Speech Was Not Biased

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Goodwin Watson, Columbia University professor, denied today that a speech he made Monday before the Star Island (N. H.) Unitarian Conference "attacked democracy while favoring communism."

"I consider the speech a well-balanced, objective presentation of world affairs," the Columbia Teachers College faculty member said.

The address, first of several made at the opening session of the church gathering, resulted in the resignation from the conference of Federal Trade Commissioner Lowell B. Mason. Mason charged the Watson speech constituted an attack on democracy and that the conference, as a result, had been used as a "sounding board by alien forces."

Watson said today that Mason had "every right" to take exception to his remarks but added:

"So far as I know he was the only one in the audience to take serious exception."

His speech, Watson said, discussed three conflicting views on world affairs. One view, he declared, maintains that America is perfect. The second contends that Russia is perfect. And the third, he added, is "my own which holds that some concessions will have to be made from both sides in order to reach a basis for peaceful cooperation."

Following Watson's speech and Mason's subsequent resignation, the 200 delegates voted overwhelmingly their belief that the conference was not "in danger of being dominated by any one individual or group."

Mayor Humphrey Files To Run Against Ball

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 5 (AP).—Mayor Hubert H. Humphrey of Minneapolis filed today for the United States Senate on the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket.

Humphrey seeks the post held by Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.).

Alger Hiss Denies All Red Charges

was scheduled to leave Washington last night to take testimony from this secret witness. The testimony, Mundt said, has nothing to do with Hiss but may connect up with the testimony of Chambers concerning Communist infiltration of the Government.

2. Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.) charged yesterday that 1300 pounds of precious uranium compounds were shipped to Russia "at the very height of atomic research in 1943." Uranium is a basic material for atomic bombs. The uranium, McDowell said, was shipped "after tremendous pressure on all phases of our Government from known Russian agents and others who had worked themselves into positions of importance."

3. Mundt said the committee believed a Russian spy ring is still operating within the Federal Government. He accused President Truman of trying to block the investigation by refusing to permit and congressional committee to look at employment files which reveal who recommended persons for the Federal service.

4. Mundt denied published reports that the committee had located the mysterious alien, J. V. Peters, who has been described in testimony for years as heading the Communist underground apparatus throughout the United States. The committee, said Mundt, is still trying to locate Peters, who was released on bond of $5000 by Immigration officials several years ago when no country would receive him after he was ordered deported.

5. The committee had been able to serve subpenas on a number of those mentioned in testimony of two confessed former Communists who said they were couriers for the underground Mundt stated.

6. Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.) suggested that Henry A. Wallace be subpenaed to testify because a large number of individuals "charged with being Communist spies" had worked under him in Government. The committee, meeting for two and a half hours in executive session, did not act on his request.

He told reporters that a hearing scheduled for today had been called off because Charles Kramer, former employe of a Senate Education and Labor subcommittee, is ill with bronchial pneumonia and George Silverman, another wanted witness, has asked to delay his appearance.

Mundt said William Ludwig Ullman and Henry Collins, others mentioned as members of the Communist underground, had been served with subpenas to appear Tuesday.

Collins is a former employe of the Department of Agriculture.

Chambers' Testimony

Chambers said it was at the apartment of Henry Collins in St. Matthews Court here where the group of top Communists in Government met with him when he was a courier for the Communist underground. He said the group also sometimes met in the violin studio of Helen Ware, sister of Harold Ware. Both are children of Ella Reeves Bloor, famed "Mother Bloor" of the Communist Party.

After Hiss categorically denied knowing Whittaker Chambers, he volunteered that he did know Collins.

"I have known Henry Collins since we were boys in camp together," he said. "I knew him again while he was at the Harvard Business School while I was at the Harvard Law School, and I have seen him from time to time since I came to Washington in 1933."

Comments on Others

Continuing with his review of the list of those Chambers said comprised the "underground apparatus" organizing Communist cells in Washington, Hiss volunteered:

"Lee Pressman was in my class at the Harvard Law School and we were both on the Harvard Law Review at the same time. We were also both assistants to Judge Jeorme Frank on the legal staff of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"Since I left the Department of Agriculture I have seen him only occasionally and infrequently. I left the Department, according to my recollection in 1935.

"Witt and Abt (Nathan Witt and John Abt) were both members of the legal staff of the AAA. I knew them both in that capacity. I believe I met Witt in New York a year or so before I came to Washington. I came to Washington in 1933. We were both practicing law in New York at the time I think I met Witt.

"Complete Fabrications"

"Kramer (Charles Kramer, another mentioned as being in the group by Chambers) was in another office of the AAA and I met him in that connection.

"I have seen none of these last three men I have mentioned except most infrequently since I left the Department of Agriculture.

"I don't believe ever knew Victor Perlo."

Then Hiss added:

"Except as I have indicated, the statements about me by Mr. Chambers are complete fabrications. I think my record in the Government service speaks for itself."

Later, Hiss added that when he was in the Department of Agriculture he also knew Harold Ware but only casually and in the course of his official business. Ware was described by Chambers as the organizer of the little group within the Government.

Mundt said that if Chambers' story was untrue he wondered what his motive could be for mentioning the names of Alger and his younger brother, Donald Hiss, along with those of the six others. He said "there seems to be no question about the subversive connections of the six, other than the Hiss brothers."

Hiss said he wondered, too. "I have no possible understanding of what could have motivated him," he said.

Later Hiss told the committee that he was as certain as a man could be that his brother was not and never had been a Communist or had any Communist connections.

Committee Rebuked

With great dignity but with extreme seriousness, Hiss rebuked the committee for having allowed charges against him to be made public before giving him a chance to answer.

Representative John McDowell (D., Pa.) asked him if he thought he had had "a fair hearing."

"Mr. McDowell," Hiss replied, "I think I have been treated today with great consideration by this committee. I am not happy that I didn't have a chance to meet with the committee privately before there was such a great public press display of what I consider completely unfounded charges against me. Denials do not always catch up with charges."

McDowell said the committee has no way of knowing in advance what a witness is going to say, and sometimes a name is brought in which many Americans hold in high regard.

"I would rather not comment on that particular point," Hiss replied. "I don't think I am in the best frame of mind to comment on that right now."

Hiss asked to be confronted with Chambers in the hearing room so that he could see if he could recognize him. The committee had orignally planned to have Chambers present but apparently plans had been changed.

Stripling showed Hiss a picture of Chambers, explaining that the writer is "much heavier" than he was at that time.

"I would much rather see the individual," Hiss commented. "I have looked at all the pictures I was able to get hold of in, I think it was, yesterday's paper which had the pictures. If this is a picture of Mr. Chambers, he is not particularly unusual looking.

"He looks like a lot of people. I might even mistake him for the chairman of this committee."

After the crowded hearing echoed with the delighted laughter of spectators, Hiss said he hadn't meant to be facetious.

"I would not want to take oath that I have never seen that man. I would like to see him and then I think I would be better able to tell whether I had ever seen him. Is he here today?"

Mundt reminded Hiss that Chambers had told a very detailed story about going out to the Hiss home one evening to beg Hiss to leave the Communist Party, and that all the laws of perjury applied when Chambers so testified.

"I do know that he said that. I also know that I am testifying under these same laws to the direct contrary," Hiss answered.

Hiss disclosed that reports of his being a "Communist" had begun to circulate at least as far back as 1946. He said Justice James Byrnes, then Secretary of State, called him into his office and said all the stories "center from the FBI." He suggested that Hiss offer himself for investigation to the FBI. Hiss did so, he said, and answered all questions. He now believes, he said, that the FBI had only Chambers as a source of its information.

Laughter again spattered through the hearing room when Representative Edward Hebert (D., La.) drew from Hiss the statement that John Foster Dulles, chief adviser on foreign policy to GOP Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, had urged him to accept his present position.

Hiss is president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Dulles is chairman of the board.

Mundt, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, took the lead in questioning Hiss about his activities while in the State Department.

At Yalta Conference

Hiss said he participated in the Yalta Conference.

"Did you draft or participate in the drafting of parts of the Yalta Agreement?" asked Mundt.

"I think it is accurate, and not an immodest statement to say that I did to some extent, yes," replied Hiss.

"Did you participate in those parts which gave Russia three votes in the Assembly?" pressed Mundt.

"I was present at the conference and am familiar with some of the facts involved in that particular agreement," Hiss answered.

"You would say you did participate in the formation of that part of the agreement?"

"I had nothing to do with the decision that these votes be granted. I opposed them," Hiss replied.

Veto Provision Cited

"The Yalta Agreement, which wrote out, according to my information, quite well the text of the United Nations Charter dealing with the veto provisions. Did you participate in the drawing up of those veto provisions?"

"My best recollection without consulting the actual records is that the text of what is now Article 27 of the Charter was drafted in the Department of State in the early winter of 1944 before the Yalta Conference, as part of the negotiations preceding that conference, was dispatched by the President of the United States to the Prime Minister of Great Britain and to Marshal Stalin for their agreement and represented the proposal made by the United States at the Yalta Conference and was accepted by the other two after some discussion.

Manchurian Railway

"I congratulate you on your opposition to that particular section. Did you participate in the portion of the Yalta agreement which gave Russia control of the chief Manchurian railway?"

"That was not part of the political agreement," returned Hiss. "I knew nothing of that until many months later. That was in the military talks in which I did not participate."

Then Mundt asked Hiss if he had had anything to do with the departmental policy proclaimed on December 15, 1945, before General Marshall went out to China.

Hiss said he did not because he was specializing at the time on United Nations work.

Mundt Seems Astonished

Obviously astonished, Mundt asked again:

"You opposed them?"

"I did," Hiss said firmly.

"Did you participate—I am glad to hear that——" Mundt started.

Rankin interrupted with:

"Let's get that answer straight. You opposed the Yalta agreement?"

"I opposed the particular point that the chairman referred to by which the United States agreed to support Soviet Russia's application for votes in the Assembly and membership in the United Nations organization for Byelo Russia and the Ukraine.

"I did not oppose the Yalta agreement as a whole—quite the contrary. I still think the political agreement was a very valuable agreement for the United States."

Helped Draft Plan

"I did participate in the Department of State in the drafting of the messages I have referred to that President Roosevelt sent in, I think, December, 1944, prior to the Yalta Conference."

"Those were the messages which described the veto provisions?"

"My recollection is they set out an actual suggested draft and that the variations between that draft and the present language of the Charter is immaterial."

"What I was trying to get to is whether you participated in the creation of the draft?" Mundt declared.

"I did participate in the creation of the draft that was sent by President Roosevelt to Churchill and Stalin, which was the draft actually adopted at Yalta and actually adopted at San Francisco."

"Did you lend your influence in the direction of having the veto provision included in the draft?" pressed Mundt.

"I did. That was practically the unanimous position of the American Government, I might add," said Hiss.

Sometime later Rankin put in a question about the actions of Hiss in connection with the United Nations Charter.

"Now, whose interest did you have at heart and in mind at the time, the interest of the United States or the interest of a foreign power?"

"The interest of the United States and of the United Nations organization," Hiss replied calmly.

Continuing, he said:

"I think without the veto there would have been no United Nations organization. I think it was highly desirable to the interest of the Unnited States that there be such an organization in which the United States participated."

"You think that veto is in the interest of the United States?" queried Rankin.

"I think, Mr. Rankin, that various changes and modifications could helpfully and desirably be made in the veto provisions. I think on the question of enforcement in particular, on the calling out of contingents of armed forces supplied by member states, that in the present state of the world that each of the major powers, including particularly the United States, must reserve its own judgment on whether it thinks its own troops should move in a given case."

"That is all," said Rankin.

Hiss testified flatly he had not met Carl Aldo Marzani, State Department employe discharged for having falsely sworn he was not a Communist.

At a previous hearing, Mundt had publicly stated on the record that he was familiar with the activities of Alger Hiss within the State Department.

"There is reason to believe that he organized within that department one of the Communist cells which endeavored to influence our Chinese policy, and bring about the condemnation of Chiang Kai-shek which put Marzani in an important position there."

But during and after Hiss' testimony yesterday, Mundt said the former State Department official, like Chambers, appeared to be an honest and reliable witness. Mundt raised the question of a possible mistaken identity causing the conflict in testimony. At the time Chambers was acting as courier for the Communist underground —before he broke with the [illegible] in 1937—Chambers went under two other names, committee members said.

Early in the hearing Hiss was asked if he knew Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, the former Government employe identified in Civil Service, FBI and several city police records as a former member of the OGPU (Russian secret police).

"Not to the best of my knowledge," Hiss replied.

"Do you know why Mr. Silvermaster, when he was asked whether he knew Alger Hiss, replied, 'I refuse to answer this question on the grounds that any answer I may give to this question may be self-incriminating'?" asked Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling.

"I certainly do not," replied Hiss.

Says Chiefs Knew About Remington

Illinois Red Is Arrested By the FBI

New York, Aug 5 (U.P.).—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents arrested Gilbert Green, Illinois State chairman of the Communist Party today at the hotel where he had been attending the Communist Party national convention under his real name of J. Greenberg.

Green was paroled in the custody of his attorney, Abraham Unger, until 11 a. m. tomorrow when he must furnish $5000 bail. He and 11 other top-flight Communists are charged with knowingly organizing and being members of a party which advocates overthrow of the United States Government by violence.

Senator O'Daniel Sued by Lawyer For $15,775 Fees

D. Heywood Hardy, Washington lawyer, yesterday asked District Court to award him $15,775 in fees, which he claims Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel (D., Tex.) owes him for legal services.

The suit alleges that Hardy, a member of the District Bar, served as an attorney for O'Daniel from October 1944 to August 1947.

'Red Herring,' Says Truman were entitled to—but no confidential information.

"Why was Remington asked to resign his commission in the Navy?"

Mr. Truman said he didn't know about that, and added that the reporter would have to ask the Navy.

"The Navy put it up to you, Mr. President."

Mr. Truman said he didn't have the information available.

After the President made his remark about a red herring, he was asked if he didn't think the American people were entitled to the information that was being brought out on Capitol Hill.

What useful purpose is served when the matter is before a grand jury? the President countered. He went on to say that they haven't any information that has not been known before and they have slandered a lot of people who don't deserve it.

He was reminded that Acting Chairman Mundt of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, had just said that a Communist spy ring is operating in Washington now.

It's in his mind, I think, the President observed.

"If there isn't anything to these charges," a reporter asked, "why did the FBI investigate in the first place?"

To be on the safe side, Mr. Truman replied: They got a lot of indictments on people up in New York, he said, and everything had been presented in a grand jury trial. He added that they got indictments on all those it was possible to indict.

Senator Ferguson, asked to comment on the President's statement said:

"He (Mr. Truman) could help a lot, and they (the investigations) could have been concluded much sooner if he were to give us the records we need."

Reds Deny Browder Appeal to Return

New York, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The Communist Party's fourteenth national convention today turned down an appeal by Earl Browder, the leader it ousted in 1945, for readmission to the party.

The 250 delegates unanimously rejected Browder's appeal. The party's committee on appeals had recommended such action.

The committee, headed by New York State Party Chairman Robert Thompson, one of the 12 key Communists indicted for plotting to overthrow the Government, gave three reasons for recommending rejection of Browder's plea:

1. His writings since his expulsion have continued to express the anti-Marxist views for which he was expelled.

2. He has not shown a change from his policies as former leader of the party or of his "anti-party activities since his expulsion."

3. His request for readmission "is itself a form of disguised party activity and a continuation of his repeated efforts to split the party and discredit it."

Browder was thrown out because he dissolved the party in 1944 and set up in its place the Communist Political Association.

He told members then that it had been decided to abandon the party's traditional objective of establishing socialism and that the new line was to support the existing system of capital and free enterprise.

He explained that the step was taken to carry out the decisions of President Roosevelt, Premier Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill to cooperate both during and after the war.

But in 1945, when signs of tension between Russia and the western allies already were appearing, American Communists stripped Browder of his authority and replaced him with a three-man secretariat. A month later they dissolved the CPA, re-formed the Communist Party and formally ousted Browder. They named his bitter enemy, William Z. Foster, leader of the party.

Browder, who was Communist candidate for President in 1936 and 1940, visited Moscow in May 1946 to "reestablish contacts with the Soviet Union." He conferred with Soviet publishers and agreed to act as their agent in this country.

Today's session of the convention also heard General Secretary Eugene Dennis, another of the 12 indicted top Communists, comment on President Truman's statement that the current investigations of Communists in Washington are a "red herring."

"What Mr. Truman said about the spy scare being a red herring is true, even though he spoke from partisan interests," Dennis said.

Veteran Loses Decision on His Apartment

An Alexandria Corporation Court jury yesterday decided Army Veteran John M. Webster must move from his Government-owned apartment, which he had fought for a year to keep.

Webster lives in Cameron Valley, a development built in Alexandria for Fort Belvoir personnel. Webster's connection with Fort Belvoir ended in May, 1947, and he was ordered to vacate.

Webster, a lawyer who pleaded his own case, maintained Fort Belvoir did not need his apartment and that Alexandria Housing Authority failed to provide him other adequate quarters.

Housing officials, however, testified Webster had been offered an apartment in Arlington's Shirley Homes, and that 600 homeless Fort Belvoir personnel were on a waiting list for the apartment.

Webster, who had won a decision in Alexandria Civil Court and a "hung jury" in Corporation Court June 29, said he would take the case to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia.

GOP Chief Names 2 Campaign Aides

On Strategy

Gov. Warren To Confer With Dewey

Pawling, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey and his running mate, Gov. Earl Warren of California, arranged today to get together for a campaign strategy huddle in Albany, N. Y., August 16 and 17.

Sitting in with the New York Governor and Warren will be Herbert Brownell, jr., Dewey's campaign manager. Other advisers may join them.

Word that Warren, the GOP vice presidential nominee, will travel across the country for the precampaign conference came after an announcement that Dewey talked "at length" by telephone last night with Harold E. Stassen.

That conference dealt with two matters much in the political limelight at the special session of Congress—the problem of inflation and the related meat supply. Dewey and Stassen, who was defeated for the presidential nomination by the New York Governor, also talked about "other campaign issues" and the part Stassen will play in trying to put Dewey in the White House.

James C. Hagerty, Dewey's press secretary, linked inflation and meat supplies in the United States as campaign issues in announcing the conference between Dewey and Stassen.

That indicated top GOP campaigners are ready to go to the mat with Democrats on the issues President Truman has tossed at the Republicans.

2 Policemen Fired for Club Shooting

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered dismissal for two Metropolitan police privates serving their one year's probation.

The men are Wayne W. Edmondson and oRland H. Holifield, both of whom were involved in the accidental shooting of Doorthy Kilmer in the Palm Grove Club, 1601 14th st. nw., July 29.

Dismissal was taken on recommendation of Major and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, who said services of the officers had not been satisfactory.

Both men are currently facing charges of assault with a deadly weapon, and are free on $2000 bond. Their trial on these charges comes up on September 1.

Holifield was appointed to the force on November 17, 1947. Edmondson was appointed June 1, 1948. Both men were suspended from duty by Lieut. Marvin O. Myers last July 29.

Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., of Rochester, N. Y., yesterday was named associate campaign manager for the Dewey-Warren ticket.

Mrs. Weis is New York State's Republican national committeewoman, a member of the executive committee of the New York State Republican Committee, vice chairman of her county GOP organization, and has been a delegate at large to the last three national conventions.

The appointment was announced by Campaign Manager Herbert Brownell, jr.

Brownell also announced appointment of Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) as chairman of the speakers' bureau for the campaign.

Jenner, who will assume his new duties immediately, will be assisted by Ben Whitehurst, director of the Republican National Committee's speakers division.

A member of the Indiana bar, Jenner was the first World War II veteran elected to the United States Senate. He was chosen to serve the unexpired term of the late Senator Frederick Van Nuys in 1944, and was reelected for the full six-year term in November, 1946.

Jenner is a member of the Senate Rules Committee and heads its Subcommittee on Privileges and Elections. He also is a member of the Labor and Public Welfare Committe.

Rep. Rivers 'Raving,' Says S. C. Judge

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—United States District Judge J. Waties Waring said today that words spoken about him by Representative Rivers (D., S. C.) were "silly, childish ravings."

Rivers lambasted Judge Waring yesterday in a speech to the House. The Federal judge, Rivers said should be removed from office for his "clumsy handling of a delicate situation." He referred to the jurist's order allowing the enrollment of Negroes in the Democratic Party in South Carolina. He said there will be "bloodshed" unless Judge Waring is removed.

Czech General Escapes

Nuernberg, Germany, Aug. 5 (AP).—German police said today Gen. Friedrich Neumann of the Czechoslovak Air Force slipped across the border into the American zone of Germany July 21 as a refugee from his Communist government. He was turned over to United States Army investigators.

Sen. Maybank Explains Approval of Waring

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) placed in the Congressional Record yesterday the texts of documents which he said supported his recent statement that the late Sen. E. D. Smith (D., S. C.) joined him in recommending the appointment of Federal Judge J. Waties Waring of the Eastern District of South Carolina.

Senator McFarland (D., Ariz.) told the Senate he was chairman of the subcommittee which passed on Waring's nomination.

He said he consulted with Maybank, who told him he "was willing to stand by whomever the senior Senator from South Carolina (Smith) might recommend."

McFarland said Senator Smith appeared in behalf of Waring and indorsed his nomination. He added:

"It is my opinion that the nomination of Judge Waring would not have been confirmed had Senator Smith not approved it. I say that because of the high esteem in which Senator Smith was held by the members of the Judiciary Committee and of the Senate."

The Gallup Poll

48% of Farmers In Favor of Dewey

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 5.—American farm voters, who have been moving away from the Democratic Party and into the Republican camp since 1936, are today in favor of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for President by a substantial majority.

Present indications are that Governor Dewey will poll a higher proportion of the farm vote this year than he did when he ran for President in 1944. However, a substantial proportion of farmers—12 per cent—have not yet made up their minds what man or party they favor.

Henry A. Wallace, himself a farmer and once Secretary of Agriculture, appears to have a limited appeal to the farm vote, with only 2 per cent supporting him at present. The Wallace third party strength is confined mainly to the Nation's big cities.

Those are the highlights of farm political opinion in the Institute's Nation-wide presidential poll conducted immediately after the Republican and Democratic nominating conventions.

Farmers in all States were asked: "If a presidential election were being held TODAY, how would you vote—for Dewey, for Truman or for Wallace?"

Farmers
Dewey	48%
Truman	38
Wallace	2
No opinion	12

With the no opinion percentage eliminated, the division of the vote is:

Dewey	55%
Truman	43
Wallace	2

Poll returns for the Nation as a whole showed the Dewey ticket in the lead, as reported last week. The percentages were as follows, with the no opinion vote included in the first column and excluded in the second:

	All Voters
Dewey	48%	53%
Truman	37	41
Wallace	5	6
No opinion	10

Interviewing in the poll began directly after the Democratic convention but before the anti-Truman Southerners formed the States Rights Party and named Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina for President. A new Institute survey now in progress will test the strength of the Thurmond ticket among voters in the South and elsewhere in the United States.

The farm vote outside the South was traditionally Republican in the years before the New Deal. Then during the depression of the 1930s millions of farm converts were won by the Democratic Party. In the election of 1936 approximately 6 out of every 10 American farmers voted for Roosevelt. The trend away from the Democratic Party was first seen in the 1940 election, as the following table shows:

	Democratic	Republican
1936 election	59%	41%
1940 election	54	46
1944 election	48	52
*Today's poll	43	55

Not shown in this table is the farm vote for Wallace—2 per cent.

Although the Democratic Party cannot count on as much farm support as in previous years, can it count on continued support from the industrial working man? During the Roosevelt regime the worker, and especially the labor union member, was virtually the backbone of the Democratic Party. A report on political sentiment among workers today will be released by the Institute next week.

St. Laurent Has Edge For Premier

Ottawa, Aug. 5 (AP).—The first caucuses of the National Liberal Party convention brought predictions tonight that Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Minister of External Affairs, may be named leader of the party on the first ballot Saturday.

St. Laurent

If so he soon will become Prime Minister, succeeding the retiring W. L. MacKenzie King. Under the Canadian system the leader of the party with the most seats in the House of Commons automatically gets the Prime Ministership.

St. Laurent would be the first French Canadian to become Prime Minister since Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1918. His closest competitor for the job is James Garfield Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture.

Gardiner, a Protestant and a farm-born westerner of Scottish descent, said he still thought things were "looking pretty good" from his standpoint. However, many observers, including professional politicians, took the view that St. Laurent steadily was gaining in strength.

Rent Increases Approved for 84 Schuyler Units

Rent increases on 84 apartment units owned by Schuyler, Inc., at 7611 and 7701 Georgia ave. nw. were approved yesterday by the District Rent Control Administration.

The increases bring the monthly rental for three rooms and bath from $38.50 to $41.25, and for five rooms and bath from $68.50 to $73.50.

In an application for the rent adjustment, the apartment owners had asked for a rent increase of 9.20 per cent, or $5040 a year.

William F. Mansfield, rent examiner who heard the case, settled on the lower figure of $4044.

Crump Man Trailing

ernor totals from 892 precincts were: Browning 114,449, McCord 75,210.

Meanwhile Republicans, holding a separate State-wide primary, gave early leads to Carroll Reece and Roy Acuff for the senatorial and gubernatorial nominations, respectively. Reece is the former GOP national chairman and Acuff a radio singer. Only a small trickle of GOP ballots was reported.

Crump faced one of the biggest tests of his long career in today's elections, which drew a heavy and perhaps a record vote.

Reece was opposed by Allen Strawbridge, a Dresden, Tenn., lawyer, and Acuff by Mayor Robert M. Murray of Huntingdon. Neither Reece nor Acuff campaigned for the nomination but both promised a hot fight against the Democrats in the November election.

Stewart had Crump's suport in previous elections. But in this campaign the 72-year-old Crump tossed Stewart aside and gave the nod to Mitchell. The latter has never before sought election in a State-wide contest.

In previous campaigns Crump's support has been worth anywhere from 40,000 to 60,000 votes in this State which normally casts an over-all primary total of less than 400,000. Crump candidates virtually always won by thumping majorities.

This time many of the political organizations which heretofore went along with Crump kicked over the traces and threw their support to Stewart.

Kefauver, like Stewart, made a strong campaign. He went into Shelby County (Memphis) to challenge Crump on his own grounds and came out predicting he'd garner 15,000 to 30,000 votes in Shelby.

Crump called Kefauver "the darling of the CIO-PAC," in political advertisements.

Kefauver replied by challenging Crump and his opponents to a public debate and, on their refusal, termed them "hit-and-run" critics.

Other Democratic senatorial candidates include George Hardin, also of Greeneville, but no relation of James N. Hardin; John Hickey, Newport Bible student, and Dr. John B. Neal, perennial candidate from Knoxville.

Governor McCord ran this race with Crump support, as was the case in his two previous campaigns.

U. S., Britain Foresaw Crisis With Russia in '43—Hopkins

American and British leaders realized two years before the end of World War II that Russia would be a "difficult problem" once the conflict ended.

The story of their concern about the Soviet Union is told in the latest installment of "The Secret Papers of Harry L. Hopkins," written by Robert E. Sherwood for Collier's.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden arrived in Washington on March 12, 1943. A few nights later he dined with President Roosevelt and Hopkins.

Hopkins, in a memorandum from which Sherwood quotes said they discussed in great detail "the postwar geographical problems of Europe." He listed the problems one by one, in this wise:

"Russia. Eden stated he thought Russia was our most difficult problem; that she undoubtedly had two different plans up her sleeve—one based on British-American cooperation with Russia and the other on the assumption that the United States would withdraw from all interest in European affairs after the war.

"Eden said he believed that Russia preferred and hoped for the former, because Stalin was not prepared to face the implications of Russia's control over Europe's affairs, and England probably would be too weak to face Russia alone diplomatically.

"I asked him what he thought Russia's demands at the peace table would be. Eden said he thought they first would demand that the Baltic states be absorbed as states in the USSR . . . The President stated that he thought that this action on the part of Russia would meet with a good deal of resistance in the United States and England . . ."

Hopkins quoted Eden as saying that, as a result of his talks with Stalin, he was sure that the Russian leader had a deep-seated distrust of the Germans and that he would insist that Germany be broken up into a number of states."

The current installment in Collier's tells about a document Hopkins had with him at the 1943 Quebec Conference. It was headed Russia's Position and quoted from "a very high-level United States military strategic estimate." The source was not otherwise identified. It contained the following:

"Russia's postwar position in Europe will be a dominant one. With Germany crushed, there is no power in Europe to oppose her tremendous military forces. It is true that Great Britain is building up a position in the Mediterranean vis-a-vis Russia that she may find useful in balancing power in Europe. However, even here she may not be able to oppose Russia unless she is otherwise supported.

Until the law lets me have margarine colored in the churn it's made in,* I'll stick to

NUCOA'S "Bowl Mix"

It's the best way

1 Because it protects the fine flavor and texture that make Nucoa our favorite margarine!

You're right, lady! We tolerate no short-cuts on quality in the making of Nucoa, so why should you tolerate them in coloring Nucoa for your table? Nucoa is churned, chilled, made into pounds, and luxuriously triple-wrapped, so that it comes to you with the finest churn-fresh flavor, the smoothest churn-fresh texture any spread can have. It is not melted and poured into any trick coloring package, because we know you would not like the flavor and texture of delicious Nucoa impaired in this way.

2 Because I find it as quick as any way—and so much more appetizing!

Yes, lady! Just let Nucoa stand at room temperature until it is soft—not soupy, but soft enough for quick sandwich spreading. Then remove it from the package to a large bowl and with a large fork or spoon cream in the coloring shaken from the pure color wafer. It takes less than a minute and a half to mix the color in evenly—and no other method is quicker than this; no other method so well protects the texture!

3 Because I get the best margarine this way—at less cost!

Right again! If you buy margarine in a trick coloring package, you pay extra for the package. When you buy Nucoa, you buy its finer flavor, its year-round, churn-fresh goodness, its rich food energy and dependable Vitamin A. You get the margarine you're proudest to put on your table—actually cheaper! What could be better?

*Obtainable yellow (where not prohibited by state law) at higher cost, to cover high Federal taxes and license fees.

Russians Relax Freeze on Marks

Woman POW Tells of Red Mistreatment

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—German women prisoners of war in Russia "had to strip nude and walk down a line of gawking Russian officers and men" for monthly health inspections, according to one of the prisoners just returned from Russia.

She told a story of back-breaking labor in brick factories and coal mines.

Women prisoners, she said ranged in age from 14 to 60.

She said the worst part of the whole ordeal was the monthly health inspection.

"That way 100 women could be checked in an hour," she said. Only those with high fevers or swollen legs were hospitalized."

One elderly woman, a prewar prisoners received three plates of watery soup, a little fat meat, and about a pound and a half of dark bread each day. The bread ration was cut if coal production fell off.

The same woman said that, on "stretch out" days women laborers worked 12 hours, moving one ton of coal an hour.

"We received an average of 800 rubles (nominally $160), but sometimes the money failed to arrive for six to eight weeks," she said. "We went hungry until we got it, because we had to pay for our own food."

Authorities said 150 of the 1400 returning prisoners had to be hospitalized because of heart trouble or malnutrition.

One woman said prisoners were shown anti-Western propaganda pictures.

Most of the women were connected in some way with the German army or the Nazi Party.

Berlin, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Russians slightly relaxed their financial blockade of Berlin today.

The action indicated the Russians may be willing to work out a compromise of the East-West currency dispute here. Soviet authorities have given the money conflict as a reason for their land blockade.

The first open break in Berlin Communist ranks over the blockade was reported today. A stormy meeting of the youth section of the Communist-controlled Socialist Unity Party (SED) in the American sector condemned the blockade as a "crime against humanity."

Blockade Not Relaxed

They resolved that German Communists who condoned the blockade are "a criminal group who must be branded as a foreign legion." Only two opposed the resolution after several left the meeting in protest. Communists walked out when a similar resolution was adopted by the Berlin city council last week.

There has been no relaxation of the blockade. Instead the Russians placed new road blocks near Lueneberg on the border between the Soviet and British occupation zones.

German press dispatches reported economic difficulties in the Russian zone including industrial shortages and hunger demonstrations. The accounts attributed some of those troubles to a boomeranging of the Berlin blockade.

Accidents Laid to Blockade

The American-licensed newspaper Tagesspiegel claimed many accidents "had occurred in recent weeks in power stations of the Russian zone" because the blockade has prevented the delivery of boiler repair parts from western Germany. Forty-nine workers were killed in two such accidents, the newspaper said.

Charles Giffard, British finance officer, told a news conference of the Russians' financial action. He said the anti-Communist Berlin city government had reached an agreement with the Russians for the release of enough funds from blocked Russian mark accounts to meet its weekend payments.

A similar arrangement was reached for business firms in the western sectors of the city, Giffard said. Those concerns had been in a position of not being able to meet salaries and other debts because of the week-old Soviet squeeze on money.

Giffard said as far as he knew "no strings were attached" to the Russian release of funds. He added: "The present arrangement appears satisfactory to the Western Allies.

Moscow Parleys Cited

Asked why the Russians should suddenly swerve from their apparent aim of achieving a financial monopoly in Berlin, he replied:

"They apparently did not want to bring things to a head in Berlin while negotiations were going on elsewhere (in Moscow). The Russians appear to have agreed to the arrangement in order to permit the life of Berlin to go on for the time being."

For the third straight day Soviet-controlled newspapers refrained from making attacks on the Western Allies.

Gen. Smith Awaits Call

Chataigneau and the British special envoy, Frank Roberts.

This speculation was heightened today when it was learned that Belgium's Premier, Paul-Henri Spaak is coming to London tomorrow and will confer with British Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Belgium is one of the six countries which agreed with Britain, the United States, France, the Netherlands and Luxembourg several months ago to establish a west German govrenment.

A delay in forming the west German government would complicate plans for incorporating Germany into the European recovery effort.

The Foreign Office spokesman said he had "nothing to add" to the statement last week that the agreement is being "swiftly implemented." The statement at that time added, however, that the plans "will doubtless be reconsidered if a new situation arises."

His statement today was taken to mean that so far Russia has not yet offered anything which the Western powers feel they could accept in exchange for deferment of their plans.

Before the Moscow talks began, British officials had anticipated that Russia was almost certain to demand cold storage of the plans for a west German government as a price for lifting the Berlin blockade.

The London Evening Standard, reporting that Stalin did make such a demand, quoted "some diplomats" here as predicting that the Western powers will accept it in return for a lifting of the blockade.

U. S. Demands Equal Western Say on Danube

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 5 (AP).—The United States demanded today that the western powers be given an even break with Communist countries in the trading facilities of the Danube River.

This was the price tag put upon American approval of a new Danubian convention by Ambassador Cavendish Cannon. The chief of the United States delegation outlined the American proposal after accusing Russia of seeking monopoly control and special privileges.

The United States plan obviously is designed for the record of the deliberations here. It has little chance of acceptance in view of the topheavy Communist majority.

Cannon urged creation of a Danubian commission of the big four and all the Danubian states, including Austria immediately and Germany eventually.

The Russians would bar the western powers, leave Germany unmentioned and permit Austria's entrance only after an Austrian peace treaty.

Cannon claimed Russia and her Danubian neighbors had set up a monopolistic shipping system which would be protected under the proposed Soviet pact.

Cannon said the Russian proposal would not help world commerce or give ships of all nations right to operate on the 1800-mile waterway.

Cannon proposed free international navigation and equal rights for use of docks, loading facilities and warehouses.

It would establish the United Nations as the court of last resort to settle international differences on river administrative problems.

Adrien Thierry, chief of the French delegation, said international law requires agreement among all signatories of the 1921 Danubian convention before that pact can be declared void and replaced by a new convention.

A British resolution would ask the International Court at the Hague to decide what international agreements on Danube navigation now are in force and which nations are parties to those agreements.

Food Authorities Recommend Added Rations For Germans to Boost Industrial Output

The Army last night released a report of some of the world's outstanding food authorities recommending an increase in German food rations.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall indicated at the same time that the report would be used as a basis of an appeal to Congress for more funds to feed the Germans.

The report states that the daily food requirement of the German people, necessary to recover their weight, strength and normal working capacity is 2540 calories per person.

The experts estimated the average total per capita calories intake of Germans other than farmers and the rural population at 2200 calories per person.

They said the German farmers and rural dwellers are as well nourished as before the war.

"Good industrial output cannot be achieved at this present level," the report added. It went on to say that success of the Marshall Recovery Plan hinges on German industrial recovery and that recovery cannot come without an increase in the German food rations.

The survey said the average German aged 20 to 39 weighs 132 pounds when he should weigh 148. He is sluggish and cannot work at full capacity.

Assistant Secretary of Army Tracy S. Voorhees, head of the nutrition mission, said that is one of the primary factors in the slowness of German industrial recovery.

Army to Purchase Argentine Meat, Turkey

The United States Army yesterday accepted bids to purchase 3,021,000 pounds of meat and 904,725 pounds of turkey from Argentina and officials said the purchase is being made under an exception in the so-called "Buy American" Act.

Officials of both the Army Department and the European Recovery Administration said it has nothing to do with ECA's offshore purchase program.

"It is a straight Army deal," they said. Also, it is for troop feeding in areas outside the United States and its territories.

The "Buy American" Act was passed in 1933 and specifies that the armed services must buy their supplies from sources in this country.

Among the exceptions are cases where supplies are short or prices too high.

Army officials said demand for meat in this country is still far above supply and Argentine meat prices are lower than those in this country.

In the case of the Argentine meat purchases, officials said, Army Secretary Kenneth Royall ruled this is properly an exception under the law.

The American Meat Institute said the Argentine purchases will have "no effect whatever" on the domestic meat supply or price levels, because importation of fresh meat from Argentina for consumption in the United States is prohibited by statute. This law forbids bringing in meat from countries where foot-and-mouth disease is prevalent.

Even if it were permitted, the institute said, it would have little, if any effect on domestic prices because the four million pounds of beef, lamb and turkey purchased is only a small fraction of domestic meat consumption.

For Mistreatment

Wainwright Says Tojo Not to Blame

Tokyo, Aug. 5 (AP).—Jonathan Wainwright, retired hero of Batann, has sent a message to wartime Premier Hideki Tojo absolving him of personal responsibility for mistreatment Wainwright received while a prisoner, Tojo's attorney said today.

"General Wainwright asked me to deliver this message to Tojo," said George Francis Blewett, Philadelphia attorney who is serving as American counsel for Tojo—now awaiting judgment of the International War Crimes Court.

"Wainwright said: 'Tell Tojo that as one general to another, I want him to know that I do not hold him personally responsible for treatment I received while a prisoner of war. I know that as Premier and War Minister he could not be expected to know about such details.'"

Marshall Plan Nations May Ease Curbs on Travel

A plan to ease travel restrictions to lure dollar-bearing Americans to the Marshall Plan countries of western Europe was announced yesterday.

The goal is to make it possible for visitors to move through western Europe "almost as easily as they now may pass from one state to another in the United States," the Commerce Department said.

A travel commission, made up of representatives of 14 European countries, has been established. It was authorized at the recent meeting of the International Union of Official Travel Organizations at Oslo, Norway.

The commission will work with the Economic Cooperation Administration, which administers the European recovery program, and with the Commerce Department's Office of International Trade.

Part of the commission's program will be to improve transportation and hotel accommodations, lower travel costs and seek better services for visitors.

Chiang Faces Hard Ruling On Leaders

Nanking, China, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—President Chiang Kai-shek faced one of the most difficult decisions of his career today when leaders of his Kuomintang Party agreed the party should be reorganized and new officials chosen.

Chiang was challenged to yield some of his personal power, purge corrupt officials, and generally democratize the organization.

It was problematical whether he would abandon overnight certain party leaders, notably Chen Li-fu, head of the right-wing "C-C Clique" and vice president of the legislative Yuan (Parliament), observers said.

[Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, China's "Christian general," is on his way home to help plan the overthrow of Chiang Kai-shek's regime, the committee for a democratic Far Eastern policy siad today, according to the Associated Press.

[Feng charged the present United States Administration and the Republican Party with "betraying the Chinese people by supporting financially and militarily the most hated and corrupt Chiang Kai-shek regime."]

Hungarian Cabinet Gets Real Shake-Up

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The Hungarian cabinet underwent a reshuffle today in its first session since the election of Communist Arpad Szakasits as President.

Laszlo Rajk, Communist leader, was switched from Minister of Interior to Foreign Minister. Janos Kadar, deputy secretary-general of the United Workers Party, became Minister of Interior.

Istvan Kossa, a Communist, was named Minister of Industry to succeed Antal Ban, a right-wing Socialist who fled the country.

It was believed that Erik Molnar, Communist, the outgoing Foreign Minister and current head of the Hungarian delegation at the Danube conference in Belgrade, would be named Ambassador to Moscow.

The reason for the shakeup was not clear.

U. S. to Abolish Coal Export Quota System Sept. 1

Because of improved world coal supplies, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer yesterday announced the dropping of the coal export quota system as of September 1.

"Prospects are favorable," Sawyer said, "that United States mines will be able to produce in coming months enough coal of all types for both domestic and foreign customers, particularly since overseas demand for American coal has greatly declined."

Although the tonnage allocations to foreign countries will be suspended at the end of this month, export licenses will be required for foreign shipment "for the time being," the Secretary said.

However, he promised that as soon as the supply prospects for fall and winter heating are better established, the department will study the possibility of eliminating coal export controls entirely.

Israel Offers To Talk Peace

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 5 (AP).—Israel's government today made its first direct bid for peace negotiations with the Arab states.

The invitation followed hints by King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, key figure on the Arab side, that he is ready to consider a compromise to end the 11-week struggle.

The proposal was placed before Count Folke Bernadotte, U. N. mediator, by Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok at the end of a three-hour talk.

The request will be transmitted to the Arabs through the United Nations.

Previously the Arabs have said peace negotiations would be a recognition of the Jewish state, something they have refused to entertain.

Yesterday at Amman, however, King Abdullah said his "Arab nation does not exclude any possible compromise that secures justice and prevents unnecessary bloodshed."

Bernadotte and Shertok also discussed Arab refugees, the status of Jerusalem and other problems.

Reliable sources said the county opposed Israel's position that the Jewish army is at liberty to retaliate for Arab truce violations by striking anywhere. The count contended Jewish forces had only the right to repel an attack.

Shertok contradicted Bernadotte's statement in Amman that "both the Jews and Arabs have accepted in principle" the proposed withdrawal of all arms and armies from Jerusalem.

Shertok said Israel had only agreed to "discuss any or all means of stopping the fighting in Jerusalem."

Israel Takes Stand Against Arab Refugees

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The government of Israel refused to take back any large number of the 300,000 Arab refugees until a final Palestine settlement is reached.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok, in a letter responding to the United Nations Security Council's request for information on the refugee problem, declared that of a potential fifth column.

Scientists Demand Airing on A-Bomb

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Atomic scientists yesterday demanded that an undercover Government controversy over control of the Nation's stockpile of A-bombs be aired for public discussion.

In a statement, the Federation of American Scientists criticized American military chiefs for attempting to obtain custody of the deadly weapons and the Administration for keeping the issue secret.

Military versus civilian custody of atomic bombs is being debated in secret, without the knowledge or advice of the American people," said William A. Higinbotham, vice chairman of the federation.

Post Discloses Controversy

"The cloak of secrecy is maintained, not for security reasons, but as a matter of convenience, and the general public has had to content itself thus far with the unsubstantiated accounts of a few reporters. It appears that the Government is not taking the public into its confidence in a matter of greatest importance to their welfare."

Existence of the controversy between military and nonmilitary officials over custody of the bombs was reported in The Washington Post last month. It was disclosed then that the issue had been carried to President Truman and that an early decision was likely.

Mr. Truman announced his decision two weeks ago. In a little noticed comment accompanying publication of a report of the Atomic Energy Commission, he said that custody of atomic weapons will remain with the AEC.

Renewed Demands Seen

Members of the Federation of American Scientists said their statement of yesterday was issued because "military officials are sure to renew their demands next January" when a new Administration may be in office.

Higinbotham pointed out that the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 provides that all A-bombs be stored and guarded by the AEC, but that it empowers the President to transfer such weapons to the armed forces at any time "in the interest of national defense."

Under present arrangements federation officials said, the armed forces are allowed to carry out any tests or routines with A-bomb parts or dummies to familiarize themselves with the weapon. Also, they took part in the recent atomic tests at Eniwetok.

"But some military leaders want more than this," declared Higinbotham. "They use the deceptively plausible argument that since atomic bombs are military weapons, they should be entirely in the charge of the military."

Arguments in Case

Attacking this point, the federation official contends that if the armed forces obtained custody of the A-bombs, some subordinate military man might use one of them on his own authority.

Military circles, however, pointed out that under the law the President must approve each use of the bomb. An official ordering an A-bomb to be dropped without a specific directive from the Commander in Chief would be violating the law and standing orders.

Gist of the military case is that the divided responsibility for the "ultimate weapons" might be disastrous in some future "atomic Pearl Harbor," where in the confusion following an attack on the United States, red-tape might prevent use of the bomb in retaliation.

Anglican Body To Protest All Rule by Force

London, Aug. 5 (AP).—Episcopal Bishop Frank Juhan of Jacksonville, Fla., said today the Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Church will condemn not only communism but capitalism, "that is equally aggressive."

The secret sessions which began July 5 will conclude Friday. The conference report will be issued August 18.

"The conference is coming out very definitely against not only nationalism, but communism, totalitarianism and other 'isms,' including capitalism that is equally aggressive and tyrannical," Bishop Juhan said.

"The conference is tremendously concerned with great social problems that break down a stable home."

Bishop Edmund P. Danbridge of Tennessee, earlier said, intense nationalism is promoting international anarchy and constitutes "the greatest menace in the world today."

Bishop Danridge said he thought the church could help the present international situation, by "insisting that the law of God is superior to the will of any one nation" and by fosterng international friendship, cooperation and mutual understanding among the nations.

Bishop Thomas Caruthers of Charleston, S. C., agreed with Bishop Dandridge.

Unless we can get national interests subordinated to the interests of humanity as a whole, there is not much chance of getting permanent peace in' the world," Bishop Caruthers said.

"I believe that we should have a strong world federation which, being the final authority on world problems, would be capable of enforcing its decisions. I hope the United Nations can be strengthen in that way. I hope its word will be the final word in internation organization. Otherwise we will have anarchy."

Bishop Dandridge said of the conference:

"It is a conference in which everyone, no matter how large or small his diocese, no matter what his race, color or point of view is given an opportunity to express himself and have his thoughts considered. So I think when the conclusions are arrived at they will be the result of adequate debate and a common mind."

Nameless Donor Sends 5 Wilson Children $100

An anonymous donor yesterday gave police $100 for the five children of Floyd Wilson, Riverdale, Md., carpenter whose death sentence for murder was commuted to life Wednesday.

The money was left in an envelop addressed to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent.

The note said: "Your Excellency (is that the correct way?) please forward or deliver the enclosed to Mrs. Wilson." Another enclosed letter containing a $100 bill read: "Dear Mrs. Wilson: Buy the kids some candy bars for me."

The money will be given to Mrs. Wilson by Wilson's attorney, Charles E. Ford.

Wilson had been sentenced to death for the slaying of Milton E. Lowe in a grocery holdup, February 8, 1947.

11 Killed In Collision Of 2 Planes

Miami, Fla., Aug. 5. (AP).—A Navy plane and a light trainer collided north of Miami late today and the Florida highway patrol said 11 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage.

The two occupants of the light plane bailed out and were unhurt. The Navy would not say how many were aboard the Navy R4D, which corresponds to the C-47 and the DC-3.

The Navy plane was enroute from Norfolk, Va., to the Naval Air Station at suburban Opa Locka.

The collision occurred one mile northwest of Perry Field near Hollywood, Fla. Tommy Poe, instructor, who was flying the trainer and his student, John Hackett, 21, bailed out.

Lieut. Comdr. Ralph C. McGinley of the Naval Air Station here said it was not known how many naval men were aboard the plane nor if all were killed. He said no list would be available until next of kin had been notified.

J. H. Butts of Miami, who was attending a barbecue in the vicinity, said he saw the accident.

"The trainer suddenly shot up and climbed right into the big plane," he said. "A wing was torn right off the trainer and two men bailed out immediately.

3000 'March' On Capital for Rights Action

About 3000 members of the Civil Rights Congress and supporters of Henry A. Wallace—including at least two Communist youth groups—"marched" on Washington yesterday in special trains, buses and automobiles.

They came here primarily to buttonhole Congressmen in favor of civil rights legislation, such as the antipoll tax bill already shelved by Congress, as well as legislation for price controls and housing.

Later, they held their major demonstration in a rally at Sylvan Theater, where some 2500 cheered Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho) and Benjamin Davis, New York City councilman and one of the 12 Communist leaders indicted by a Federal grand jury.

Davis said the indicted leaders were not appearing as defendants, but as prosecutors of "the real conspirators in America who are attempting to carry through their crimes against the American people."

Senator Taylor, vice presidential candidate of the Progressive Party, was cheered as he termed the party "the only real chance for a square deal in every field." He attacked the "polite filibuster" that sopped the antipoll tax legislation.

Other speakers at the rally were Paul Robeson, Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.), Representative Leo Isaacson (ALP, N. Y.), and several CRC leaders. A message from Wallace was read.

Among the placards were those of the "East Bronx Youth Section, Communist Party," while another read, "Julius Fuschik Youth Club, Communist Party."

Len Goldsmith, executive director of the CRC, said President Truman "refused to see" George Marshall, CRC chairman, and Robeson, vice chairman and noted Negro singer. They had planned to ask for "Federal troops" to police elections in the South, Robeson said.

swer previously announced by the station.

The proposed rules would cover standard (AM) radio programs, FM and television.

Network officials in New York withheld comment pending a study of the commission's statement and its possible effect on their programs.

Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, reached at Rochester, N. Y., said the lawyers in his organization will study the regulations "and if changes are deemed necessary will make proper presentations to the FCC before September 10.

He said that in putting out the new rules, the commission was "exercising a duty required of it."

In a related development, the commission today published a finding by one of its hearing examiners that radio station WARL in Arlington, Va., violated the lottery section of the communications act in 1947 by broadcasting a program called "Dollars for Answers."

At half hour intervals, an announcer read a question and the correct answer, then called a telephone listed in the Washington, D. C., and suburban telephone directory and repeated the question. A cash award was paid for the correct answer.

WARL contended this was not a lottery and asked that the investigation be dropped because the station no longer carries the program. The commission refused to do so, and ordered oral arguments before making a final decision in the case.

30 More B-29s Britain-Bound

The Air Force announced yesterday that 30 Strategic Air Command B-29 Superfortresses will leave Tucson, Ariz., early today for routine training in England.

They will replace one of the two B-29 groups which recently were flown to Britain, the Air Force said.

The planes will replace the 301st Bomb Group now on a training mission in Europe. The 301st will return to its home base at Salina, Kans.

CIVIL RIGHTS DRIVE—Paul Robeson (tall man at right) Negro singer and cochairman of the Progressive Party, leads advocates of "effective civil rights legislation" parading on Pennsylvania ave. in front of the White House. They were among more than 2000 Civil Rights Congress members who came here from New York for public demonstrations

New York Woman Dies Picketing White House

A New York woman died yesterday while picketing the White House.

She was identified as Mrs. Arthur Cohen, 845 E. 163d st., the Bronx, about 60. Death was attributed to heart failure by Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, acting coroner, after the body was taken to the District Morgue.

She was a member of the Neighborhood Tenant Council, the Associated Press reported from New York.

'God Bless America' Sung for Pickets

To the tune of "God Bless America," 90 youthful members of the American Legion's boys' forum yesterday serenaded an estimated 3000 civil rights pickets in front of the White House. While waiting to enter about 3 p. m. they broke into the song.

The pickets, representing the Civil Rights Congress and the Progressive Party, responded with a few scattered boos and some chanted: "Jim Crow must go." When the boys left at 3:45 p. m. the episode was repeated.

Boys Forum Graduates Hear Truman

Nearly 100 teen-age boys, here the past week to study Government, yesterday afternoon got the last—and most impressive—word on it from President Truman.

The boys, in Washington under sponsorship of the American Legion, wound up their stay by shaking hands with the President at a White House visit.

Speaking to them in the rose garden, Mr. Truman said the future of this country rests with them. And, he added, this country's future is safe in their hands.

He told them they had come at "an opportune time," that they had found a special session of Congress "going full blast," and that he was as busy as can be "keeping the country's affairs in order."

Then the President said, "It's up to you of the next generation to keep this country on a firm footing. I'm perfectly willing to turn it over to you when my job is done."

Earlier, the youngsters, who represented 45 States, had graduated from the third annual American Legion boys forum. Yesterday morning they also paid Attorney General Tom Clark a visit and toured the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

President Calls Session a Failure

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called the special session of the Eightieth Congress a failure. He said it was apparent now that the Republican leadership will take no effective action on his proposals to curb high prices.

"Our people," he said, in an angry statement, "will not be satisfied with the feeble compromises that apparently are being concocted."

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, answering the Chief Executive, said the Republicans were perfectly willing to let the people decide who is right in the forthcoming election.

The day's events made it certain that the high cost of living will be a leading issue in the 1948 campaign.

Said Senator Taft, who is chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee:

"The President's statement highlights the issue for November. The Republican leaders do not intend to reimpose upon the American people the police state methods of price fixing, wage fixing and rationing ended by the President's own order.

"We do not intend to set up another bureaucracy of 75,000 new Federal employes to administer these controls. In ending controls in 1946 the President stated his own view that one commodity cannot be successfully controlled without a complete system of price fixing.

"We are proposing to add to the wide powers which already exist in the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury to restrain inflation. The President has many other powers to check expenditures and to reduce the pressure on scarce commodities."

Senator Brewster, Maine Republican, agreed with Taft that it is time "the American people had a chance to choose between the two viewpoints."

Speaker of the House Martin had "no comment" on the President's latest blast against Congress which he frequently has called the "worst" of all time.

Mr. Truman, who called for the special session the night he was nominated by the Democratic National Convention, made his statement about its failure at a White House news conference.

GOP Leaders Criticized

He charged that the Republican leaders had gone ahead with plans for a quick adjournment without obtaining the full information the Administration was prepared to offer in connection with anti-inflation proposals.

"In fact," Mr. Truman said, "the chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency refused a request for three Cabinet members to be given an opportunity to testify. . . ."

"The Secretary of Agriculture," he continued, "was prepared to offer a program directed to the problem of excessive food prices.

"The Secretary of Commerce was prepared to discuss with the committee the question of shortages of industrial materials and what could be done to correct the situation.

"The Secretary of the Interior was prepared to submit a program dealing with the proper distribution and prices of coal, heating oil and other fuels."

Views Refused, He Says

After repeating that the House Committee on Banking and Currency had refused to hear the views of his Cabinet officers, Mr. Truman said:

"In the absence of such basic information, I do not see how the committee can make an intelligent decision on issues which so gravely affect the welfare of the American people and their standard of living."

Mr. Truman said that another House Committee—Ways and Means—refused to give any consideration to the recomendation for an excess profit tax, "which is necessary to offset the inflationary effects of the tax bill passed last spring."

"It would appear," the President continued, "that the Republican leaders are unwilling to extend to the Congress an opportunity to vote on the issues of direct price control, the authority to impose allocations and priorities, and the other elements of a balanced program which I submitted to the Congress, including provisions to strengthen and reinforce rent control.

"It now appears that so far the Congress has failed to discharge the tasks for which I called it into special session. It is my hope, therefore, that the Republican leadership will reconsider their present plans for quick adjournment and will take action upon the recommendations I have submitted."

He said there was still time for Congress to fulfill its responsibilities to the American people, and he concluded with the statement that the people would not be satisfied with the "feeble compromises" that are apparently being concocted.

After Mr. Truman had finished reading his statement, a reporter asked if he planned to call leaders of Congress to the White House and communicate it to them.

Hasn't Seen GOP Leaders

The President said he had talked with Democratic leaders, but not Republican leaders.

"Mr. President," a reporter asked, "in view of this, why don't you call in the Republican leaders?"

Mr. Truman said he would be glad to see them at any time, but he didn't feel that there was anything he could say that would change their viewpoint.

"In other words, you don't think this last-minute appeal will have any effect?"

The Chief Executive said he doubted it very much.

8-State Alarm Out for Jersey Schoolgirl

Camden, N. J., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Almost eight weeks ago, Mrs. Ella Horner kissed her pretty 11-year-old daughter goodby and put her on a bus for a week's vacation at the seashore with school chums.

Today, an eight-State police search was under way for blue-eyed Florence (Sally) Horner and a convicted 56-year-old rapist who persuaded her mother to let the child accompany him to Atlantic City, N. J.

"I don't think my little girl has stayed with that man all this time of her own accord," Mrs. Horner said.

She identified a rogues gallery picture of former convict Frank La Salle as the man who met her daughter at the bus to take her to visit his "wife and children in Atlantic City."

The man was known to Mrs. Horner only as a "Frank Warner," one of La Salle's aliases. La Salle was convicted on five charges of rape in Camden five years ago.

Mrs. Horner, a widow, said she had frequent telephone calls from Sally up until three weeks ago. Last Saturday a "strange" note arrived from her.

It said that "Mr. Warner and I are going on a trip to Baltimore." After promising to be home by the end of this week, Sally wrote "I don't want to write any more."

That was the last Mrs. Horner heard from her.

Move to Change Voting Day Hit By Dr. LeBeau

A proposal to change Arlington School Board elections from November to May was opposed yesterday by Dr. Oscar R. LeBeau, former chairman of the Citizens Committee for School Improvement.

A petition asking for a referendum on he change has been submitted to the Arlington Circuit Court.

According to LeBeau, change of the school election date would tend to keep people from the polls, including Government workers who would find it "impractical and difficult" to vote in a special election.

He charged the date change is desired by "Arlington's machine politicians."

Government Girl Screams, Street Molester Flees

The ear-splitting screams of a 23-year-old Government girl early yesterday sent her would-be molester fleeing.

Miss Catherine Frank, 1761 Hobart st. nw., a secretary in the Army's food administration office, told police a tall, thin man jumped from behind a tree and grabbed her about 12:30 a. m. a block from her home.

Persons in the 1700 block of Hobart st. heard the screams and called police. The man, described as about six feet tall, thin, dark-haired and wearing a light tan suit, fled east on Hobart st., she said.

Gang War Suggested In Torture Slaying

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 5 (AP).—Authorities today suggested gang motives in the torture-slaying of George (Red) Smyth, 28-year-old Chicago robber. His body was found last night stuffed in the trunk of his expensive automobile on a side road, 30 miles southwest of Chicago.

A member of the Chicago "Tunnel gang" of currency exchange robbers, Smyth was out on $65,000 bail pending his trial for armed robbery.

One police theory was that Smyth had been marked for death for failure to contribute to the defense fund for two members of the gang recently sent to prison for one of the currency exchange robberies.

Curbs on Credit Passed by House

least partial inclusion of these at today's meeting of the Senate Banking Committee.

2. By a 164-to-27 standing vote, the House approved a 32-year, interest-free loan of 65 million dollars to the United Nations to build its permanent headquarters in New York City. The bill passed the Senate last session and now goes to the White House to become the first and very probably the last of Mr. Truman's 11 special session points fully met by the Republican Congress.

Having passed these two measures, the House sat back awaiting the outcome of the Senate housing struggle. A limited housing measure and possibly liberalized displaced persons admissions are the only two other items on its agenda. The displaced persons decision was likewise up to the Senate. A Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.) was still talking over the possible DP move last night.

Result of Old Feud

The unheralded Senate housing revolt, flareback of a two-year feud between House and Senate leaders, broke as the Senate Banking Committee met for what was billed as routine approval of a subcommittee housing bill designed to stimulate production of low-cost homes and large-scale rental projects through Government credit.

The modified bill, carrying House and Senate GOP leadership approval, had been previously drawn by a group headed by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), and was apparently oiled for quick House-Senate approval.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) upset the calm by moving to substitute the T-E-W bill, carrying public housing, slum clearance and rural housing provisions recommended by the President and previously approved by the Senate but stolidly opposed by the House leadership.

Chairman Tobey voted with Flanders and five Democrats to make the vote 7 to 5 for the T-E-W bill and the battle was on.

The debate continued even after reporters were called into the committee room to hear the results.

"It will mean no legislation at all," argued McCarthy.

"If that's the case, it will show where the responsibility lies," shot back Tobey.

McCarthy Objects

The debate later resumed on the Senate floor, where acting Senate Majority Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), sticking to the Saturday night adjournment goal, called up the T-E-W surprise package by unanimous consent.

McCarthy promptly moved to substitute the modified nonpublic housing measure acceptable to the House GOP leadership, warning that the T-E-W measure wouldn't even get to conference in the House.

Democratic leaders, pleased as Punch with a windfall, and Republican leaders, committed to sidetrack public housing this session at least, last night were counting noses for today's showdown vote. It promised to be close.

The Senate last April 21 refused to strike public housing from the T-E-W bill by a 49-to-35 vote. Thus some vote switching was necessary to block it now. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), chief author of the T-E-W bill, has already indicated he will change his. He intends to push the bill next session but last week told the Senate it will add to inflationary pressures at this time.

Tobey Criticizes Wolcott

In the Senate, Tobey at first indirectly and later by name charged House Banking Chairman Wolcott, backed by the House leadership, with blocking public housing and delivering an "ultimatum" to the Senate.

"Where has government of the people, for the people and by the people gone," Tobey said, "if one man, the head of a powerful committee of one branch of Congress, may say: 'We will not let the people's representatives vote on public housing, slum clearance and urban rehabilitation.'"

Tobey and McCarthy tangled repeatedly as the Wisconsin Republican took the floor to explain his subcommittee substitute. Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) admonished them to "be in order and address the chair."

Once Vandenberg firmly rebuked Tobey for referring to House members by name. Vandenberg quoted from Jefferson's manual to show Tobey's personal references breached Senate rules. Tobey said he named the House leaders in the heat of emotion and thanked Vandenberg for the admonition.

In the discussion leading up to the rebuke, McCarthy argued there is not enough time to override objections of House leaders to the T-E-W bill. He said he was authorized to say they "will not take public housing or slum clearance."

"Who is this House leadership?" snapped Tobey. "Is it Jesse Wolcott? Is it Ralph Gamble? (Representative Gamble of New York.) Is it Joe Martin?"

McCarthy quoted Wolcott as saying the House would not take public housing. He said he thought Wolcott spoke for the leadership.

Tobey repeated it was "one man's will" that was blocking the bill. He said a House "triumvirate" he identified as Speaker Martin, House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) and Wolcott "has the power to say it shall not pass."

McCarthy said it was unfair to question the motives of members of the House, and Vandenberg's rebuke followed.

Hardly had the House sped the GOP's credit curb bill to the Senate before Tobey broadly hinted to newsmen there may be more Senate Banking Committee "news" this morning.

Tobey said he personally thinks Congress should give the President the limited price, rationing and allocation authority he asked "until we come back here in January."

The anti-inflation measure shot through the House with 23 more votes than the two-thirds majority required by the seldom-used rules suspension procedure. Fifty Democrats, mostly from the South, joined Republicans in support of the bill.

The House credit curbs are superimposed on a Senate-passed bill authorizing the Federal Reserve Board to impose controls on time-payment buying up to March 15, 1949. The House added authority for the board to increase reserve requirements of member banks until next March 15. In addition it required every Federal Reserve bank to maintain reserves in gold certificates of not less than 25 per cent against its deposits and not less than 40 per cent against its Federal Reserve notes in circulation. Twenty-five per cent in each category is the present requirement.

Monroney Attacks Bill

Republican members of the House Banking Committee filed a report blaming the Democratic Administration for failure to stop inflation and hitting Administration loose money policies and heavy exports. They said the Truman-recommended controls would retard industrial production, revive black markets and encourage tax evasions.

Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) attacked the GOP bill as a "phony" in the debate that followed. Monroney said the bill jeopardized the Government's program to maintain the value of its own bonds.

Representative Wolcott denied this, contending that some Government bonds have increased in value "in response" to the Banking committee's action.

The 65-million-dollar U. N. loan subsequently approved by the House authorizes the RFC to lend the United Nations 25 million dollars immediately to speed construction of buildings at its New York headquarters. The rest of the loan would be appropriated after the next Congress meets in January.

Leading debate for the bill, Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) said Congress invited the United Nations to make its home in New York and to be consistent should approve the loan.

Heading the opposition, Representative Frederick C. Smith (R., Ohio) challenged the 164-to-27 standing vote for the bill on the grounds that a quorum was not present. Reserve Republican forces crowded in from the cloakroom and Speaker Martin counted a quorum of 236.

CIO Declares GOP Serves Big Business

The CIO asserted last night that the Republicans "have to take most of the blame" for the "bad record" of the Eightieth Congress on labor and social welfare legislation.

"They had it in their power to pass laws that would have helped us all," the CIO said. "But they decided they'd rather help big business."

The statement was made in the CIO's monthly economic outlook publication.

"The record of Congress so far ought to make us all fighting mad . . . and the Republicans have to take most of the blame because they were in clear control of both houses of Congress," it said.

It listed seven "major domestic issues" on which it said Congress "served big business instead of us Americans."

Meanwhile, both the CIO and the giant independent Machinists Union blasted Congress for "refusing" to let their representatives testify in favor of strong inflation curbs.

Unorganized Here

Buyer Strike Cuts Into Meat Sales

Organized resistance to high meat prices was reported mounting rapidly across the country yesterday, while only scattered buyer resistance was under way here.

Arthur E. Dennis, vice president of the National Meat Council, said the buyers' action had reduced sales sharply on a national level. Despite such moves, however, he predicted no major change on the price scene.

Drops in meat sales, in some instances the result of fully organized "price strikes," were reported in Philadelphia, Detroit, Denver, Minneapolis, and other cities.

Meat prices here remained firm—at high levels—with most dealers predicting even further increases next week, despite a few spot drops in prices of hogs and cattle at some Midwest markets yesterday.

Local prices yesterday varied widely from store to store, with many merchants reducing some items and marking up other more salable meats.

In one food chain, veal loin chops increased from 75 to 89 cents a pound; lean, boneless stew meat rose from 65 to 79 cents.

On the other hand, short ribs declined in price from 53 to 48 cents; lamb rib chops went from 95 to 85 cents, and veal shank, bone in, declined to 35 from 39 cents.

Another chain listed choice sirloin, choice porterhouse and loin lamb chops at $1.29 a pound. Top round steak was $1.10 a pound.

At a supermarket selected calf liver sold for $1.39 a pound.

One independent market was selling loin lamb chops, grade double A, at $1.38 a pound—the same as last week. Porterhouse was down to 98 cents a pound on grade A, compared with $1.15 for double A—the finest grade—last week.

Aim 'Overshot,' PBA Planning Space Re-Rent

Admitting that its program of cutting down on Government-rented space had "overshot the mark," the Public Buildings Administration has made plans to re-rent space in the old Moses building, at the southwest corner of 11th and F sts nw.

Personnel overflows from the Federal Housing Administration and the National Military Establishment will occupy 101,000 square feet that PBA has committed itself to lease in the building.

PBA, which Government-rented space from a wartime peak of almost seven million square feet in 1945 to two and three-quarter million square feet this year, had let its last lease at the Moses building expire last April. Rental negotiations with Goldnamer Associates, who bought the building several years ago, are nearly completed, PBA officials reported.

Viscose Plant Pact Gives 16-Cent Raises

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Officials of the CIO Textile Workers Union have approved an agreement giving 18,000 workers in seven American Viscose Corp. plants pay increases averaging 16 cents hourly.

The union said the pay increases would go to workers in plants at Marcus Hook, Lewistown and Meadville, Pa.; Parkersburg and Nitro, W. Va., and Front Royal and Roanoke, Va. The new contract will go to locals at the seven plants for ratification.

How to make milk into Baby's Favorite Dessert

RENNET DESSERTS WITH JELLY
2 cups milk (not canned)
1 package "Junket" Rennet Powder, vanilla flavor
Tart red jelly, grape jam, cranberry jelly, etc.
Prepare rennet dessert mixture according to directions on package — takes only a couple of minutes. Pour mixture at once, while still liquid, over jelly or jam in dessert glasses. Do not move until set —about 15 minutes. Then chill. Just before serving top with a spoonful of jelly or with chopped nuts (for adults).

New Car Trade-in Deals Draw Fire

An additional 35 to 40 complaints of unfair sales practices by new car dealers in the District poured into the House Subcommittee to Investigate Questionable Trade Practices yesterday.

The new charges followed disclosure by the House group that it has been making a spot check in this metropolitan area preliminary to a probable public hearing.

John T. M. Reddan, committee counsel, said many of the complaints charged that dealers held substantial deposits for lengthy periods or failed to deliver vehicles in spite of long waits. The most frequent charge, however, was that new car dealers gave "very low trade-ins," profiting not only on the sale of the new car, but on the resale of the trade-in vehicle.

As a result of this charge, the committee will probably check into the used car market locally, too, Reddan declared. He said a public hearing on both types of sales would probably be held early in September.

Books Behind, Auto Loan Firm Closed 30 Days

The Board for the Revocation of Licenses yesterday suspended for one month the money lender's license of the Auto Loan Service, Inc., of 638 Pennsylvania ave. se.

The action was taken on testimony presented by Chatham T. Nottingham, superintendent of licenses, who testified that during the period from July 2 through July 7 he made several trips to the loan company's offices and found that the registers of the firm were not available to him.

When, on July 7, Nottingham finally was able to see the records, he said he found the small loan register of the firm was one month behind in its entries.

Additional Police Are Favored In Prince Georges

Prince Georges County Civic Federation last night called for a "thorough study" of the county police set-up with an eye to increasing the present force of 36 officers.

A motion to have a committee ask the county commissioners to expand the police force came after a talk by County Police Supt. Ralph W. Brown.

Brown said the force is now undermanned in that the 36 officers must cover an estimated 500 square miles—the same size area, he said, as the Montgomery County force covers with about three times the number of personnel.

The federation also appointed Fred W. Gast of Cheverly, as chairman of a committee to seek flood control in the county, particularly in the frequently flooded Peace Cross area at Bladensburg rd. and Defense hwy.

Raedy Accuses Prosecutor

holic content of .15 per cent or more, we prosecute the cases. If the urinalysis shows an alcoholic content of less than .15 per cent, we automatically nolle prosse the case," he explained.

"We do this to protect the innocent. All of the men in this office are instructed about this when they first join the office," King stated. He said the rule is based on the findings of doctors that a .15 per cent alcoholic content is the first point at which a person is known to be intoxicated.

Last September 11, Judge Raedy forfeited a collateral of $200 on a charge of leaving after colliding. The charge grew out of an accident last August 19, when her automobile collided with another car at 1st and K sts. nw..

From the first, Judge Raedy contended she was not driving the car. She pleaded innocent to the charge but did not appear personally in court, electing instead to forfeit collateral.

Washington Loan Officers Promoted

Alfred H. Lawson, president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., announced yesterday that the board of directors had promoted Ralph Endicott, formerly treasurer, and Herbert W. Primm, formerly real estate officer, to be vice presidents of the company. George M. Fisher and Leonard Marbury were appointed first and second vice presidents, respectively.

George O. Schweinhaut, formerly assistant treasurer, was made treasurer. Edward L. Brady, formerly assistant real estate officer, was made real estate officer; Francis M. Wilcox, formerly assistant treasurer, was made assistant real estate officer, and Jack H. Wild was elected assistant treasurer.

Endicott, a native of Atlantic City, has been with the company since 1919. He is a graduate of the Atlantic City High School, studied accounting at the Walton School of Commerce, and was a graduate of the first class of the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. He served overseas in World War I in the United States Navy. Mr. Endicott will be vice president in charge of the West-End office, at 17th and G sts. nw.

Primm, a native of St. Louis, is a graduate of Tech High School, Washington, D. C., and studied at George Washington University. He has been with the company since 1916, and is a member of the Washington Real Estate Board.

Mr. Schweinhaut, a native Washingtonian, has been with the company since 1917, and is a graduate of Business High School, Strayers Business College and the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University.

Brady is a native Washingtonian, and is a graduate of Gonzaga High School. He has been with the company since 1909, and has been an assistant real estate officer since 1930.

Wilcox, a native Washingtonian, is a graduate of Technical High School, Washington, D. C., and also attended the American Institute of Banking. He has been with the company since 1917.

Wild, born in Martinsburg, W. Va., is a graduate of Technical High School and Strayers Business College, and holds the degrees of BCS and MCS.

NEW AGENT: George Walsh has just been appointed city ticket agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway here. He succeeds R. T. Orr, who is transferred to Buffalo as traveling passenger agent for the C. P. R. Walsh, formerly of Montreal, is an Air Force veteran of World War II, and has been with the company for nearly 20 years. He has been assistant chief clerk in the general passenger department at Montreal for the last two years.

Calvert's Man of Distinction Survives Innuendo Detector

By J. A. Livingston

Officially Carroll E. Mealey is a deputy commissioner and John L. Huntington is an assistant deputy commissioner for the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Unofficially they are detectors of double meanings. To them a whisky advertisement must be pure, simple, and unspiked by innuendoes, inferences, or psychological blandishments.

Livingston

When Distillers Corp.-Seagrams plugged Calvert whisky with the assertion that "Clear heads call for Calvert," the Mealey - Huntington innuendo detector nearly fell apart. "Clear head" was a clear innuendo: No hangover the morning after.

Although Mealey and Huntington put the nay on "Clear heads call for Calvert," the legal staff of the Alcohol Tax Unit felt that "Clear heads choose Calvert" was okay. Mealey and Huntington decided to take a poll. ATU agents asked Washingtonians, "What does this mean to you?" pointing to a clear-head ad. Four out of ten felt sure that Calvert was the antidote for Bromo-Seltzer. That, in the Mealey-Huntington book is clear evidence of double meaning. They confidently hope that Distillers Seagrams will remove "clear heads" from liquor advertising.

THE "sunny morning flavor," which advertising copy writers attribute to Schenley's Reserve whisky, made Mealey reach for words: "I have never considered that a sunny morning was anything that could be experienced through the gustatory senses or reduced to terms of flavor or taste." Result: He sent out his pollsters. Half the people interviewed decided that Schenley's Reserve whisky was headache proof. At last reports, Schnley officials have decided to leave sunny mornings to Keats, Shelley and Shakespeare.

Mealey and Huntington are censors under pressure. Senators Reed (R., Kans.) and Capper (R., Kans.) and Johnson (D., Colo.) favor legislation defining as misleading any advertisement which suggests by "statement, word, design, device, sound, or any combination thereof" that the use of an alcoholic beverage (a) is beneficial to health or physical upbuilding, (b) will increase social or business standing or prestige, or (c) is traditional in American family life. Senator Capper would even bar liquor advertising from interstate commerce.

Compared to the rough, turn-of-the-century days, modern liquor advertising is sedate and diffident. In old newspaper files, you'll discover that Lauber's Gin is "good for the kidneys." Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky pictured the "oldest man in the world—vigorous at 118 years of age." Implication: Life-prolonging powers. Not too long ago Hunter Baltimore Rye was advertised as "tonical, delicious, cheery, comforting, and strengthening." More recently there was "You get a better job—keep keen, keep to Kessler's."

MEALEY and Huntington frown on animals in liquor ads. Pets attract the child's eye, might encourage a too-early interest in fermented refreshments. Santa Claus is out too — for the same reason. Ditto athletes: Youngsters might be led to think that alcohol breeds star fullbacks of record-breaking milers. And chivalry forbids putting a woman in a whisky ad.

As a result of this governmental solicitude, liquor advertising has become increasingly stereotyped—a picture of the trade mark as in Four Roses; historical paintings as used by Philadelphia whisky; or portraits as in Calvert's "man of distinction."

Incidentally, at hearings before the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, more complaints were leveled at Calvert's "man" than at any other ad. Drys asserted it implied that drinking whisky was a mark of prestige. Calvert's man passes legal muster and the Mealey-Huntington innuendo test. However, suggestions have been made that in the interest of sound public relations he ought to go.

Right now Mealey and Huntington are immediately concerned about a numbers device—for instance, 5 and 7 Crown whisky and Gibson's Selected 8. People might think the oversized numerals on the labels refer to age, which—most emphatically—they don't. ATU agents are out polling.

Mealey urges advertising men to "avoid innuendo and appeals to women and children." He'd shun liquor advertising in Sunday papers, the use of the radio (children listen), and he foresees growing problems as the result of television. As he sees it, if hard liquor advertisers aren't voluntarily discreet, Congress will inevitably act to cut down their area of discretion.

Seaboard Asks Approval Of $4,200,000 Issue

The Seaboard Air Line Railroad Co. yesterday asked the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to issue $4,200,000 of equipment trust certificates. The proceeds will be used in a proposed $5,628,850 purchase of 950 new freight cars and 13 air-conditioned sleeping cars.

1948 Steel Shipments Set Half Year Record

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Record shipment of 32,250,000 net tons of finished steel products in the first half of 1948 was reported today by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Highest previous mark for any half year was 31,766,000 tons in the first six months of wartime 1944.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular in fairly active dealings today with liquidation on big crop ideas, which were largely offset by good trade buying for mill and export account. Final prices were 7 cents a bale lower to 35 cents higher.

Two additional private forecasts placed the cotton crop around 14 million bales, anticipating the first Government estimate for 1948 production next Monday. The average of five leading private reports was 13,870,000 bales which would bring the crop to its highest level since 1937. A leading spot firm, in survey, estimated a 5 to 10 per cent increase in yields per acre over last season and placed the crop condition at 81 per cent of normal of the next end-July on condition in 11 years.

The market drew part of its support from trade covering in December futures against sales of cotton to Japan.

Copper Wire Boosted

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Copper wire prices went up today, reflecting the 2-cent boost this week in the price of refined copper, now quoted by most producers at 23½ cents a pound. General Cable Co., Anaconda Wire & Cable Co. and Revere Copper & Brass Co. all increased prices.

Hot Potatoes

No one seems to know quite what to do with all the potatoes the Government is acquiring under the price-support program. This is perhaps the most glaring case in which the support program is out of key with the needs of the times. The Government is losing four million dollars a week on the potato-support program, according to Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, and the total net loss over the last five years has run in excess of 170 million dollars. Meanwhile, the potatoes themselves, being a bulky, watery product, are not easy to dispose of. The Department of Agriculture estimates that the cheapest and most efficient way would be merely to dump them. But there are moral objections to destroying food, and, consequently, the potatoes are going into free-lunch programs, flour, starch, feed and alcohol.

The present difficulty derives from two factors: declining potato consumption because of a generally higher standard of living, and a greatly increased yield per acre through the use of insecticides such as DDT. Meanwhile, as output goes up and demand goes down, the Government is tied to a program which calls for support of potato prices at 90 per cent of parity, a measure that was extended by this Congress to cover the entire 1948 crop, after which price support will be placed on a flexible basis ranging from 60 to 90 per cent of parity.

Whatever the criticisms that may be made of the Department of Agriculture for artificially holding up the price of food, as in the present case of grain sorghums, obviously it is unfair to blame the department for merely carrying out the dictate of Congress on potatoes. Indeed, former Secretary Anderson several times pleaded with Congress to revise the potato program, but his plea fell on the deaf ears of the farm bloc, with whom an inflexible level was still the rule. It was bad public business to place potatoes in a preferential position by guaranteeing 90 per cent support for so long a period, and what is now happening to potatoes is likely to happen to other commodities singled out for favored treatment.

Assassination

It is deplorable to see a man of John W. Studebaker's eminence lending himself to the kind of tar-flinging contest now being conducted on Capitol Hill. Yet that is the only inference that can be drawn from the nature and timing of Mr. Studebaker's charges against Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing. The former Commissioner of Education accuses Mr. Ewing of hindering the exposure of "the tactics and dangers of communism" in the schools. Senators Bridges and Eastland have risen magnificently to this bait with a call for Mr. Ewing's resignation. The former has gone a step further by asserting that Ewing should be "sent home where he belongs or deported to some other country."

It is necessary to look beneath the surface for the explanation of Mr. Studebaker's charges, just as is was necessary to go beyond the financial complaint expressed in his letter of resignation last month to understand the real reason why he left the Office of Education. The essential conflict between Messrs. Studebaker and Ewing is one of authority. Mr. Ewing has been assiduously building up the Federal Security Agency from an amalgam of quasi-independent agencies into a centralized department in preparation for the eventual transformation of FSA into a Federal Department of Welfare at Cabinet level. Mr. Studebaker, who had been long accustomed to semiautonomous operation as head of the Office of Education, refused to be assimilated.

It so happens that Senators Bridges and Eastland probably will have their wish; as a top Democratic strategist Mr. Ewing could hardly expect to remain in FSA after a change of administration. One does not have to be an apologist for Mr. Ewing, however, to detect an air of vindictiveness in Mr. Studebaker's remarks—remarks which were sent in letter form not only to Mr. Ewing but also to the congressional appropriations committees. Mr. Ewing may have been ruthless both in administrative practice and in his dictates of obedience. But the merit of Mr. Studebaker's complaints is obscured by the smear of communism in which he couches them.

No sound administrative policy would be possible if subordinates were free to follow publicly courses opposite from those of their superiors. To Mr. Studebaker this requirement may seem to be censorship; but certainly the publication and speech clearance procedure insisted on in FSA as in many Federal agencies is merely necessary assurance of continuity in policy. What Mr. Studebaker said in one speech on which he claims FSA delayed distribution is unimpeachable. "We must," he declared, "place first among all educational objectives the development of a better understanding of and a more zealous dedication to the defense and implementation of this democratic faith." These are words that need saying—but they would have more force if they were divorced from the partisan atmosphere injected into the disputation by Mr. Studebaker.

Twilight Zone

One of the worst features of the branding that is going on in the Thomas Committee and the entry of our society into the twilight zone between government by law and government by lawlessness may be illustrated in the case of Mr. Alger Hiss. Mr. Hiss, now the president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, used to be a top official in the State Department, and went with President Roosevelt to the ill-fated Yalta Conference in February, 1945. For many months his name has been bandied about as "one of the guys they've got something on." The whisper emanated from rumors about the courtroom in New York where a grand jury was looking into the espionage charges. The particular reaction that we heard from time to time was, "That's curious, he was one of those who advised Roosevelt to give Russia three votes in the United Nations." It is a human failing that, once the poison finger is pointed at a person, gossipers will keep on pointing at everything even remotely connected with the poisonee by way of establishing proof of guilt. In other words, a breath is made into a whirlwind—the kind of whirlwind that destroys.

Yesterday Mr. Alger Hiss explained his connection with both the plural voting decision and the decision providing for the big power veto. As to the latter, this would clearly have been demanded by the Senate, even if Moscow had not suggested it. As to plural voting, Mr. Alger Hiss said that such an important decision was, of course, made at the top level, that, in fact, he was against it, and that he had so expressed himself at meetings of the American delegation. It was a fool decision, as we said at the time, directly contrary to the Dumbarton Oaks principle providing for "the sovereign equality of all peace-loving states," and arose, as we delicately suggested, out of the plural personality of Mr. Roosevelt. It was made worse by the shameful disingenuousness about it that went on for weeks after Yalta in the White House and the State Department. At last the Administration owned up to its pledge to Stalin, but nothing could be done about it, for the ailing President, whose illness also was denied to The Washington Post at the time, had already committed the American Government.

The point, insofar as Mr. Hiss is concerned, is the effect on our diplomacy of the effort to tarnish his reputation. Our diplomats have jobs to do in maintaining American rights and principles and in making live-and-let-live arrangements with foreign governments. Are they going to be tagged just because they happened to play any role at all at conferences that turned out badly—tagged as treasonable as well as responsible and dumb? That is a legitimate question arising out of the Alger Hiss story. Among the diplomats the possibility will itself encourage an undermining of the quality that a diplomat must bring to his trade, viz., resilience. He may feel he's got to be tough and rigid in order not to be suspected later. This is altogether apart from the mutual suspicion that is being introduced into personal relations within Government departments as a result of the breaking down of constitutional guarantees of protection of the individual.

Excess Profits

Although there is not the slightest chance that Congress will pass the Administration's excess profits tax bill, its introduction focuses attention on the question of the effectiveness of this kind of tax as a means of curing inflation. The Washington Post believes that the arguments for prompt repeal of the wartime excess profits tax are as valid today as they were in 1945 when the Secretary of the Treasury, who was then Fred M. Vinson, declared that it was "too erratic a tax engine to turn loose for even one full year of the postwar period."

It was true then and it is true today that a tax of this nature discourages new investment and thus retards industrial expansion. During the war, with efforts concentrated on production for war, the inhibiting effect of the excess profits tax was welcomed as a means of holding down production of goods not essential to the war effort. After the war ended, the necessity of speeding up reconversion called for removal of a tax of this kind. And that removal has contributed importantly to the present high state of industrial activity.

The Washington Post recently pointed out that reimposition of excess profit taxes might—indeed, almost certainly would—result in a reversion to the wartime practice of distributing a greater share of earnings in the form of salaries and other emoluments to officers and workers. Resistance to demands for further wage increases would be weakened, incentives to increase productive efficiency, stimulated by hope of profits, would be impaired, and the end result might well be higher rather than lower prices for a reduced volume of goods.

If there were convincing evidence that current profits point to unscrupulous profiteering, reimposition of excess profits taxes would be justified, despite the dangerous potentalities of such a method of control. But there is no such evidence; on the contrary, the Department of Commerce states that after allowance for inventory-valuation adjustments 1947 corporate profits before taxes "represented about the same proportion of total income originating in corporate business as they did in 1929 and were below the comparable wartime peak." Moreover, profits after taxes either before or after inventory-valuation adjustment represented a lower percentage of income originating in corporate business in 1947 than in 1929. For the present year to date, profit levels are slightly above the average of 1947 but below the level of the last quarter of 1947. It is also worth noting that profits after Federal taxes per dollar of sales were lower in the first quarter of 1948 than they were in 1947 in case of all but very large corporations that presumably benefit from the economies of large-scale production.

The next Congress might well undertake an analysis of the profits statements of large corporations whose price policies set the standards for competitors and whose prices are to some extent subject to managerical control. But this is not the time for launching such an inquiry, which, incidentally, should precede (not follow) comprehensive adjustments of the corporation tax system that are unquestionably needed. Even Marriner Eccles, who was one of the few public men to oppose abolition of excess profits taxation when the Administration proposed it in 1945, objects to reimposition of the tax at the present time. He concludes that it is too difficult an undertaking during a short congressional session. Moreover, he favors a general revision of the tax structure instead of piecemeal changes.

It must also be kept in mind that a large proportion of profits from corporate enterprise has been used to build up inventories and to finance improvements and extensions. As the report of the Council of Economic Advisers states: "It is significant that the major source of corporate funds has continued to be those sums retained from current receipts as offsets to depreciation and depletion charges and as undistributed earnings. Indications are that this source will be even more important in 1948 as a whole than during last year." In other words, the funds required to keep our industries operating at high and increasing capacity are being provided to a large extent from company profits. If any considerable proportion of those funds were to be taken over by the Treasury, many concerns would be severely handicapped and the public would suffer accordingly from the resultant decrease of production.

The proposed excess profits tax measure, to be sure, recognizes the danger. For it proposes to charge off the cost of "emergency" facilities through tax reductions within a five-year period, but only after a special committee appointed by the President had approved the undertaking.

Meat Boycotts

Housewives are on the warpath and some energetic ladies are leading movements to boycott their butchers until meat prices come down. These sporadic consumer efforts to curb inflation have a momentary effect on retail prices of meat in localities where stores are left with unsold meat on hand. But they do not correct the conditions that give rise to soaring meat prices. The fact is that meat is scarce while money is superabundant. What the economist calls effective demand—that is, demand coupled with ability to pay the ruling prices for the desired meat—is high enough to take away the meat offered for sale. So long as that condition exists, it is safe to bet that meat prices will remain at high levels.

For a few days or a week or so, the flow of meat from packers through distributors to retail customers may be spasmodically retarded by localized boycotts of the kind now being publicized. But the average man or woman will succumb before long to the lure of the attainable and buy what he or she wants if he or she can. To be sure, many people are unable to purchase as much meat as they have formerly been accustomed to eat and their enforced economies keep meat prices from going still higher. That kind of consumer abstention, the result of limited means, is the only sort of price-restraining factor that can be relied on to work day in and day out until meat supplies become more abundant.

Under a free market system what there is goes to the highest bidder. If it were feasible to ration meat, limited supplies would be distributed among many more people but rationing would be accompanied by a free-for-all scramble that would doubtless clear meat counters before the last customer arrived on the scene. At least it happened that way when meat rationing was in effect. And there is every reason to assume that reimposition of rationing would have the same results.

Relief will come eventually because lower prices for grains brought about by abundant crops will induce livestock producers to increase their severely depleted breeding herds. That will take time, and before meat prices decline they are likely to go higher owing to a decrease in slaughterings of animals withheld for breeding purposes. In the long run the consumer will benefit by simply accepting the fact that at present there isn't enough meat to go around and adjusting his purchases to the size of his pocketbook.

EXILES

Whatever it is that the sole ear hears,
When the rest of the night world is still,
In the long cold whistle of a far freight train
Puffing on some distant hill;

Or the single heart knows at the clear call
Of taps blown through the darkening barrack square,
Silver and clear, as final as the death of day,
The last echo suspended in hushed air;

Or the solitary mind that in the deep of night
Hears the ship's bell sound a single chime,
And then the steady wash of foam against the keel,
Cutting through darkness and through time—

Whatever it heard is not the sound itself
But the memory of another hour and place,
An emptiness of something gone forever now;
A time, a dream, a home, a word or face.

"Freer Finland"

I noted with real interest your editorial of July 7 entitled "Freer Finland." I am very happy to note the interest of The Washington Post in the Finnish people, their wonderful courage and outstanding integrity and their insistence on their independence from domination by any foreign power. We in the United States have appreciated the integrity of the Finnish people, as evidenced by the fact that among all the debtor nations, they alone continued to pay the installments of principal and interest on their debt to the United States.

The Washington Post will probably recall that last December I introduced a resolution in the Senate of the United States, the purpose of which was "To provide that any future payments by the Republic of Finland on the principal or interest of its debt of the First World War to the United States shall be used to provide education and technical instruction and training in the United States for citizens of Finland."

In introducing this joint resolution, I was joined by the following Senators, and I know that practically the entire membership of the Senate would have joined me had there been time to invite them to join: Senators Fulbright, Bricker, Saltonstall, Knowland, Hatch, Lodge, Thomas of Utah, Ball, O'Mahoney and Hill.

Action was postponed on this resolution only because of the developments in Finland, and the feeling that it was wise for us not to move forward with this proposal until we saw the results of the July elections. Now that we have those results, and have more information with regard to the Finnish position, it is my purpose to reintroduce the scholarship resolution at the opening of the Eighty-first Congress in January next.

It is our feeling that this is a wiser and more constructive disposition of the war debt than merely to cancel that debt. I hope we will have the support of The Washington Post in taking this position, because it will mean the continuing contact with the younger generation of Finns who may come to America under this program to learn about our free institutions.

Wages And Prices

On July 26, Donald Montgomery of the United Auto Workers wrote you, stating he wondered why you followed or rehearsed so frequently, "the corporation cantata," that wages are the cause of inflation. He quoted various figures to implement his argument that corporation and business can absorb wage increases and not increase prices.

I doubt it! The resiliency of the profit margin must break upon continual wage increases with no allowance for maintaining the profit margin at strength consistent with successful operation.

The only selling point of unionism is higher wages for the usual work performed. It is never pointed out by the unions that individuals alone are responsible for garnering better remuneration for themselves through improvement in skill, etc. Unreasoned wage boosts must develop price increases.

At the war's end, hourly wage rates were at the highest peak in history. Workers won then hourly wages to equal that high hourly wage plus the overtime wage also in effect at that time. It was claimed this wage was needed to offset, "the cost of living." This was the first round of wage increases. Picture this boost to cost of production!

Then a "second round" boost on top of this. And now a "third round" boost. This is a large spiral! And nothing is offered in value for it. No increase in production, no improvement in technique or education on the part of the wage earner toward his job to earn his wage increase.

In view of the above inflation of wages, can prices remain stable? They cannot!

With production costs leveled (a means to that goal would be stable wages), industry then may venture to lower prices to attract larger consumption of goods and services. With buying power then increased and volume consumption increased, undoubtedly a cycle will flow to lower prices and increase buying power for all.

"Success And Failure"

In comment on your July 20 editorial on Mr. Leo Durocher which inspired the letters in the issue of July 23, it is to be hoped that you will repeat the Swiftian performance whenever an appropriate occasion arises. The satire, particularly the apt remark about winning, caused a round of chuckles in this family. But, of course, readers will read into their reading whatever they wish to read into it.

Progress

On the approach to the anniversary of the atom-bombing of Hiroshima (August 6, 1945) I wracked my brain to evaluate man's progress in the last two or three thousand years and cynically arrived at the following conclusion:

Men prehistoric were very barbaric,
They fought with clubs, the dopes!
Mentally prolific, we're more scientific.
We do it with isotopes.

Blame Exchange

Evidence is piling up that in starting a third party—in order to preserve our two-party system—Henry Wallace was not so mad as has been represented.

A United Press dispatch from Washington states: 'Senator Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire told the Senate last Friday the American people want the Republicans and Democrats to get together and do something about high prices—not just try to pin the blame on each other."

It appears the New Hampshire Senator does not agree with Wallace's charge that the Republicans and Democrats have already been working so closely together it is not possible to distinguish one from the other.

On the other hand, if we believe Senator Taft's charges that the Republicans and Democrats got very close together in passing the Taft-Hartley Law and many other important measures, we must conclude that getting together will not stop them from trying to pin the blame on each other.

Communist Indictments

The August communication, "Communist Indictments," by Richard O. Boyer, writing as an avowed American Communist, is another example of suave, illogical, ridiculous communistic rationalization.

The premise of this argument is given in his first sentence. "The indictment of the 12 Communist leaders, it seems to me, is an indictment endangering the classic concept of American freedom." The burden of his complaint is that the indictment is contrary to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. According to the facts of the case his charge is a classic example of irrationality.

For 13 months a Federal grand jury in New York made a secret investigation of communism, arising from information relating to espionage against the Government of the United States. Instead of indictments covering espionage alone, the grand jury found sufficient evidence to indict the 12 Communists of charges of a conspiracy to overthrow the United States Government by force.

The grand jury investigation itself is a traditional American procedure functioning within the framework of democracy. The long period of investigation shows the care taken to ascertain facts.

The Government will present its evidence to trial juries composed of citizens who are the peers of those indicted. Conviction or acquittal will be arrived at on the basis of the evidence presented and those indicted will have the protection of every constitutional safeguard.

By what stretch of the imagination—except through the fanciful flight of defensive communistic rationalization—can Boyer contend that these indictments "breach the Bill of Rights" and negate "the basic principles of the American past?"

Boyer conveniently misses the fundamental point and issue: The indictments were returned not because the defendants are Communists, but because evidence indicates that they have conspired to overthrow the Government by force. Communism is not on trial, but rather the actions of those who happen to be Communists.

We all agree with Boyer's right to favor socialism for the United States but we disagree with his terminology in using socialism and communism synonymously. He even knows that the use of socialism instead of communism makes his arguments a little more palatable.

The fact that his great-great-grandfather fought in the American Revolution and that his great-great-grandfather was a somewhat persecuted Abolitionist is neither precedent nor evidence that gives validity to his arguments. The record of his progenitors is entirely irrelevant and inconsequential to the case he is trying to make.

One can only laugh when he reads that the Communist Party does "not favor force and violence." Where has it come to power by any other method? Where does communism as a party represent more than a small minority of the people? Everything that he writes testifies to the absurdity of communistic reasoning.

In what Communist newspaper any place in the world would the editor carry a letter in defense of capitalism and democracy, as The Washington Post has carried this defense of communism? Under what Communist government would those accused of plotting to overthrow that government be given a fair and just trial with full constitutional protection for the rights of the individual?

When the Communist Party of the United States consistently and invariably follows the party line of Moscow, and sides with it in all cases against the United States Government, how can Mr. Boyer have the gall to attribute to it loyalty to American democratic processes and freedom?

Inflation Cave-In

By Mark Sullivan

Industrial Mood

THAT inflation and cost of living are at a new height is common knowledge. The public learns it at every counter; those who follow business statistics see the price indices again and again accompanied by a phrase "all-time high." What is less readily noticed, but more ominous, is that inflation has increased greatly in mass and momentum; the forces and conditions pushing it are stronger, those resisting it have diminished.

An example is the attitude of heads of industry. Several weeks ago, on July 16, the United States Steel Corp. raised wages 13 cents an hour. The raise—and this is the important point—was voluntary, without strike or other controversy. Five days later the corporation took the corresponding step, increased the price of steel $9.34 a ton. Previously in May General Motors raised wages 11 cents an hour and last month increased the prices of its cars by 8 per cent.

This pattern, raise of wages without resistance accompanied by increase of prices, is now being followed throughout large industry generally; it is ominously familiar. What is significant is the change of attitude on the part of industry heads. In 1945-46 General Motors fought a strike for over three months. During the same period the United States Steel Corp. and the steel industry fought a strike for a month, yielding only under pressure from President Truman and upon simultaneously receiving from the Administration permission to raise the price of steel $5 a ton.

THE CHANGE of attitude from three years ago until now is the more marked in that at the earlier time resistance to strikes was made difficult by the Wagner Labor Act which strongly favored unions. Now, an employer because of the Taft-Hartley Law is able to meet a strike with some approach to equality. Also, three years ago, wage raises were formally supported by the Truman Administration as a policy.

Whatever the motives for the change in attitude by heads of industry the sum of them is an acceptance and sharing of the psychology of inflation. Individual industry heads may have felt that they paid dearly for their resistance to inflation three years ago. Or that it is useless for them to stand out in opposition to inflation when the Government itself is promoting it. Every demand for a wage raise gives one reason, the increase in the cost of living, principally food, and the high price of food is kept up by the Government policy of price support for farm products.

SOME HEADS of industry may have come, however regretfully, to a realistic conclusion—inflation is here, it produces enormous buying power that is willing to pay any price, they can sell all the goods they can make, so why fight the tide?

The change of the industry heads creates a new alignment of groups and forces. Throughout, labor and agriculture have accepted inflation as giving them advantage, while industry resisted it. The prospect of greater momentum for inflation is obvious.

Adoption of a policy by so important a group as heads of industry cannot but be at once a reflection of a general public mood and a cause of it. Acceptance of inflation, in a spirit of "what's the use of fighting" is a spreading phenomenon. Acceptance of the present degree of inflation carries with it inherently a complacency or spirit of surrender which expects more.

This spirit, as it becomes general, and unless it is formidably checked, passes into a definitely marked stage in the classic course of acute inflation. If people generally expect that goods are going to cost more, that the dollar is going to have less purchasing power they tend to pass into one of the late stages of inflation not far from the final one. In a spirit of either recklessness or despair they begin to feel it is unwise to hold money; that it is better to exchange money for goods. Such a public mood causes increases in prices to become cumulatively rapid.

German Army

Some of your readers express indignation at my proposal of July 22 to organize a German army. Shall we continue to make it impossible for Germans to defend their own country and resist slavery? We have already offered them a large measure of self-government as well as help under the Marshall Plan. Of what use is all this if we throw them helpless into the hands of Russian tyrants?

Our own situation in Berlin is hazardous in the extreme. Even in the air we should at first be outnumbered at least 10 to 1 if Russia suddenly decided to fight. Russia might sweep her w to the sea before we could offer effective resistance. Let us face the true facts of the situation, and take the only measures which are possible for immediate defense.

The Nazis were tyrants, not patriotic Germans; we are not plotting their return, we only wish to make it possible for freedom to survive. Nor are we enemies of the Russian people; they, too, might be grateful to us if we freed them from slavery.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Sense About Security

THE THING to remember about Representative J. Parnell Thomas is that his name is not, or at least was not, Thomas. He has magically evolved from Feeney, the Irish Catholic son of a Democratic city politician, to Thomas, the Methodist Republican New Jersey squire, with a houseful of ostentatiously early American objects.

He belongs, in short, to the curious, twisted group of men who hold that a name like Thomas is more respectably "100 per cent American" than Feeney or Karpowicz or, one supposes, Stuyvesant or Van Rensselaer. He is engaged in a great impersonation of a male member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. And the hue and cry which he has so long been raising is no more than an episode in this sordid little tragicomedy.

In the present atmosphere it is appropriate to begin any discussion of American security with these facts, if only to place the current doings on Capitol Hill in their correct perspective. The plain truth is that there can be no honest defense of the investigation of vital security questions by such groups as the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which are dominated by the intellectual standards disclosed by Thomas' great impersonation, and primarily interested in a sordid headline hunt.

THIS MUCH having been said, it must immediately be added that a very grave and important security problem undoubtedly exists in this country. Probably the most shocking and harmful breeches of security in the past 20 years were the Chicago Tribune's revelations, both of America's war plan just before Pearl Harbor, and of the Navy's success in breaking the Japanese codes. No items of information such as these are likely to have passed through the espionage nets described by Miss Elizabeth Bentley and Mr. J. Whittaker Chambers.

On the othen hand, sensible investigating officials believe that the Bentley and Chambers stories are, in the main, true. The charges against certain individuals, like Alger Hiss, have thus far been discredited by all responsible officials, after the most extensive inquiries. So far as is known, the only solid evidence against Hiss, to take his example, is that he once joined a rather solemn group organized to study Marxist doctrine, which is evidence of intellectual inquisitiveness but not of treason. The fact remains, however, that the espionage nets described by Chambers and Miss Bentley are thought to have existed, in broad outline, as they have been represented.

There are other crucial facts to consider also. The Bentley story was laboriously sifted by a grand jury, the story of Chambers was thoroughly checked by the FBI as soon as he brought it to Adolph A. Berle, jr. Yet the FBI brought no charges against the persons implicated by Chambers, and the grand jury brought in no indictment against the persons named by Miss Bentley.

Equally, the Chicago Tribune went scot-free in the cases above mentioned. The Amerasia case was dismissed despite the proven presence of unauthorized top secret documents in the magazine's editorial offices. And every informed Washingtonian knows of other instances of really serious leaks being stopped by the simple dismissal of the person who was selling or giving away highly secret information.

THE REASONS for this state of affairs are what Representative Thomas ought to be investigating, if he really cared much about national security. Some reasons are obvious. The existing Espionage Act, for example, is so loosely drawn that most prosecuting authorities consider convictions almost impossible to obtain.

Other reasons can only be suggested. The suspicion arises, for instance, that a good many investigating officials must be singularly ignorant and stupid, when the temporary Government appointment of a man like Arthur Schlesinger, jr., is held up for weeks on security grounds. The young historian of The Age of Jackson happens to be one of the leading anti-Communists among American liberals. Any one capable of charging him with actual membership in the Communist Party, as he was recently charged, must believe that all us citizens except the friends of Representative Thomas carry concealed party cards. And this must make fruitful investigation a trifle difficult.

No subject is more delicate than this subject of security, which involves the fundamental liberties of Americans. Under the circumstances there is merit in an idea long played with by Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal. Forrestal has in fact proposed a presidential commission, composed of such men as Justice Owen Roberts and Judge Learned Hand, and charged with examining the problem in all its many aspects, and recommending both the reform of day to day security methods and the needed revision of permanent legislation. By such a device, we might even get results, not headlines.

4-H Clubs Told English Farm No Rosebed

Farming in England, where rigid government controls are in effect, is no bed of roses, Maryland 4-H clubbers learned yesterday from Mylo S. Downey.

Downey, State 4-H agent, gave 1100 boys and girls attending a Maryland 4-H Club program on Maryland University campus, his impressions of British farming gained on a recent visit to England.

Downey went to England with Maryland contestants in the Royal Livestock Judging Contest, held July 7. The team, composed of Allen Hill, Woodbine; William Curry, Queen Anne, and James Moxley, West Friendship, placed second in the international competition, with Curry making the highest individual score.

A "Friendship Dance" concluded yesterday's activities for the farm youths. Today's main event is a 4-H fashion show at which winners in the home sewing contest will be announced. A musical program tonight will wind up the group's week-long session.

Trade Board To Hold Chest Solicitor Rally

The Board of Trade will dedicate its first fall meeting September 30 to a rally of business solicitors for the Community Chest Federation's coming campaign.

Principal speaker at the rally will be Henry Ford, 2d, president of the Ford Motor Co. He is also chairman of Community Chests of America.

Col. Chauncey G. Parker, general chairman of the Chest drive, said the purpose of the meeting is to add impetus to the campaign.

"To raise $4,509,170 is going to take whole-hearted cooperation from everyone, and the fact that our businessmen are leading off with a rally seems to me to indicate the degree of serious concern these men have for the future of this great network of services," Colonel Parker said.

The Community Chest Federation conducts the annual fund-raising drive for United Community Services. The latter is the organization that replaced the Washington Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Community Chest.

N. Y. Transit Strike Set For Saturday

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The CIO Transport Workers Union today voted to strike Saturday against the big Third Avenue Transit System which serves some two million daily riders in Manhattan, Westchester County and The Bronx.

The walkout, set for 3 a. m. (EST), would involve about 4000 workers who operate the system's extensive network of bus and trolley lines.

Union spokesmen said the action was taken as a protest against the company's announcement it could not grant 24-cent houly wage increases.

Mayor William O'Dwyer said previously if the transit workers struck, the city would operate its own buses "to the extent of its ability" over the company's routes.

Strike Heads Won't Say if They're Reds

Two officials of the United Electrical Workers (CIO), asked if they are Communists, told a House subcommittee yesterday the inquiries are "smear questions."

Both said they were standing on their constitutional rights in declining to give a yes-or-no answer to the question.

Witnesses were Lou Kaplan, Dayton, Ohio, union field organizer, and Herbert Hirschberg, Cleveland, international representative for the union.

Both testified before a House Labor Committee subcommittees hearing into a three-month strike of union members at the Univis Lens Co., Dayton.

Asked by Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.) if he is a Communist, Hirschberg said that in his experience that question always is used to smear trade unionism.

Says It's His Business

"Then you refuse to answer?" asked Hoffman.

"That is my answer," Hirschberg said.

Kaplan earlier declined a yes-or-no answer. He said, "As an American, I say it is my own business" and added that regardless of whether he answered yes or no "your smears would continue."

Hirschberg protested: "Your committee has taken all the leaders of the Univis strike out of the picture and brought them to Washington at a crucial time."

Hoffman said the hearing is to determine whether amendments are needed to the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and also whether strikes and denials of the right to work grow out of labor disputes or are carried on "by subversive influences or racketeers."

The committee heard testimony from Miss Marilyn Hassenbeck, one of the strikers who helped on the Univis picket line, and Mrs. Pearl Hupman, union organizer at Dayton.

Miss Hasselbeck, 20, and comely, told the subcommittee without hesitation that she is not a member of the Comunist Party and never has been.

Mrs. Hupman dclined to answer, saying, "I am not going to enter any political discussion. I don't feel that I have to."

Then, prompted by CIO attorney David Scribner, she said she would stand on her constitutional rights.

Two Economics Experts To Assist MacArthur

Elred H. Brandon, New York financial expert, and Paul Moddy Atkins, Upper Montclair, N. J., consulting economist, will fly to Japan August 9 to serve as advisers on the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur for three months, the Army said yesterday.

Brandon will assist in working out a financial reporting and statistical system for the Japanese government.

Atkins, who has advised the American mission for aid to Greece and the Iranian government, will aid in appraising Japanese banking statistics.

Officials Study Housing Kicks By Veterans

By The Associated Press

United States district attorneys and Federal housing expediters from all parts of the country met here yesterday to map a new drive against chiseling in veterans' housing.

The Justice Department, which arranged the conference, said its aim is "an all-out campaign against those individuals who have violated Federal laws in the construction, sale and financing of veterans' homes."

Attorney General Clark brought in 21 district attorneys from the Nation's most populous areas. Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods assembled the seven deputy housing expediters for veterans affairs from their offices in Boston, New York, Atlanta, Dallas, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco.

VA Lawyers Attend

Members of the Veterans Administration legal staff were invited to join the two-day session.

The Justice Department said it has not compiled exact statistics on legal actions taken thus far on the thousands of GI squawks, but that hundreds of investigations have been and are being pursued by the FBI.

Scores of criminal and civil cases have been instituted, with indictments returned in Los Angeles, Dallas and Pittsburgh.

Penalties imposed in cases brought to trial over the last two years have included fines of from $500 to $5000 plus jail sentences—usually suspended on the condition that restitution is made to the complaining veteran.

'Side Payment' Complaints

Housing and justice officials say the most common complaints are for failure to follow specifications and for charges exceeding the limit set by the Federal Housing Authority. There have been numerous complaints about demands for "side payments."

A sample complaint was against a contractor who was charged with omitting one full room from the houses he built; another involved reduction in width specifications so that additional homes could be squeezed into the same row.

The Attorney General's office has said that in many of these cases, unless a proper adjustment is made with the veteran voluntarily, the district attorney may charge the offender with fraud against the Government, since the Government guarantees the financing.

Most Rent Advisory Boards 'Balanced'

More than two-thirds of all rent advisory boards now functioning have equal landlord, tenant and public representation, Housing Expeditor Tighe Woods disclosed yesterday.

Woods said all boards in Massachusetts, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Maryland, Delaware, Connecticut and Puerto Rico are in balance.

Seventy per cent or more of the boards were reported in balance July 30 in Alabaama, Arkansas, Illinois, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Woods said that to achieve balance, Governors were asked to name, as a rule, a board consisting of one landlord representative, one tenant representative and three public interest representatives.

The same ratio is maintained for balance in boards having more than five members.

Radio Industry Said to Face Dilemma on Political Talks

Congress was called upon yesterday to rescue the radio industry from a "confused state of law" and a "dilemma of self-destruction."

The problem placed before a special House Investigating Committee looking into the Federal Communications Commission, was outlined by one witness, as:

If a radio station follows FCC policy and does not censor political talks, even for apparently "defamatory utterances," it may be subject then to libel suits under laws of the State in which it operates.

If, on the other hand, it ignores the FCC policy and proceeds to restrain utterances, it may run afoul of the Commission when its license comes up for renewal.

Stations Dread Issue

Most stations dread meeting the issue and therefore political broadcasting is kept to a minimum, the witness, W. Theodore Pierson, attorney for more than 60 stations, explained.

Wayne Coy, FCC chairman, agreed that Congress should act in favor of the policy guaranteeing freedom of political groups to radio time. He said broadcasters should be freed by Federal law from liability for libel suits under State laws in such talks.

Such legislative action falls into the province of Congress since it has indicated in previous legislation that it feels regulation of the radio industry is a Federal matter, Coy explained.

Two members of the FCC staff told th eSelect Committee to investigate the FCC that a case involving Station WHLS in Port Huron, Mich., had resulted in the setting of a policy that deletion of material or refusal of a political broadcast were "acts of censorship," and therefore contrary to FCC rules.

Other Views Expressed

Richard A. Solomon, chief of the litigation branch, said that "courts rather than broadcasters are the only fit arbitrators of what is libelous."

Pierson felt Congress should specifically declare stations immune from libel suits as a result of political speeches since a broadcaster "has no power to avert" slanderous or libelous statements. He cited the national polittical conventions as examples of where speeches could not be checked before presentation.

Assistant Attorney General C. K. Richards of Texas said that the present FCC policy does not absolve stations from libel suits and until Federal legislation changes the situation, his State would enforce its libel laws.

The hearing will continue today at 10 a. m. with testimony by representatives of the major radio networks.

Dulles, Adviser To Dewey, Named Delegate to U. N.

President Truman acted yesterday to insure that United States policy will be carried out on a bipartisan basis at the United Nations third General Assembly meeting at Paris September 21, seven weeks before the presidential election.

He named John Foster Dulles foreign affair adviser to GOP presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey, as one of four delegates to represent the United States. He sent the appointments to Congress for confirmation.

Also named as delegates were Warren R. Austin, now permanent United States representative to the United Nations; Philip C. Jessup, his alternate at Lake Success, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, now representing the United States on the U. N. Commission on Human Rights.

A fifth delegate who would serve as chairman must still be appointed.

Old Oak Hill, Once Monroe Home, on Block

Historic Oak Hill, one-time home of President James Monroe, near Leesburg, Loudoun County, Va., will be sold at public auction September 2.

Howard W. Smith, jr., of Alexandria and Edwin E. Garrett of Leesburg have been appointed trustees by the Federal Court for the Eastern District of Virginia. They were instructed to sell the property to settle the bankruptcy of Frank Campbell Littleton, who purchased the estate in 1920 for a dairy farm. The bankruptcy case has been pending since 1941.

Truman May Open With Detroit Talk

President Truman said yesterday that his election campaign may get under way in September and Detroit is among the cities he has under consideration for the opening speech.

Mr. Truman told a news conference he had not mapped out his campaign plans.

A group of labor leaders has invited the President to open his campaign with a Labor Day speech in Detroit, and he said he was considering it.

Reopening of Belasco Deal Spurs Hope for Playhouse Here

Prospects for reestablishing a legitimate playhouse in Washington, possibly at the Government-owned Belasco Theater, brightened yesterday with a series of new developments.

1. Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works administrator, offered to "sit around the conference table" with two heretofore unsuccessful bidders for the Belasco, and work out "an acceptable lease." It will not be necessary to reopen bids if one of the two bidders turned down last month makes an acceptable offer, he said.

2. New offers for lease of the Belasco are being readied by the American National Theater and Academy and the competing bidder, Joseph Curtis, nephew of Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures.

3. ANTA is "exploring the possibility" of building a legitimate theater in Washington if negotiations for the Belasco collapse.

4. Curtis is getting New York architects to determine if the Strand Theater, movie house at 401 9th st. nw, can be adapted for the legitimate stage as an alternative to the Belasco. Wallace M. Cohen, attorney here for Curtis, admitted the location of the Strand is "not ideal" and that renovation costs might be high.

Bids by ANTA and Curtis were rejected by the Federal Works Agency last month mainly because both requested Government reimbursement for unamortized renovation expenses if the proposed 10-year lease should be canceled at any time by the Government.

FWA Administrator Fleming maintained that he could not possibly guarantee reimbursement which would require congressional appropriations, "which no one ever can guarantee."

Fleming's "conference-table" suggestion yesterday followed an interview he gave to Actress Edith Atwater, chairman of Actors Equity committee on the theater in Washington, and Miss Ida Fox, executive secretary of the Council for Civil Rights in the Nation's Capital.

When the National closed last week, the Nation's Capital was left without a single legitimate playhouse.

Potter Backed for Board Seat

Arlington Builder I. Lee Potter last night was indorsed by the Citizens Committee for School Iprovements for the one vacant Arlington County Board seat. The vote for indorsement was 66 to 4.

Shortly before the vote, Committee Member H. Herbert Howe, who says he differs strongly with Potter on zoning matters, announced:

1. His own county board candidacy as an independent, and,

2. His resignation as secretary of the Arlington Better Government League because, he said, he understood that group also plans to indorse Potter.

Howe's announcement of candidacy was made despite a plea from Oscar R. LeBeau, former Citizens Committee chairman, for him to "stand aside" for Potter.

Potter is vice chairman of the Arlington Republican committee. He lives at 4900 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. Howe lives at 1313 N. Wayne s., Arlington.

Norway Holds Maneuvers

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 5 (AP).—King Haakon inspected military camps around Oslo today in connection with mobilization maneuvers. The program is the most extensive undertaken by Norwegian armed forces since World War I.

D. C. National Guard Lifts Lid on Recruiting Veterans

The District National Guard yesterday lifted the lid on recruiting as far as veterans are concerned.

In a move paralleling a Nation-wide plan, the local Guard will now take enlisted veterans who served at least 90 days but less than 12 months, between September 16, 1940, and June 24, 1948.

In addition, members of the Public Health Service or of the armed forces of a wartime ally prior to September 2, 1945, are eligible, Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the D. C. Guard, said.

The move is designed to bring in more officers, but it also serves to boost the ceiling on enlisted men. Officers will no longer be charged against the unit quota, thus enabling more qualified men to enlist. The District Guard had already reached the full quota of some 2900 men and officers.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, last night revealed he had instructed Col. Leroy S. Mann, commanding officer of Guard units in training at Camp Pendleton, Va., and Col. Charles M. Myers, training officer, to make reports on initial equipment shortages at the camp.

In the meantime, the Army Department announced that a report on the shortages submitted to the division of organization and training by Col. Merle Thompson several days ago was still under study.

One on the Aisle—

Hitchcock Soups Up a Soap Opera

By Richard L. Coe

WHEN THE UPPAH CLAWSSES get around to murder and adultery they have no more affectionate screen chronicler than Director Alfred Hitchcock. Hitch, you will be delighted to know, has come up with one of his suave depictions of illicit behavior at the Palace in "The Paradine Case."

And what a cast the profligate David O. Selznick has given his director to work with—Gregory Peck, Ann Todd, Charles Laughton, Ethel Barrymore, Joan Tetzel, Charles Coburn and two inordinately handsome newcomers, Valli and Louis Jourdan. Hitch directs this fruity motley in settings of upper-erust elegance and tells a story of human entanglements that begins with murder, unveils covetous relationships and ends in a suicide.

The Hitchcock touch is evident throughout, the leisurely pace, the suave politesse, the suggestion that things are not quite what they appear, down to the inevitable sneak shot of the director that he includes in all his films (this time you see him carrying a cello case coming out of a railway station with Peck.) Throughout "The Paradine Case" Hitchcock is at your shoulder, pointing to the varied aspects of his story, chinning with his audience in a manner few directors are able to enjoy. Some are unable to express the director's role so completely; others are not permitted the chance.

The story Hitchcock is telling you concerns a beautiful young woman with a shady past, Valli, who is accused by the State of having murdered her blind husband. An aging friend and lawyer, Charles Coburn, suggests she call in an emotionally effective solicitor, Gregory Peck, to defend her. Peck's wife, Ann Todd, watches while her husband falls under the woman's allure. A crusty old judge, Laughton, puts the legal spokes in Peck's emotional defense to the jury and Laughton's wife, Ethel Barrymore, is a pathetic observer, a minor character but a typical touch of the director. The case boils down to the dead man's former valet, Louis Jourdan, a handsome young man who apparently has been lured into adulterous relationship with the conniving wife, the only figure Peck can pin the case on and so clear his client.

Superior Handling of Story

What Hitchcock suggests he is driving at is the idolatrous affection of the valet for his former Army commander and friend, and the thought that the man's coldness to the wife's advances drives the woman to the jealous frenzy of murdering her husband. This juicy, complex relationship is not so sharply pointed as it might have been, though one senses it is a purposeful cloud Hitchcock trails across his presentation.

The cast, of course, has a finely well-bred time in the midst of all this. Peck's bewilderment at his infatuation for Valli is matched by Miss Todd's determination that the affair will not destroy her marriage. The eloquent assurance of such old hands as Miss Barrymore, Coburn and Laughton are not vital to the plot but they give the film the elan with which the director has chosen to dress his story. And Valli and Jourdan have the spectacular moodiness that their roles demand.

That this is not much more than lurid soap opera stuff, even the sleek Hitchcock touch cannot disguise, but he does it well enough for you to enjoy it. While the director is frequently attacked for choosing stories of this nature, that seems to me a gratuitious complaint; while one wishes he would try something else, it is evident that he feels these crime stories are his best metier. He is completely at ease in the style he has chosen and no one puts on a better case.

No doubt the confused reception accorded his superb "Lifeboat" has had something to do with this reluctance to tackle a film of ideas. Frankly, I don't see how anyone could have so mistaken "Lifeboat" (Dorothy Thompson's tirade against it must have baffled Hitchcock as much as it still does me), but the fact remains his one notable attempt to break away from his formula story was strangely received.

Of comparatively few pictures can one say that "this is a director's picture," but "The Paradine Case" is surely one of them. For all its flossy cast, the heart of this suave adventure is a director's mind, a shrewd, canny mind at that.

Society and the Sea

Twin Theme Skillfully Handled In 'Deep Waters' at Capitol

By Orval Hopkins

IN "DEEP WATERS" (I do wish Hollywood would consult me on these titles), which is at the Capitol, you have a main theme of men who love the sea and women who hate it, and a secondary thread about the fortunes of a delinquent boy. It all comes off quite well, in my judgment, despite a disappointing performance on the part of one of the principals.

Dean Stockwell

Henry King has not exactly outdone himself in directing this, but the screen play, by Richard Murphy, is compact and steady, probably owing in part to its adaptation from a novel by Ruth Moore called "Spoonhandle."

Dana Andrews, a Maine lobsterman, wants to marry Jean Peters, who will have none of him unless he foresakes dat ol' debil sea and finds himself a shore job. She even gives him back his ring and strides away, the tear in her eye. Dean Stockwell plays a 12-year-old with a troublesome record and the sea in his blood. As a ward of the State, he is in Miss Peters' ken, and she is out to keep not only Andrews but young Stockwell as well away from the sea. Just like a woman, too. Anyway, the story tells, in fairly swift and entirely plausible fashion, how the boy is snatched from a sorry tenure at a reform school and headed for rehabilitation, and how Miss Peters becomes resolved to heaven knows what sadness as the helpmeet of a man who follows the sea.

She newsreel (I'm sure everybody enjoys this complete treatment I provide) has some shots of the Communist hearings in which Elizabeth T. Bentley speaks a piece, as do William W. Remington and Lauchlin Currie.

Langer Bill Would Increase Federal Pay, Revise Classifications

SENATOR LANGER yesterday gave the many advocates of higher Federal salaries something to think about. He introduced a bill of his own which proposes both increased salaries and a revision of the job-fixing Classification Act. The measure would:

Give each classified employe an additional flat increase of $270 a year.

Streamline Federal jobs into 19 grades and fix their salaries from a minimum of $2000 to a maximum of $20,000. Additional pay raises would be given many employes under the classification revision. The top salary is now $10,330, for example.

Set up a promotion system to benefit employes who are at the top of their grades. If they passed noncompetitive tests, they would be made eligible for the next highest grade jobs.

Bring judicial employes under the job system.

Congress won't act this year on the pay problem. However, the Langer bill is something for all interested parties to work with.

REVENUE: Two top officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau are transferring voluntarily to more pleasant and easier jobs outside of this city. They asked for the demotions. They are:

Assistant Commissioner Stewart Berkshire, who will transfer to the agency's San Francisco office to be chief of the technical staff of the Pacific division, and,

Deputy Commissioner Paul A. Hankins, who is transferring to Atlanta to be chief of accounts and collections in Revenue's Region 5. It is reported that Hankins' successor will be A. H. Cross. The President must nominate a person to fill Berkshire's post.

The life of a Federal official in this city is getting tougher and tougher to take. The Congress is forever looking over your shoulder, the responsibility is terrific, and the pay is terrible. Although their jobs are down the line, neither Berkshire nor Hankins will take a pay cut.

TREND: The Berkshire-Hankins transfers may well be the start of a trend of Federal officials here to take lesser jobs in the field. It is reported on good authority that several top operating officials of the Civil Service Commission, the Interior and Agriculture departments among others have requested transfers to lower-ranking field jobs.

For the most part these career people are tired and weary of the beating they have taken in their jobs here. But perhaps a more practical reason is this—the real possibility of a Republican Administration come next January.

RECLAMATION: No employes here will be laid off in the coming cutback in Reclamation personnel. Further, no firings will be made among Reclamation employes in its field headquarters in Denver. Layoffs in both headquarters offices were made a year ago.

The shakedown must be made among project employes. The number to be fired hasn't been determined. Each regional director has been given an allocation of funds for personnel and each must report by September 1 how far that money will go.

Even though Reclamation was given a record appropriation and it appeared at one time a rather substantial personnel increase would be in order, a rider limits to 48 million dollars the amount of money that can be used to pay salaries. The agency requested $48,800,000 for personnel.

SECRETARIES: Before the end of this month the Civil Service Commission plans to announce its long-awaited test for CAF-5, 6 and 7 Government secretaries.

This exam will require several years of actual experience. No credit will be given for experience as such, however. Secretaries who apply will be given a written test and the usual typing and shorthand. However, speed won't be a big factor in typing and shorthand.

In fact, the commission recognizes that some top secretaries rarely take dictation and pound a typewriter. These girls are so-called administrative assistants. The commission will use a special system to examine these girls and they won't need to take the shorthand and typing part of the test.

Full details of the test will appear here when it's announced. Civil Service won't reveal details until that time.

NOTES: William N. Sparhawk, internationally known authority on the world's forest resources, has retired from the Forest Service after 38 years of service. He will return to his native New Hampshire to put his knowledge of forestry to work on his own timberlands . . . Reconstruction Finance has set up an Office of War Activity Liquidation. The office will handle liquidation of all wartime subsidiaries and it will take over the disposal of surplus real property from War Assets next February. C. R. Larrabee is manager, and Marvin Weave is his assistant.

Richard Wilson, 32, Held in Stab Death

A coroner's jury yesterday held Richard Wilson, 32, of 501 5th st. ne., for action of the grand jury in the death of Richard Brown, 40, of 2932 Pomeroy rd., se.

Brown was stabbed Sunday at 8 p. m. during a fight with Wilson in a hallway at 1008½ 6th st., ne. It was the fourth slaying recorded in the District in as many days.

Police Use Mental Case To Testify On Gaming

St. Elizabeths Patient Alleged To Have Passed on Bets on Numbers

Testimony at Municipal Court yesterday in a numbers case revealed that police used a St. Elizabeths Hospital mental patient to aid them in their investigation after first arresting the patient for taking lottery bets.

Defendant in the case was the hospital's official photographer Leo Lo Jacono, 38, of 3852 Halley ter. se. He was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Judge Armond Scott held him for the action of the grand jury under $1000 bail.

Police Pvts. Carl M. Hurley and Walter Zurowsky, of the Eleventh Precinct, gave the following account of the details leading to La Jacono's arrest.

On July 7, they secured a U. S. Commissioner's warrant for the arrest of a man, known as "Pappy," who is a patient at the hospital.

Hurley, a former attendant of the hospital, said at that time he had already made about a dozen numbers "plays" with "Pappy" at the hospital.

The same day the warrant was issued, Zurowsky made two bets with "Pappy," giving him a $5 bill, Hurley said. After arresting "Pappy," the two policemen asked him to take them to the man to whom he turned over his bets, they said.

"Pappy" was at first "very uncooperative" but after a doctor at the hospital talked to him, he led them to a dark room, where they saw him hand the two bets and the money to Lo Jacono, Hurley testified.

As soon as Lo Jacono put the slips and money in his pocket, he was arrested by the two policemen. They admitted they did not find any other slips or bets on him at the time.

Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford argued that Lo Jacono took the slips and bets from "Pappy" without any argument because most non-patients handle mental patients that way.

"Over there, they'll take a bucket from a patient without saying a word if he hands it to them," Ford declared.

He argued that "Pappy" had been put under duress by the doctor and could not be held accountable for his actions. He accused the police of finding only those items they "had planted" on the photographer through "a poor mental patient."

Edward Carey, Assistant United States attorney, declared: "If there's any sympathy in this case, it should be for those patients who are being taken by such men."

"Pappy" was not taken from the institution by police.

Man Held on Numbers Charge in Bladensburg

A 37-year-old District man was arrested on a charge of possessing numbers slips in Bladensburg yesterday and a second was charged with disorderly conduct when, police said, he objected to his companion's arrest.

Held under $500 bond on the numbers charge was Wilmer Jameson, 4407 Polk st. ne. His companion, Donald L. Washington, 25, 4615 Clay st. ne., was held under $100 bond on the disorderly conduct charge.

Bladensburg Police Chief Henry J. Nebel said he arrested the pair near the corner of Annapolis rd. and Kenilworth ave., and confiscated a paper bag containing alleged numbers slips and $7.03 in change, carried by Jameson.

Alexandria Laborer Fined $300 for Gaming

Henry Johnson, 38-year-old laborer, of 438 N. Royal st., Alexandria, was fined $300 and given a 90-day suspended jail sentence in Alexandria Police Court yesterday for selling numbers slips. Johnson pleaded guilty to the charge.

Superbly Sung Traviata Holds Audience Despite Chill Air

The Washington Post

OPERA SEASON OPENS—Stars of the Lyric Opera Association's "La Traviata" performance which opened Washington's outdoor opera season at the Watergate last night were (left) Eva De Luce, in the role of Violetta Valery, and Marie Pasca, as Flora Berviox, friend of Violetta

By Paul Hume

Some of the best opera Washington has heard in years was presented last night at the Watergate.

Pietro Cimara directed a performance of Verdi's "Traviata" that was superbly paced and extraordinarily well sung. The temperature during the evening averaged about 60, but the large audience, gathered to judge the first appearance here of the Lyric Opera Company, stayed until the final scene reached its melancholy close.

Eva De Luca as Violetta was handsomely costumed and sang the role with fine feeling for its dramatic possibilities. Her voice is capable of more than a little color, and her high C's in the first act were exciting in their impact. If she will overcome a habit of singing just under the pitch at the ends of phrases she will be a useful protagonist in the standard repertoire.

Thomas Hayward, a tenor from the Metropolitan, proved a thoroughly happy surprise. His voice is of fine quality, wonderfully handled, and of great persuasiveness. His soft singing is a joy, and his high C was the equal of his partner's.

Robert Weede sang the elder Germont with dignity without being stuffy about it. His voice has never been more brilliant, nor better managed. His closing of the second act was a stunning moment.

The chorus is small but highly competent. They should be, coming from the Metropolitan. Under Cimara's inspiring conducting, they and the orchestra worked mightily to add to those ensemble moments which Verdi makes so memorable in his waltz-time score.

Even the scenery seemed sufficient and tasteful. Altogether, it was an account of Traviata which matched many of the best we have heard. But when Violetta piled into bed for the last scene, I, for one would not have been surprised at all if her tuberculosis had turned to pneumonia.

Tonight: Carmen, with a very fine cast, and the same excellent conductor. If it is no warmer, wear a coat or bring a blanket, but don't stay home.

Deplore 'Tragedy'

2 Stars Here Hopeful Met Will Go On

Failure of the Metropolitan Opera to have a 1948-49 season would be a "tragedy" and a "disaster" in the words of two prominent company members now in Washington.

Florence Kirk, soprano who will sing the title role in "Aida" at the Watergate Saturday night, said a year's inactivity would be "a terrible disaster for the entire country."

Pietro Cimara, who will conduct the four operas at the Watergate Festival, said, "It would be a terrible tragedy."

The Metropolitan announced Wednesday that its 1948-49 season will be canceled because, it said, demands for union wage increases cannot be met.

The musicians' union predicted, however, that "this unilateral action will not stand for long."

Miss Kirk, who won her place at the Met through an audition, commented yesterday:

"I think it is a terrible disaster for the entire country. The Metropolitan does not belong just to the people of New York City. With its nation-wide tours and the weekly broadcasts, it has become the property of the whole country.

"Of course we all sing concerts, and the opera houses around the country and in South America offer us engagements, but when you love something the way we love the Metropolitan, the others are just not the same.

"In 1946, a similar announcement was made, but at that time they (the Met directors) were able to work out their difficulties with the unions. This time it looks different. I don't think Mr. Sloan and Mr. Spofford (directors of the opera company) are the kind of gentlemen who make statements like this one just to scare the unions."

Cimara has been a conductor at the Metropolitan for nearly 20 years. His comment was: "It is not possible to think of New York City without the Metropolitan Opera. The season is too short now, with four months in town and two months on tour, but you cannot imagine that there would not be a Metropolitan season next year. I believe something will be arranged. It would be a terrible tragedy."

Four New Cases Of Polio Make Area Total 48

Four new cases of infantile paralysis, three of them in the District of Columbia, were reported by the D. C. Health Department yesterday.

The new polio victims bring the total number of cases in Washington so far this year to 23. Cases in the nearby Maryland and Virginia areas so far reported have been 25, making the cumulative total for Greater Washington 48.

The new cases reported for Washington yesterday are a 21-year-old man who lives in the 2800 block of 31st st. se., now under treatment at Gallinger Hospital; a 1-year-old boy of the 5300 block of E st. se., under treatment at Gallinger; and a 1½-year-old boy of the 600 block of E st. se., receiving home treatment.

Arlington case reported yesterday was a 4-year-old boy of the 400 block of N. 20th st., under treatment at Gallinger Hospital.

Unification Is Working, Legion Told

Some Overlapping Is Necessary Now, Adm. Ewen Says At Convention Here

Unification of the armed forces "is working," Rear Admiral E. C. Ewen, chief of public relations for the Navy, told 1200 Legionnaires last night.

Speaking at the opening of the thirtieth anniversary three-day department convention in the Hotel Statler, Ewan said he would "like to go on record as one of those who disagree with those who say unification isn't."

"There are certain overlappings," Ewen conceded, among the services, "but they are necessary at this time to see that there are no gaps."

United States Attorney General Tom C. Clark and Arthur E. Flemming, retiring chairman of the Civil Service Commission, were among five persons to receive certificates of merit for "their splendid service to and cooperation with the American Legion" during the past year.

Clark Welcomes 'Change'

Clark, who received the award for his juvenile delinquency program, said he was glad to accept it "as a change from investigations into gambling and tall tales of spying, U. S. A. style."

Others to receive the award included Capt. Albert L. Bullock, commanding officer of the Thirteenth Police Precinct; T. A. M. Craven, manager of Station WOL, and Harold Hegstrom, superintendent of the National Training School for Boys, who were also present.

Miss Margaret M. Hammere, retiring after 30 years service at Mount Alto Veterans Hospital and a member of Sergeant Jasper Post No. 13, was awarded a plaque of appreciation.

Among others honored was Henry L. Schmidt, "who though over 70 years of age has devoted 4 to 8 hours daily to sick and disabled veterans at Mount Alto."

Awards were made by Hampton D. Percy, chairman of the awards committee.

Memorial Rites Held

Acting for Secretary of Interior Krug, Maston White, Interior solicitor, presented colors to Interior Department Post No. 63.

Memorial services, with the late Gen. John J. Pershing receiving special mention, were conducted by the ritual team of Fort Stevens Post No. 42, led by Joseph A. Walker, sr.

The meeting was opened by Benjamin Arolnson, convention chairman. He turned it over to Department Commander Owen C. Halleran, who presented a number of guests of honor.

The convention is scheduled to be resumed at 7:30 p. m. today.

Parade Plugs Rodeo

About 35 mounted rodeo performers, in cowboy and Indian costumes, paraded for more than a mile yesterday along Baltimore blvd. to advertise the Wild West Rodeo being held under auspices of the Hyattsville Fire Department. The show, to raise funds for volunteer firemen's equipment, opened last night at Ager and Riggs rds. in Hyattsville.

Beer Party Set Tonight

The Fleet Reserve Association will hold a beer party for friends and relatives tonight at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium of the Christian Heurich Brewery, 26th and Water sts. nw.

19 Are Appointed to Assist In District's School Survey

A list of 19 prominent educators who will participate in the survey of District schools was released yesterday by Dr. George D. Strayer, survey director.

Strayer said a final report on the survey, for which Congress appropriated $100,000, would be ready by next March 1. A preliminary report on school buildings will be ready January 1, he said.

The survey, started June 15, will cover the educational program, housing of it, financing of it and educational and business administration of it.

Strayer, prominent New York educator who has made about 80 such surveys, said he had met recently with District school heads and praised them for their cooperation.

Those assisting him in appraising the school system, and the fields in which they will work, are:

H. E. Akerly, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, Rochester, N. Y.—business administration.

W. G. Brink, professor of secondary education, Northwestern University—junior and senior high schools.

K. O. Broady, director, extension division, University of Nebraska—adult education.

Lieut. Comdr. H. L. Corzett, USN, formerly superintendent of schools, Little Falls, N. Y.—junior and senior high schools.

Miss Prudence Cutright, assistant superintendent of schools, Minneapolis—elementary schools.

Fare Boost Is Vital, CTC Official Says

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterday continued its hearings on the proposal of Capital Transit Company to increase streetcar and bus fares with a day-long cross-examination of J. E. Heberle, CTC vice president and comptroller.

Lloyd B. Harrison, assistant corporation counsel, concluded his queries to Heberle shortly before noon and was succeeded by People's Counsel John O'Dea and George A. Corbin, vice chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, one of four intervenors in the rate case.

Corbin told Heberle: "No citizens association, or business association, in the city has approved your application for increased rates. On the other hand, the executive council of the federation and the North Washington Council composed of 15 citizens associations, have approved the fare adjustment we proposed of 12 cents straight fare, five tokens for 55 cents and a weekly pass for $1.65."

The transit company seeks rate increases of from 10 to 15 cents for cash fare, two tokens for a quarter and weekly passes raised from $1.50 to $1.85.

Heberle contended that the increases requested by Capital Transit Co. would produce enough money for the company to continue to exist.

Heberle said that on the basis of his own "educated opinion," an increase in the weekly pass from $1.50 to $1.65 would produce a 10 per cent decline in sales of passes. If passes go up to $1.85 as proposed by Capital Transit, a 20 per cent decline in such sales will result, he said.

Corbin, cross-questioning Heberle on retrenchments in Capital Transit service already made, asked the CTC comptroller whether such adjustments were not sufficient to permit the company to continue at its present revenue levels.

Heberle contended that if the adjustments in the service had not been made, Capital Transit previously would have had to ask for a higher fare or go into bankruptcy.

Earlier in the day, Heberle told the PUC members that the proposed fare increase would net Capital Transit only a fair rate of return. If the proposed increase should produce more than a fair rate of return, Heberle said Capital Transit would request reduced fares.

The hearing is to reconvene today at 10 a. m.

Lawyer Freed Of Charge by Former Tenant

Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott yesterday acquitted a 64-year-old lawyer of making threats in Municipal Court against a former tenant from whom he sought $86 for a rent check.

A warrant had been sworn out July 21 against George F. Jones of 2705 30th st. se., after Charles Ruff of 4218 Nicholson st., Hyattsville, Md., charged Jones had threatened his life.

The incident occurred on the first floor of the Civil Branch of Municipal Court, where a hearing was being given Jones' civil suit against Ruff.

Ruff charged that Jones threatened him with a knife. Jones testified that he had pulled out the knife but had not opened it.

He told the court that he had a very bad heart and had pulled out the knife to ward off Ruff, who had taken off his glasses and started forward as though to fight.

Man Killed By Trolley on Benning Rd.

District traffic deaths 1948 42
Traffic deaths this date 1947 . . . 44
Total D. C. traffic deaths 1947 . . 72

The District's forty-second traffic fatality was recorded last night when a man about 40 years old was struck by a streetcar on Benning rd. ne. near Victory Garden dr.

He was identified from a picture in his pocket which bore the name of W. A. Hutchins, 3160 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

The operator of the streetcar, Alvin Hermann, 39, 3989 East Capitol st., said the man was lying on the tracks as he approached and was struck as he attempted to clamber away.

Patricia Landman, 7, of 1119 Queen st. ne., was seriously injured about 5:50 p. m. yesterday when, police said, she ran into an alley and was struck by a truck. At Casualty Hospital, she was reported possible internal injuries.

Six persons were injured in two freak auto accidents earlier.

Four of the victims had an amazing escape from death when their car hurtled off the road in the 1500 block of Canal rd. nw., felled a power pole, somersaulted over a 3-foot culvert, hit a second pole and jarred to a stop against a third.

In a second accident, a car ran up on the sidewalk, smashed into a water spout in front of 1003 21st st. nw., crashed into a tree then careened into the front of a house at 1007 21st, knocking a hole in the living room wall. Two occupants of the car were only slightly injured. The residence is occupied by Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart.

Injured in the first accident were Robert Evans, 18, 1556 N. Bryant st., Arlington, driver of the car, admitted to Emergency Hospital suffering from head and chest injuries; George E. Logan, 22, of 5130 9th st., North Arlington, possible fractured left leg; Wade R. Ropp, 19, of 2501 N. Quantico st., Arlington, possible internal injuries, and Mrs. Marie Smith, 21, of 1521 Quarles st. ne., cuts and bruises.

Logan and Ropp were admitted to Mount Alto Hospital. Mrs. Smith was treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

Police said the auto must have overturned about six times in a space of 250 feet.

In the second accident, Jack P. Richards, 31, of 4850 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, Md., and a companion, Miss Betty Hampton, 25, of 500 21st st. nw., suffered cuts and bruises and were treated at Emergency Hospital.

Richards, who was traveling north on 21st st. and had just passed K st. when the car mounted the sidewalk, told police he had veered his car to avoid another vehicle making a sharp left turn in front of him. His foot had jammed between the brake and the steering column, he said.

D. C. Mother Asks Help in Finding Daughter, 15

A worried mother yesterday appealed for help in locating her 15-year-old daughter, missing from a boarding school here since July 26.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Ortte, 457 Mellon st. se., said the girl, Jerrilee Joyce Hall, scaled a fence at the House of the Good Shepherd School, 3600 Reservoir rd. nw., about 1 p. m. July 26 and and hasn't been seen since.

"Jerry," Mrs. Ortte's daughter by a previous marriage, called a girl friend last Tuesday, Mrs. Ortte said, and asked her to tell her mother "I'm safe, and not to worry." Mrs. Ortte is sure she is in Washington.

D. C. Medical Society Hits Dual Control At Gallinger

Survey Committee Recommends New Setup With Single Responsible Head

Immediate termination of the system of dual control now in effect in Gallinger Hospital has been recommended to the District Commissioners by a committee of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia.

The committee, headed by Dr. Maurice A. Selinger, reported to the District Commissioners on the general organization and administration at Gallinger. It contended that with a proper administrative organization, Gallinger Hospital "can become a model institution for the care of the indigent sick in the District of Columbia, and every effort should be made to bring about this result promptly."

Evidences of unworkability of the dual control system, as cited in the committee report were:

1. The hospital superintendent is a District employe, while the chief of staff is an employe of the medical schools which provide visiting staffs there.

Treated by Two Classes

2. Patients are treated by members of the residence staff of physicians employed by the District, but also by members of medical school staffs who are not responsible or accountable to the hospital superintendent.

The committee report also was sharply critical of treatment which ill patients receive at Gallinger when they do not display symptoms of a disease in which medical school personnel are interested.

"It appears," the report stated, "that only those patients who might be classed as 'suitable clinical material' receive the close attention of the professors, their associates, assistants and medical students. Patients who fail to arouse unusual interest from a medical or teaching standpoint are cared for entirely by the resident staff."

The medical society report stated that salaries of some members of the medical staff at Gallinger are not commensurate with their duties. "These physicians are, in many instances, directed in the care of their patients by junior members of the teaching staffs of the medical schools and are required to follow the instructions of physicians who often are less qualified from the standpoint of age as well as experience."

New Medical Director Urged

Among recommendations made to the Commissioners by the medical society was appointment of a "young energetic physician, well trained in hospital and medical school administration and without previous connection with local institutions" as medical director of the hospital with full and complete authority over the entire personnel.

The committee also recommended that salaries adequate to attract men of high caliber and training be offered physicians for posts in the hospital.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who released the society's report yesterday, said that Rear Admiral P. S. Rossiter, (USN retired) present chief of staff at Gallinger, whose resignation from the post, was expected to take effect September 1, may be asked to continue in his present post for another six months.

Students Back Truman Stand On Civil Rights

The students for Democratic Action in Washington have come out in support of President Truman for reelection because of his civil rights stand, it was announced yesterday.

The action was taken by unanimous vote at a meeting held Wednesday night at the AVC clubhouse, 808 17th st. nw.

At the same time the group formed civil rights and foreign relations committees to represent the national chapter in Senate and House hearings.

Skeptical Detectives Find 'Stolen' Cash

Appearances may be deceiving—but not to Detective Sergts. G. W. Chapman and I. T. McCarthy.

The two detectives went to the home of Joseph C. Scarbrough, 35, of 1209 42d pl. ne., Wednesday night to investigate a report of a burglary.

They were shown a ripped screen in a kitchen window and a ransacked bedroom where a mattress had been removed from a bed.

The mattress belonged to Miss Christine Green, a roomer, who told them the "intruder" had stolen from her room a tin box containing $1500 in cash and $500 in bonds.

She was holding the money, she said, in trust for her fiance, Joseph Taylor, 650 Hobart st. nw.

The detectives, noticing the dust on the kitchen window sill had not been disturbed as it should have been had a thief entered, became skeptical. Their sleuthing had taught them that burglars don't usually remove mattresses, but just shove them aside.

They looked further. In the cellar they found the tin box hidden in the fire box of the oil burner. Scarborough was arrested and charged with making a false report and grand larceny.

Few Changes in Vote

Official returns of Tuesday's primaries in Alexandria and Arlington show only two changes, neither affecting outcome of the balloting, from the unofficial figures reported Wednesday in The Washington Post.

In Arlington, Senator A. Willis Robertson polled 2795 instead of 2791 as first reported, to 1644 for James P. Hart, jr., in the Democratic Senate primary.

The other change, also in Arlington, gave Eighth District Republican Congressional Candidate Charles O. Pratt one additional vote to increase his lead over Tyrrell Krum in the county to 545 to 519.

Official returns from Fairfax County were held up because some precinct judges neglected to sign tally sheets.

Body to Hear Miles

Franklin T. Miles, Chevy Chase attorney, who charged that some Montgomery County school textbooks contain Communist propaganda, agreed last night to present his protest at a closed meeting of school and county officials Monday.

Miles previously said he would refuse to attend what he termed any "star chamber" closed session.

Last night he said he agreed to meet in private with the officials provided the facts would be made public if his charges are substantiated.

Mrs. Carlton Jones

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Hardy Hall Jones, 64, first cousin of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and a frequent visitor here, were held Tuesday in Wallingsford, Conn., with burial in Collinsville, Conn.

Mrs. Jones, widow of Judge Carlton Jones, died Sunday in Wallingsford, her home. She had been ill for 18 months.

She leaves a sister, Emily Hardy Hall of Wallingsford; a son, John Hardy Jones of Scarsdale, N. Y., and three grandchildren.

Clarence Ousley

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 5 (AP).—Clarence Ousley, 84, former Texas newspaperman and former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture during Woodrow Wilson's Administration, died today. Funeral services will be held here at 1 p. m. Friday and burial will take place at Oakland Cemetery in Dallas.

Red Cross Worker

Mrs. E. H. Rice Dies at Home; Ill for Year

Mrs. Elizabeth Hemperly Rice, 84, an active Red Cross worker and a District resident for 56 years, died Wednesday at her home, 4133 Jenifer st. nw. She had been partially paralyzed since suffering a stroke a year ago.

Mrs. Rice

Born near Hummelstown, Pa., Mrs. Rice moved to Washington in 1892, after her marriage to Dr. Eugene C. Rice, who retired a chiropodist here year and a half ago.

A member of Calvary Baptist Church, Mrs. Rice was active in Red Cross work during both world wars. In the last war she contributed more than 500 handmade articles, including 10 winter overcoats.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Dr. E. Clarence Rice, jr., of 7516 Morningside dr., nw., and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Butler of Glen Ridge, N. J. Two grandchildren also survive.

Services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., the Rev. T. O. Jones and the Rev. Linn C. Drake officiating. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Backenheimer Service Set For Today

Mrs. Aboad B. Backenheimer, 66, widow of Gustave Backenheimer, an insurance man here for many years, died Wednesday at her home, 1119 Euclid st. nw., after a seven-year illness.

Mrs. Backenheimer

Active in club and lodge work before her illness, Mrs. Backenheimer was a past councilor and a member of Goodwill Council No. 15, Daughters of America, for 35 years; a member of Mizpah Chapter No. 8, Order of the Eastern Star, since 1928, and a member of Dewey Naval Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans.

Born in Cicero, Md., Mrs. Backenheimer came to the District almost 50 years ago. She was married in 1902. Her husband died in 1936.

She is survived by a son, Henry, 3760 W st. nw.; a daughter, Miss Rosa Backenheimer, 1119 Euclid st. nw., and two grandchildren.

Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in Chambers Georgetown funeral parlors, 3072 M st. nw., with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Sagely Drafted Bid Wins Bungalow for Young Couple

The Washington Post

U. S.-OWNED BUNGALOW—Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Tayman, 1916 2d st. ne., will move into the Government-owned bungalow at 4212 Silver Hill rd., Suitland, Md., unless a higher bid than theirs has been unduly delayed in the mails. Tayman offered rental of $61.25 a month. The couple is shown with Allan R. Groom (right), chairman of the PBA bid committee, as he pulls their application from a pile on his desk

The sagely drafted bid of a young draftsman, Donald Tayman, 27, yesterday won for him and his new bride the right to rent a cozy bungalow, owned by Uncle Sam, at Suitland, Md.

When 21 bids were opened officially yesterday at 2 p. m. in Room 1126 at the Federal Works Agency Building, 18th and F sts. nw., Tayman's bid—$61.25—topped all others.

He confided later to a reporter: "I figured $60 was a fair rental—added a dollar to play it safe—and then tacked on 25 cents, just in case someone else had figured like I did." (Closest bid was $58.50.)

The one-bedroom bungalow with bath, kitchen and utility room, as well as a half-acre garden, is one of 90 dwellings on land purchased by the Government in 1940 for location of Census Bureau buildings.

Tayman, a draftsman with Aeronautical Radio, Inc., and his bride of June 19, Vivian, 26, now pay all of $25 a month for rent of a seven-room house at 1916 2d st. ne., while friends are on vacation.

The present tenant of the bungalow, John Backus and family, is moving to a home which he recently bought.

Unless a higher bid is received by mail and the postal mark indicates it should have been received before bid-opening time, or unless the Government finds him a "bad rent risk," Tayman triumphs.

W. T. Martin Funeral Set For Saturday

Funeral services for William T. Martin, 79, of 1327 Newton st. ne., retired Government Printing Office employe, who died Wednesday night, will be held at the Simmons funeral home, 2007 Nichols ave. se., at 10 a. m., Saturday. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Martin

Mr. Martin, a native of Baltimore and a resident of Washington for 55 years, died of pneumonia at Homeopathic Hospital after a four-week illness.

Mr. Martin retired from the Government Printing Office in 1934 after 27 years' service as a compositor and proofreader and in other capacities. His wife, Mrs. Emma May Martin, died in 1938.

He was a member of Federal Lodge of Masons, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Masonic Veterans Association, Association of Veteran Union Printers, the Typographical Union, Anacostia Citizens Association and the Association of Oldest Inhabitants.

Surviving are two sons, Edgar R. and Ralph D. Martin; a brother, George J. Martin, and a grandson, Edgar L. Martin, all of Washington.

18 Reburials Include Three D. C. Area Men

Reburial services for 18 Army and Air Force dead of World War II, including three Greater Washington men, will be held at 2 p. m. today in Arlington Cemetery.

Capt. Ettlinger

Those from Washington will include Capt. Walter K. Ettlinger, 46, whose widow, Mrs. Johanna B. Ettlinger, lives at 2962 2d st. se.

Captain Ettlinger, a veteran of 29 years in the Regular Army, died August 26, 1944, while serving near New Delhi, India, with the Inspector General's Department. Born in New York City and educated in parochial schools there, he joined the Army as a private in the infantry during the First World War at the age of 17. He served in the Philippines, Panama and Hawaii, and in June, 1941, received his commission at Fort Benning, Ga. He was made a captain in October of the same year, and went overseas in November, 1943. He was awarded the Bronze Star posthumously.

Also, among those to be reburied from the Washington area will be Pfc. Joseph W. Patterson, jr., 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Patterson, sr., 216 East Greenway blvd., Falls Church, Va.

An engineer with the Fourteenth Armored Division in France, Pfc. Patterson was killed in action January 15, 1945, while laying mines near Hatten. A graduate of Western High School here in 1943, he entered the Army immediately after graduation and went overseas in 1944. Private services will be held at his grave by the Rev. Dana Johnson of Resurrection Lutheran Church in Arlington, following the regular military ceremony.

First Lieut. Wilbur C. Kagle, whose father, Ernest Latimer Shirley, lives at 5306 Emerson st., Hyattsville, Md., according to the Army, is the third Greater Washington man to be reburied.

Mrs. Edward B. Fletcher

Funeral services for Mrs. Edward B. Fletcher, 73, wife of the former assistant District assessor, will be held today at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., at 3 p. m. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Fletcher, who lived at 3337 Military rd. nw., died Tuesday in Doctors Hospital after an illness of 11 weeks.

The former Emily Donath, she was a native Washingtonian and was employed in the War Department and Patent Office for 18 years. Her husband retired eight years ago.

Mrs. Fletcher was a past matron of Fidelity Chapter, Eastern Star, and was a member of the Wesley Methodist Church.

Mrs. Fletcher is also survived by a son, Courtney Fletcher; a sister, Mrs. Edwin S. Clarkson, a granddaughter, Mrs. Betty Mills, and one great grandchild, all of Arlington.

Franklin E. James

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Franklin Edward James, 37, former executive secretary of the National Research Council, died at City Hospital today of infantile paralysis. It was the first polio death of the year here.

Mrs. Guy Freer Succumbs in GW Hospital

Mrs. Guy Freer, 77, mother of Robert E. Freer, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, died unexpectedly yesterday at George Washington University Hospital.

Mrs. Freer, who had been in good health, was stricken at her home, 2016 R st. nw., Wednesday morning and admitted to the hospital in the afternoon.

The former May Dunlap, daughter of Robert E. and Celah W. Dunlap, of Cincinnati, Ohio, she was married to Guy Freer in 1894. Mr. Freer was executive secretary of the National Industrial Traffic League at the time of his death in 1920. For four years he had served as president of the league. Much of the language used by Mr. Freer in his recommendations to Congress was used in the drafting of the Transportation Act of 1920.

Besides Commissioner Freer she leaves another son, Paul A. Freer, an official of Standard Brands, Inc., New York; five grandchildren, Barry, Alice and Robert Freer, jr., Washington; Mrs. Jocelyn Freer Keith, New York, and Mrs. John Behling, Miami, Fla., and one great grandchild, Paul Behling, Miami.

Funeral services and burial will be held in Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, Saturday morning.

William Engel Dies; Former Restaurateur

William A. Engel, 82, famed restaurateur of former days and father of Joe Engel, former Washington pitcher and now president of the Chattanooga Lookouts and part-time Washington baseball scout, died early yesterday in Sibley Hospital.

Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been ill only two days.

Mr. Engel, a native of Buehne, Germany, owned and operated Engel's Hotel in the early 1900's at New Jersey ave. and C st. nw. The hotel became internationally known for its food.

Mr. Engel immigrated to Baltimore at the age of 19, and moved to Rosslyn, Va., a little more than a year later, where he was foreman of the old Portner Brewing Co.

Two years later he moved to Washington for a similar job with the Pabst Brewing Co. Made resident manager in 1890, he remained with the brewery until he entered the hotel business about 10 years later.

When the site of his business was condemned in 1911 to build Union Station Plaza, Mr. Engel opened another restaurant and bowling alley on Newspaper Row at 1327 E st. nw. He retired in 1917 shortly before the advent of prohibition.

Mr. Engel served steaks weighing a pound for a dollar. His 25-cent businessmen's lunch, a favorite of the trade, offered soup, meat or fish, two vegetables and bread and butter.

A life member of Washington Lodge No. 15 of the Elks, he was also, in his earlier days, active in the Saengerbund, a singing society. He belonged to Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Bethesda, and was active in its Holy Name Society.

Besides his son, Joe, and his wife, Mrs. Katherine Engel, with whom he lived at 17 Aspen st., Chevy Chase, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Charlotte A. Engel, of the same address, and three sons. They are Arnold C., of Washington, William A., Midland, Texas, and Francis H. Engel, of Chevy Chase.

Requiem mass will be said at 10 a. m. Saturday in Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Rockville.

William Henry Gable

Van Nuys, Calif., Aug. 5 (AP).—Death yesterday took William Henry Gable, 78-year-old father of actor Clark Gable.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Col. Claybrook Rites Held At Fort Myer

Col. John H. Claybrook, USA, 49, general staff officer since 1940 and recently a member of the United States Military Mission in Greece, was buried Wednesday in Arlington Cemetery, following services at Fort Myer Chapel.

Col. Claybrook

Colonel Claybrook, whose widow, Mrs. Lorraine D. Claybrook, lives at the Martinique Hotel, 1211 16th st. nw., died Sunday from a heart attack. He had just returned from Greece for treatment of a heart ailment and was visiting his son, Cadet John H. Claybrook, jr., at West Point when he died.

Born in Perry, Tex., Colonel Claybrook was graduated from Allen Academy, in Texas, in 1919, and from West Point in 1924. He entered the cavalry and remained at this branch of service throughout his entire military career, taking an active part in the change-over to mechanization.

In 1940, Colonel Claybrook came to Washington and served two years in the office of the Chief of Cavalry. He later commanded the Officer Candidate School at Fort Knox, Ky., before going to Europe with the Third Army's Twelfth Corps.

Colonel Claybrook was a veteran of the Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes, and Central European Campaigns.

Besides his wife, he leaves two sons, John H., jr., a West Point Cadet, and Robert Allan, a student at Texas College of Arts and Industry.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WITH THE SWIMS and the dashes out of the way, they're clearing the track for the main event of the Olympics—the marathon—which has been reserved for tomorrow, the final day of track competition. It was 40 years ago this summer, also in England, that the Olympic marathon almost plunged a peaceful world into uproar.

POVICH

I didn't see the Olympic marathon of 1908 but Mr. Albert Stevens Crockett did, as the London correspondent for James Gordon Bennett's New York Herald. He covered the games in a brief fling as a sports writer and went on to write the best-seller "When James Gordon Bennett Was Caliph of Gaghdad" and later carved himself a nice chunk in Who's Who in America.

Mr. Crockett, now a native of Summitt, N. J., tarried in Washington yesterday and was recalling the furore over the 1908 marathon when for three hours the flag of Italy was hoisted to the pole's peak in honor of the Italian runner Dorando, who was awarded the race by British Olympic officials. The only trouble was that Dorando, while first over the finish line, didn't win the race.

"THE BRITISH WERE rooting for anybody to beat the Americans in 1908," relates Mr. Crocett "and when it appeared that the South African marathoner, Heffron, couldn't win, they were willing to settle for any nationality to beat the United States runners. The Britons had been whipped up to anti-American feeling by British sports writers who had been constantly charging the United States team was tainted by professionalism.

"They built up a case by charging that James E. Sullivan, the American Olympic committeeman, was affiliated with the Spalding Co., sporting goods manufacturers, and asserted the United States team was subsidized. And they pandered to the anti-Irish feeling in England by emphasizing the great number of Irish names among the American squad.

"Despite the fact that Johnny Hayes of America was one of the marathon leaders, the announcer, scarlet-coated in honor of the presence of royalty, never gave Hayes a call during the race. Americans, and there were about 20,000 of them in the crowd of 70,000, waited anxiously for word of their countrymen in the race, but the British made no mention of the United States runners until Hayes loped into sight.

"A GREAT SHOUT went up when Dorando was the first runner to reach the park for the finishing lap. He collapsed near the finish and three times British committeemen helped him to his feet, finally dragged and hauling him across the line. It was obviously a foul and Dorando was disqualified but the British nevertheless hoisted Italy's flag up the pole.

"Hayes trotted into the park a moment later and finished freshly under his own power, but the Americans were forced to wrangle with the British for three hours before they could get him recognized as the winner. It had been a plucky race by Dorando despite his collapse, though, and Queen Alexandra in a special ceremony presented him with a gold cup.

'Even 40 years ago, the British could provide a park seating 70,000. The marathon started at Windsor Castle and finished in a large picnic grounds called Shepherd's Bush. Long before the marathon, the Americans in the stadium were angry with the British for awarding the 400-meter title to the Briton Wyndham Halswelle on the charge that two United States runners had pocketed him."

THERE HAD BEEN a previous incident, also, to whip up feeling between the Americans and the Britains, Mr. Crockett recalls. It was in the tug o'war, an event since dropped from the Olympic lists when a victory over the Americans was awarded to a burly police team from Liverpool.

"The Britishers did pull the lighter American team over the line," says Mr. Crockett, "but it was a hollow victory. The British team was using heelplates on their shoes, which was against the Olympic tug o' war rules, but the protest of the Americans got little consideration.

"Despite the rules against heel plates, the British decreed that the victory of their team could not be disputed because they were Liverpool bobbies and heel plates were a required part of the bobbies' uniform in Liverpool."

Indians, Held To 3 Hits, All Homers, Top Nats, 3 to 0

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—The Cleveland battery assaulted the Nats today, 3-0.

Catcher Jim Hegan walloped two home runs and Pitcher Gene Bearden got the only other hit—also a homer—as the league-leaders made it two in a row over the Nats and extended their current winning span to five in a row.

Ray Scarborough was the victim of the home-run wallops of the Hegan-Bearden team in the third inning. Hegan opened the round with his tenth homer and Bearden followed with his first. Those were the only two hits the Indians made off Scarborough in seven innings.

Ferrick Yields One

Cleveland's third and last hit—Hegan's second homer—came in the eighth inning off Tom Ferrick, who relieved after Scarborough was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the same inning.

Helping smooth the road for Bearden, whose six-hitter brought him his ninth triumph against three losses, were six Indian double plays, one short of tieing a major league mark.

Manager Lou Boudreau received injuries in the seventh inning and had to leave the game.

Dr. Ed Castle, Cleveland club physician, said later that X-rays showed Boudreau's right shoulder, right knee and right ankle were only bruised and that he might be able to play in the important four-game series opening here with the New York Yankees tomorrow.

Knocked Down by Coan

In an attempt to make a double play, Boudreau took a low throw from Bearden and was knocked down by Gil Coan, sliding into second.

Boudreau remained on the ground for several minutes, but resumed play. Johnny Berardino batted for him in the seventh inning when doctors thought it best to take the Indian skipper to a hospital for a checkup.

Tribe Sets Home Crowd Mark After 48 Games

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Today's attendance of 13,967 at the Nat-Cleveland game set a new attendance mark for Indian home games.

In 48 home games, the Indians have attracted 1,530,224 fans compared to 1,521,978 in 77 home games last year.

Cleveland has played to crowds of more than 70,000 five times this year.

NEAR TRAGEDY—Unconscious Greta Anderson, of Denmark, is being pulled from Olympic pool at Wembley yesterday by Elemer Szathmaary, of Hungary (left), and Mrs. Nancy Merki Lees, of Portland, Oreg., and Asheville, N. C., American entry. Their prompt action saved Miss Anderson from drowning after she was stricken with a stomach cramp in the middle of the 400-meter race. The Danish swimming star, who won the 100-meter race earlier in record equalling time, felt that being thwarted in her bid for an Olympic double was tragic enough. She sobbed in the hospital, "I was sure I could have won"

A's Take Two From Chisox, Gain 2d Place

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics, who haven't had a home run in Chicago's Comiskey Park since 1946, today used two round trippers to win a double-header, 3-0 and 7-4, against the Chicago White Sox before 8053 persons.

After Joe Coleman pitched a six-hitter for his eleventh win, Don White and Sam Chapman used homers to clinch the second game.

The twin victory lifted Philadelphia into second place in American League standings, a half game ahead of the leading Cleveland Indians.

Majeski broke the homer famine when he opened the A's ninth with his No. 10 off Joe Haynes, Pieretti's successor.

The full house stage for White's round tripper in the second game against Frank Papish, who went the distance on a yield of six hits, was set with a walk, Chapman's scratch single and Luke Appling's boot.

Olympic Scare

Danish Swimmer Rescued As Cramps End Hopes in '400'

Olympic Pool, Wembley, Aug. 5. Danish swimming star Greta Andersen nearly drowned in her attempt for a coveted Olympic "double" here today.

Miss Andersen, winner of the 100-meter championship earlier this week in record equaling time, developed a stomach cramp midway in the 400-meter race.

A shocked crowd of 6000 screamed with terror when she suddenly doubled up and sank. Mrs. Nancy Merki Lees, Portland, Oreg., entry and Elemer Szathmaary of Hungary, promptly swam to her rescue and pulled her from the pool.

Mrs. Lees, who took up swimming to aid her recovery from polio, was watching the race from a television set on the sidelines. She had competed in the previous heat and was still in her bathing suit.

"I saw Greta fold up," she said, "and I tore off my sweatsuit and dove in after her."

"She kept groaning terribly," Mrs. Lees said.

The pair of rescuers held the stricken swimmer until the end of the race and then carried her to the side of the pool. She was taken to a hospital where doctors said her condition was not serious.

However, she will not compete further. "I'm so disappointed," Miss Andersen sobbed in the hospital, "I felt sure I would win."

A woman track star also was an accident victim today. Miss O. Sienerova, of Czechoslovakia, fell on her face 10 yards from the finish in the 200-meter dash and had to be helped from the track. She was leading at the time of her nasty spill.

Yanks Edge Tigers, 2-1

Detroit, Aug. 5 (AP).—Cashing in on three timely doubles, the New York Yankees nipped the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1, today to run their winning streak to five games.

Allie Reynolds scattered six hits to best Freddie Hutchinson in a tight pitchers' duel but had to have help in the ninth from Fireman Joe Page, big New York left-hander.

Red Sox Nip Browns, 8-7

St. Louis, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox downed the St. Louis Browns, 8-7, today with Vern Stephens, who made errors on two consecutive plays earlier in the game, singling home Johnny Pesky with the winning run in the eighth.

Al Zarilla drove in Bryan Stephens in the sixth, tying the score.

Sharing batting honors with Vern Stephens was Ted Williams, Boston's ailing star, who had three straight singles in four trips before he was taken out of the game in the sixth. Each drove in two runs.

Locke Shares 'Tam' Lead With Barron

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Bobby Locke of South Africa, sinking a 10-footer on the final green of today's third round, overhauled pace-setting Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., to share the 54-hole leadership in the $50,000 All-American gold tourney at 208 strokes each, eight under par.

Locke reeled off a two-under-par 70 to catch Barron, who tacked a 72 to his 36-hole count of 136.

A stroke behind with 209's each were veteran Lloyd Mangrum of the host Tam O'Shanter Club, and lightly reckoned Pete Cooper of Gainesville, Fla., who bagged 70 and 68, respectively, in the quest for the $5000 top prize in the three-ringed Tam carnival.

Henry Ransom, Chicago's transplanted Texan, one of three 67 shooters today, was two strokes off the pace with 210, followed by Bill Nary of Phoenix, Ariz., whose 70 gave him 211, and Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., and Herman Keiser of Akron, deadlocked at 212.

The all-American amateur competition produced 54-hole coleaders at even par 216 as Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, rapped the meet's best simon-pure round, 67, and Harold Brink, Grand Rapids, Mich., sharpshooter, kept abreast despite a big 76.

The day's third 67 was fashioned by Cary Middlecoff, which still left the Memphis, Tenn., dentist 9 strokes off the professional pace with 217 and tied for twenty-third place.

Knotted with four other pros at 213, 5 strokes behind the coleaders, was fading Ralph Guldahl of Chicago. He wobbled to a 76 after opening Tuesday with a breaking 64 and slowing to 73 yesterday.

Other 213 shooters were Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., runner-up in the year's money-winning column with $21,843; Ed (Porky) Oliver of Kenmore, Wash.; Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., and Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. All four were casual performers today with Snead and Demaret carding 72s, Harper hitting 73 and Oliver 74.

In the women's end of festivities, Patty Berg of Minneapolis, went into a two-stroke lead over Babe Zaharias of Ferndale, N. Y., firing her second straight 80 against Babe's 81. Miss Berg now has a 54-hole total of 236 to Mrs. Zaharias' 238. Leading the feminine amateurs was Carol Diringer of Tiffin, Ohio, with a 240 total.

Jamaicans Finish 1-2; Yanks Win Pool Events

By Gayle Talbot

Olympic Stadium, Wembley, England, Aug. 5 (AP).—America's 20-year monopoly on the Olympic 400-meter run went boom today when a pair of former high school teammates from Kingston, Jamaica, ran the legs off the best Uncle Sam could produce.

One of them, a gangling, coffee-colored speedster named Arthur Wint, circled the red Olympic track in 46.2 seconds to win the classic middle-distance event by 2 yards and equal the games' record set by Bill Carr of the United States at Los Angeles in 1932.

The towering Jamaican made up fully 6 yards in a spectacular stretch drive in which he nailed his countryman, the famous Herb McKenley, 15 yards from the finish wire.

McKenley, in turn, flashed across 4 yards in front of Mal Whitfield, the American Air Forces sergeant who earlier in the week captured the 800 meters. It shattered Whitfield's dream to become the first Olympic runner ever to win both the 800 and 400.

None of the other three finalists ever figured in the race, run over a track somewhat soft from intermittent rain. Dave Bolen, graduate of Colorado University, took fourth place; Morris Curotta of Australia was fifth, and George Guida of Villanova sixth.

Shatters Sweep

The two flying Jamaicans broke a string of American successes which began when Ray Barbuti captured the 400 at Amsterdam in 1928. They also shattered Coach Dean Cromwell's hopes of sweeping every flat race in the present games from the 100 through the 800 meters.

Another great crowd near the stadium's capacity of 80,000 sat through the showers as the American track and field forces failed for only the second day since the games began to win a first place.

Those fans, who have attended the games in amazing numbers, finally heard the band pla "God Save the King" when Wint received the victor's salute.

Three blond, tireless Swedes ran away with the day's other final, the 3000-meter steeplechase, breaking a monopoly the Finns had enjoyed since 1924.

Swedes Hold 2d

The sweep gave the Swedes their third track and field triumph and strengthened their hold on second place among the nations. The United States was far in the lead with eight firsts. No other country had more than one.

Tore Sjoestrand won the long test over hurlers and through a water jump in the time of 9 minutes, 4.6 seconds, finishing some 20 yards in front of his teammate, Erik Elmsaeter, who was clocked in 9:08.2. Gote Hagstroem loped in third, another 30 yards back, and A. Cuyode of Italy was fourth.

The only American among the dozen finalists was Browning Ross, a little gamester from Villanova. He finished seventh, but he gave it a try. He stayed right up with the front-running Swedes, and was second with only four laps to go. From there on, though, his legs began to wilt, and at the end he was about 100 yards away.

While America's dry land athletes were drawing a blank on the score sheet, her water stars in the nearby Empire Pool were busy breaking more records and chalking up their third straight diving title.

Lee Wins Diving

Lieut. Sammy Lee, 28-year-old medical officer from Pasadena, Calif., won a clean-cut decision over 25 of the world's greatest diving stars in the high tower event. This was added to the men's and women's springboard titles, already salted away by the American team. Another first is confidently expected tomorrow in the women's high dive.

Joe Verdeur of Philadelphia chalked up a new Olympic record

Gil Easily Advances To Quarters

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—The National Junior Tennis championship settled down today as a steady parade of favorites sailed into the quarter-final round of singles play.

Top seeded Richard Mouledous of New Orleans, 1947 runner-up, had his share of troubles again today, surviving his second straight three-set match to advance with a 9—7, 3—6, 6—1 verdict over Julian Oates of Waco, Tex.

Second seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, Western Junior champion and the hottest thing hereabouts to this point, breezed along with a simple 6—2, 6—2 decision from Dick Norris of Milwaukee in the fourth round.

National Scholastic Champ Gil Bogley, third seeded star from Chevy Chase, Md., lost only three games, beating Ray Demerry of San Angelo, Tex., 6—1, 6—2.

Pairings for tomorrow's quarter-final junior matches send Mouledous against Tom Boys, Trabert against Main and Bogley against Charles Devoe of Indianapolis.

Gerry Thomas of Washington was kayoed by Boys today, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

In the boys division, Defending Champion Bob Perry took a simple straight set verdict from Tim Coss of Washington, D. C., 6—4, 6—3 and seeded Al Cleveland of Santa Monica, Calif., last year's runner-up, pasted Dick Potter of Hamtramck, Mich., 6—2, 6—0.

In another third round match Ted Rogers, Chevy Chase, Md., defeated Al Kuhn, Evanston, Ill., 6—2, 6—2.

borough received instead his sixth setback, two of which have come at the hands of the Indians. Except for the third inning when the Indians threw their one-two punch at him, Ray didn't allow the semblance of a hit. He faced only 24 batters in seven innings, walking two and hitting one.

Bearden on Ropes

The Nats had Bearden on the ropes in the last three innings when they hit five of their six singles he yielded, but couldn't come up with the knockout blow. Double plays stopped the Nats each time.

Washington's best opportunity came in the ninth when Al Evans, batting for Coan, and Tom McBride singled in succession with one away.

With three pitchers warming up in the Indian bullpen, Mark Christman halted all activities by rolling into the sixth double play of the afternoon.

The Nats entrained immediately after the game for Detroit where tomorrow they open a four-game series with Walter Masterson pitching.

Grays and Clowns Play Here Tonight

One of the lagest crowds of the season is expected to witness the Washington Grays baseball game against the zany Indianapolis Clowns at Griffith Stadium, tonight.

The Clowns' diamond antics have had the fans in stitches when they appeared here earlier in the season.

Goose Tatum, who wears an oversized first sacker's mitt that resembles a dog catcher's net; Juggling Joe Taylor, who juggles up to four baseballs at one time; and King Tut, whose hellzapoppin' stunts are highly amusing, are the Clowns' headliners.

The standout performers for the Grays include Luke Easter and Buck Leonard, who have each averaged a homer a game at Griffith Stadium this fall. Game time is 8 p. m.

Larkin Stops Beltram in N. Y.

Referee Eddie Joseph and Dr. Vincent Nardiello ended the fight because of severe cuts over and below Beltram's right eye.

It was strictly no contest for Larkin, who weighed 143¼ was the complete master of the 137-pound Beltram throughout. The bout, shoved into the Garden in a hurry to fill an open date when another bout cancelled out, drew one of the smallest turnouts in recent Garden history—4417 customers who paid $9,214.26.

Jet Motors Annex Anacostia Rec, Crown

Jet Motors put on an eight-run splurge in the first inning and went on to win the Anacostia Recreation League championship yesterday from McKee Pontiac, 11 to 4. Bob Browning winning pitcher, coasted home after that early rally.

Braves Finally Win Over Reds, 6-4

D. C. Firemen Extinguished By N. Y., 7 to 4

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Held to two hits for seven innings by Ben Harrell, the New York Fire Department scored five times in the eighth, and rode to a 7-4 victory over the Washington Firemen last night before 8000 at Griffith Stadium.

Harrell, out for his thirteenth straight victory, instead was responsible for Washington's third loss in 26 games.

A sudden streak of wildness led to Harrell's downfall. After giving up two hits and a run in the first inning, he pitched six consecutive hitless innings, and over one stretch retired 14 straight batters.

But with Washington ahead, 4-1, in the eighth, he walked three New Yorkers. Then, with one out, he pitched a two-run double to Ed Als and a two-run single to Herb White. Reliefer Ernie Boggs proved a poor fireman, giving up another run before the eighth was over, and the final New York tally in the ninth.

Washington tied the score at 1-1 in the third on singles by Harrell and Dick Farr, and one of New York's seven errors. The locals went ahead, 3-1, in the fifth on Harrell's second hit, two walks, an infield out and Bill Moore's single.

Wint Breaks '400' Monopoly; Yanks Star in Swim Events of 2:40 in winning his heat of the 200-meter breaststroke swim. The old mark was 2:42.5, set by Tetsuo Hamuro of Japan in 1936.

The women's 100-meter breaststroke championship, however, went to Karen Margrethe Harup of Denmark, who defeated Suzanne Zimmerman of Portland, Oreg., and lowered the Olympic record to 1:14.4. Miss Zimmerman was second.

Audrey Patterson, a tall Negro girl from New Orleans, was the only one of three American entrants to qualify for tomorrow's finals in the 200-meter sprint. Nell Jackson of Tuskegee and Mae Faggs of New York both failed to survive the opening heat.

Mrs. Fannie Blankers-Koen, the 30-year-old Dutch matron who already has won the 100-meter dash and 80-meter hurdles, looks like a cinch to win this one, too, and become the first women's triple Olympic victor. Babe Didrikson won two at Los Angeles in 1932.

In the first of today's two semi-final heats, Miss Patterson finished about 5 yards behind the Dutch phenom. The winning time, 24.1 seconds, did not indicate that the world record of 23.6 set by Stella Walsh in 1935 will be in much danger tomorrow.

The first five events of the decathlon, supreme test of speed, skill and strength, found the three American competitors sitting comfortably in third, fourth and fifth positions tonight, with five more events to be decided tomorrow.

Leading the field of 33 at the halfway point was Enrique Kistenmacher, versatile Argentine, with a total of 3397 points. Second was Ignace Heinrich of France, with 3880. Bob Mathias, the 17-year-old schoolboy from Tulare, Calif., was third, with 3848; Floyd Simmons, formerly of the University of North Carolina, fourth with 3843, and big Irv Mondschein of New York University, fifth with 3811.

In rowing, the University of California's husky eight clocked the fastest time of the day up the abbreviated 1900-meter course, winning the nightcap heat against Yugoslavi aand France in 5 minutes 59.1 seconds. They were the only crew to break six minutes in the nine-hour parade of shells.

The other three United States heat winners could not match the excellence of Washington in gaining the quarter-finals and California semifinals, but they were not out for records nor were they pushed.

Bespectacled Jack Kelly, jr., of Philadelphia, loafed into the semi-finals of the single sculls—an event his father won in 1920—against Curt Brunnqvist of Sweden and J. Omedes Caloja of Spain.

After a faulty start in which they hit a pair of buoys fringing the narrow river, Yale University's four oars without cox crew vanquished Argentina by a seven-second margin, with Hungary far in the rear. Yale thus gained the semifinals.

The same three nations met in the double sculls and the order of finish was a carbon copy. Winning United States colors were borne by Bowman Art Gallagher of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and stroke oar Joe Angyal of New York.

The United States basketball team was idle and the epee fencing team was eliminated in the quarterfinals of the team championships by losing successively to Belgium and Luxembourg.

The United States marksmen couldn't do better than 13th place in the rapid fire pistol shooting as a one-armed Hungarian established a world record with 580 points out of possible 600.

Great Britain's field hockey team trounced the United States, 11 to 0, in an after-dark fray that was played in a downpour.

Only in yachting and rowing did the Americans keep pace with their running and swimming sisters and brothers. American sailors led the way in both the six-meter and star class yachting competitions.

Mrs. Kipp's 78 Wins Indian Spring Golf

Mrs. H. H. Kipp stroked a 101—23—78 yesterday to win the Ladies' Day golf competition at Indian Spring Golf and Country Club.

Second low net honors went to Mrs. Paul Costello who had 92—12—80. Guest prize was awarded Mrs. Faga Bond of Kenwood, who shot 100—21—79.

Torgeson, Dark Pace Rally in 8th

Boston, Aug. 5 (AP).—Boston's Braves tonight rallied for two runs after two werer out in the eighth inning and defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 6-4, ending a losing streak which had extended through four games. A somewhat chilled crowd of 13,521 saw Tommy Holmes single, Al Dark poke his second double of the night and Earl Torgeson lash a triple into left center for the tow wining runs.

Pinch Hitter Augie Galan was called out on strikes to end the game and had a few words with plate Umpire Lou Jorda as both walked off the field. Umpire Beans Reardon stepped between the two near the tunnel by which the players leave the field and motioned for the veteran Galan to keep moving.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, AUGUST 6, 1948

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

WATERMELON is often served at barbecues in Nevada, but this one didn't come from there! Mrs. George Malone, wife of the junior Nevada Senator, is slicing a juicy Southern melon given her by Gov. Melvin E. Thompson of Georgia. The Malones, who are famous in Washington for their annual dinners featuring Nevada food, brought the Georgia prize back with them by plane from a recent visit South

But They Still Love Jeans

College Girls Approve Longer Skirts for Day, Victorian Date Frocks

By Peggy Preston

THE college girl of 1948 has made many concessions to the newest silhouette. She wears her skirts longer, her hair shorter, has fewer sweaters and man-tailored jackets. But she still loves her blue jeans and any kind of trouser fashions.

She is a member of that elite group of American women who tell designers exactly what she wants to wear—in advance. And she usually gets it. In June the fashion editors of Women's Wear Daily, a Fairchild publication, made their annual poll of students at leading colleges in the United States, to find out what they would like in their wardrobes this fall. Manufacturers followed the results of this poll rather carefully, for they know from past experience that it is useless to offer a fashion that is contrary to the tastes of the college lass. She simply refuses to wear it.

In the collections of campus clothes that are just beginning to arrive at local stores there are items that will suit the college crowd to a tee. The skirt story is simpler than last season. Long, full skirts are shown in date, dinner and dress-up frocks. For classroom and campus the fullness is considerably modified, sometimes limited to flared gores, soft, unfolded pleats with easy swing.

There is a Victorian slant to most of the more formal clothes—snug bodice, sloping shoulders, full skirt. Lots of velveteen and fine wale corduroy is being used in rich colors of wine, green, gold and blue.

In the junior miss department of Woodward & Lothrop we found some precious little velveteen suits, with snug, fitted jackets and gently flared skirts. Collars and cuffs are of matching satin and colors range from a light blue to gold and deep rust. Also in this department was a doublet or jerkin type suit that is serviceable to the girl with several pretty blouses. Then there were lots of costumes in that popular fabric, corduroy. You may buy separate garments, jacket, skirts and slacks, in constrasting colors.

A GLANCE in the Junior Shop at Jelleff's revealed several pretty frocks. There is a glen plaid suit dress, the jacket unlined, which is practical for classroom wear. Made of a finely finished fabric, 100 per cent wool, its colors are brown and gray. There is also an interesting corduroy suit in becoming shades of gray, toast, blue, green and royal.

Jersey blouses are good fashion news this season and the Greenbrier Shop at Garfinckel's will have an extensive collection of them this month. There will be classic jerseys with pushup sleeves and high neckline; slick and sophisticated ones with a cummerbund, and the Balmain jersey that can double as an evening blouse. All are of fine worsted jersey fabric and can be a backbone of your entire college wardrobe.

This same department is featuring cashmere sweaters, neat and feminine, with skirts dyed to match; beautifully tailored gabardine and worsted slacks, classic items that are dear to the hearts of the young set.

For the latest in rain togs we looked at the collection in the sports department at Raleigh Haberdasher. There we saw a big stock of those long, full flowing water repellent coats that are handsome enough to wear on a sunny day over your best suit. Nearly all had the full backs, with hoods attached, so apparently the college girl has given her O. K. to these fashion items.

One we especially liked was of glen plaid in soft shades of oxford gray, blue and rose, and there was a black and white pin-check that was effective. But if you are looking for a coat that is really different, there is one made of a rayon fabric, stenciled to simulate lizard skin. Colors, gray or tan.

THE best candidate for the campus winter coat is one that is roomy, warm and comfortable. In the misses' department at Lansburgh's there is a large and varied collection of these college girl favorites, made by a famous coat and suit company. A dark bottle green pure wool takes first honors, in our opinion. It is cut with the fitted yoke top, the back fanning out to fall in small, graceful folds; the collar is high; can be worn stand-up style around the ears. A fringed stole of red and green plaid zips on at the collar line and can be worn as a hood or scarf. The lining is of matching plaid, zips in with the new talon zipper, which works easily and quickly. This particular model will also be available in junior sizes, scaled down to suit smaller figures.

For those first few months of school, when evening parties are

Mrs. Malone Gives Nevada Recipes

Good Food From 'Home on the Range'

This is the ninth in a series of articles on regional cookery in the United States, featuring favorite menus and recipes of Congressional wives.

By Lucia Brown

ROBUST Western victuals vie with sophisticated culinary masterpieces on the dinner tables of Reno, Nev., home town of Mrs. George Malone.

The attractive wife of the junior Senator from Nevada was born in Colorado and reared in California, but she has spent most of the 27 years of her married life in the divorce capital.

"People have strange ideas about Nevada," she says. "They think of Reno for divorces and Las Vegas for gambling, but never of the fact that most residents live a good deal as people do elsewhere.

"There's a cosmopolitan air about Reno, of course, because the citizenry has been attracted there from so many places—by the weather and business interests, as well as the divorce mills," she adds. "There are lots of gourmets in Reno, too. I've eaten some of the most delicious continental dishes there I've ever seen anywhere, served along with wonderful Western steaks, chops and other foods."

Favorite form of entertaining in the "Sage Brush" State is the barbecue out on the range, according to Mrs. Malone. There are many of these at roundup time on the ranches around Reno. Guests are invited to come out, ride cow ponies and help with the roundup. Afterwards a big barbecue supper is served at one of the camps on the range.

SENATOR and Mrs. Malone live in the town of Reno, but hope some day to have a ranch of their own. Meantime, when they are at home, they occasionally borrow a friend's ranch and give a barbecue themselves. The menu for the last one they gave went like this: Maybe you'd like to try it in your own backyard!

Tiny Red and Yellow Tomatoes
Browned New Potatoes on Toothpicks
Barbecued Beef . Mexican Sauce
Corn on the Cob
Tossed Green Salad
Coffee Hot Buns
Ice Cold Watermelon

The little red and yellow tomatoes are served hors d'oeuvre style with pounded rock salt. Rock salt (usually used for cattle) has more flavor than table salt, Mrs. Malone says, and sticks to the tomato better. The tip end is cut from the tiny tomatoes or they are pricked well so they'll take up the salt when you dip them in.

The new potatoes—very small ones—are browned in butter. Then a big tray of the hot potatoes on toothpicks is passed around to the guests.

At a big barbecue out West, the beef is cooked whole all night long in an outdoor pit. You get plenty of it on your plate, too, out there in the heart of the cattle country. The Mexican sauce Mrs. Malone serves with barbecue is made with chopped fresh onions, peppers and tomatoes, all mixed together in a vinegar sauce that's hot with pepper and high with garlic.

Ice cold watermelon is a perfect—and easy to serve—dessert to top off this feast, Mrs. Malone says. Something else she likes to serve after a barbecue meal, if the season and serving facilities are right, is strawberry short cake—big servings of it, made with fresh straw-

Slimming on a Budget

Swimming, Plus Diet, Corrects Figure Faults

This is the fifth of a series of six articles on "Summer Slimming" with budget menus by Diet Expert Ida Jean Kain.

By Ida Jean Kain

THE TERM bathing beauty comes from swimming. If you don't swim you're not likely to be a bathing beauty, for swimming is the one exercise guaranteed to take off fat where you're bunchy, put on curves where you're skinny, and fix all figure faults.

IDA JEAN KAIN

If you're not aquatic-minded, don't stop reading. You're the girl I wrote this for. You miss half the fun of summer, all because you're afraid of the water. Come on in—anyone can learn to swim.

The easiest way to go about it is to practice floating in shallow water. A Hawaiian instructor recommends this method: Wade out waist-deep, squat until your shoulders are immersed, hold your arms above your head and slowly lean back until the water makes a pillow for your head. Then push from the bottom. Your feet will rise, he promises, and you will drift along as smoothly as a swan . . . And your self-confidence will bob up like a buoy.

I've never heard of anyone drowning while learning to swim. And once you know your way around in the water, common-sense precautions can keep you safe. For instance: Don't swim within 2 hours after eating; don't swim entirely alone—keep within calling distance of somebody; never swim when you feel below par or when you're very weary; and take it easy.

Never mind if your stroke is old-fashioned—a courageous breast stroke, a prudent side-strike, or even a sort of dog paddle—swim it! One trouble with adults is that we have a lot of false pride and we let it spoil our fun. Nobody expects you to be an Esther Williams or an Eleanor Holm. Swim whatever stroke you know best. Then take a turn at learning a new one. If you've never tried the backstroke, you don't know what you're missing. It's just floating with a sort of free-wheeling motion. Lie on your back and circle alternate arms easily backward, bringing them down through the water. Lock, you're swimming! And from that, take a try at the crawl. It's the fastest stroke, but the others are just as streamlining.

But even swimming can't keep you streamlined if you overeat.

About Wedding Plans

I am planning to be married to an Army officer on September 6 in the post chapel and would appreciate it if you could give me some detailed information on how to plan a military wedding, or if you could direct me to some source of information. D. L. R.

Chief difference between the military and civilian wedding is that bride and groom descend the steps outside of the church under an arch made of shining swords held by the servicemen ushers. The cake is often cut with the bridegroom's sword at the reception, too—or with a sword borrowed from a friend, since swords aren't in such general use any more. The suggested pattern for church weddings, found in Emily Post's "Etiquette" (Funk & Wagnalls) and similar books, can be followed. A more specific discussion of military weddings is given in "Your Wedding—How to Plan and Enjoy it," by Marjorie Binford Woods (Bobbs Merrill). The chaplain at the post will undoubtedly be able to give you much helpful information regarding ceremony procedure, too.

I wonder if you can tell me where I can buy a certain type of cushion made especially to relieve backaches. I talked to a lady on the streetcar who had one but failed to find out from her where to buy it. V. M. B.

The type of cushion you ask about (trade name deleted) can be purchased from a local physicians' supply store. The telephone number of this firm is National 6566.

I have a blue synthetic leather baby carriage, and the top where it was folded has turned white. Can I buy anything to recondition the top? D. W.

The top can be refinished by covering it with a thin coat of good quality, quick-drying enamel in the desired color. Be sure all dust and dirt have been removed from the leatherette by brushing and wiping with a damp cloth before painting. Put up the top of the buggy and be sure that it is quite dry. One local firm sells a paint product made particularly for use on imitation leather. It can be reached by telephoning District 1130.

Will you give me some suggestions for a color scheme with a southeastern exposure? Two windows face south and one faces east. J. C. S.

If your kitchen is a sunny one, as seems likely from your description, you don't have to worry too much about getting light and warmth into the general effect. One idea would be to paint the walls a pale blue, have a dark blue or cherry red linoleum floor, white cabinets and other furnishings in white, blue or cherry. Curtains could be white, with blue and cherry red edgings. Another color scheme you might use is ivory, rose and green. Cabinets and walls could be ivory and the floor a patterned linoleum in the three colors. The same colors could be used in table tops, curtains and other accessories. If you prefer, you can stick to a two-color scheme, perhaps using polka-dotted curtains. Blue and ivory would be pretty, or white and bright yellow.

A few weeks ago, a glass fell on a fine Haviland china meat platter, breaking a 3-inch piece out of the rim. Can you tell me if there are any firms in Washington that repair fine china? H. G. G.

One firm that does work of this type can be reached by telephoning Adams 5795.

Latin-American Board To Give Big Reception Honoring New Chairman

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEXT Wednesday Washington's Latin-American military circles will be yanked from dog day doldrums by a mammoth reception given at the Carlton in honor of Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Willis D. Crittenberger. On Tuesday, at a plenary session of the Inter-American Defense Board, the general will assume its chairmanship. So the reception is being given by the board to celebrate this event.

The Inter-American Defense Board, incidentally, is made up of senior army, navy and air officers of the 21 Latin-American republics and functions for the military in an almost similar manner as the Pan American Union does for the civil.

General Crittenberger, a West Pointer and cavalryman turned tanker, during the early war days operated with the Second Armored Division under General Patton, later became corps commander in Italy. Right now he is the senior United States Army delegate at the United Nations. In addition he has headed the Caribbean command, an important national defense post. Oddly he and Lieut. Gen. Matthew Ridgway have swapped commands. General Ridgway has been chairman of the IADB and now assumes the Caribbean Command. Mrs. Crittenberger hails from San Antonio, Tex., and their son, Lieutenant Colonel Crittenberger, jr., is aide to Secretary of the Army Royall.

Emery Siposs to Be Missed

WASHINGTON'S correctly curvaceous ladies will miss Emery Siposs not only because of his streamlining exercises but also for his entertaining personality. The Hungarian-born physiotherapist, who died Tuesday in Santa Barbara, was imported to the Capital from Buenos Aires by Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss.

His exercising method caught on immediately with overstuffed, under-exercised office big shots as well as their shape-conscious wives.

Siposs went from house to house, starting his rounds at 6 a. m., in a huge red sport car, wearing a scarf tied a la Hollywood, a gaily striped sweatshirt and plaid slacks covering his 5 foot 3, 125-pound frame. He told the talest tales about his Magyar ancestors, the people he'd worked for or on, the remarkable business offers he'd been propositioned with. He didn't smoke but drank brandy, nothing else. Every morning he exercised both Mr. and Mrs. Bliss, and out in Santa Barbara he managed a full-sized up-to-date gym. There'll be many a bulge around town now that Siposs has gone for good.

Good Food to Drive To

THESE hot nights most prisoners in Washington like to get out of town to relax and eat something good, different. Places are hard to find, but a new eatery has just come to this department's gastronomical attention. It's the River House—on the Shenandoah River at Boyce, Va.—just after you cross the bridge beyond Paris and the Asby Gap on Route 50. River House is 59 miles away, but worth it because there are outdoor dining terraces, handsome dining and living rooms. River House is owned by Mrs. Gilpin and Middleburg's Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin—and most capably managed.

ECA's Bright Members

ECA's continuing to attract some of the brightest men in this country. Over in Holland the new ECA setup is especially good. Heading it up is Allen Ballentine, a Rhodes scholar and secretary of the Rhodes scholar committee, who is still president of Rochester University. He is married to the former Lucia Norton, a sister of Assistant Secretary of State Garrison Norton. Along with Ballentine are the attractive John Mumpstones.

Just left for Rome and the handling of information and public relations for ECA's Italian missions in Andrue Berding, the journalist who wrote former Secretary of State Cordell Hull's book.

Andy Burding is undoubtedly one of few Americans who have worked their way through Oxford. He turned the trick by toiling on the side for the Associated Press, after graduation getting a job with them.

He's an old Roman hand, having visited the Holy City as a student, was stationed there as a newspaperman, dropping in wartimes as OSS officer and now, for the fourth time, to iron out difficulties for the ECA unit headed by San Francisco's paper tycoon Zellerbarger.

Assembling and writing Mr. Hull's book was a terrific job. Curiously, neither the Secretary nor Berding imagined it would appeal to more than a few internationally minded erudites. They were both as amazed as pleased when the tome consistently hit best-seller lists.

Mrs. Weis To Be Associate GOP Manager

Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., of Rochester, N. Y., yesterday was designated associate campaign manager for the Dewey-Warren ticket, according to an announcement by Campaign Manager Herbert Brownell, jr. She will assume her new duties in campaign headquarters today.

Mrs. Weis, who is New York State's Republican national committeewoman, is an outstanding leader in National Party affairs. She began her political activities in 1935. She is a member of the executive committee of the New York State Republican Committee, vice chairman of her county Republican organization, and was a delegate at large to the 1940, 1944 and 1948 national conventions. She was president of the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs in 1940-42. A citizen of Rochester, Mrs. Weis has been active in civic and philanthropic projects there.

"I am especially gratified to announce the appointment of Mrs. Weis as associate manager for the 1948 campaign," Mr. Brownell said. "The campaign will benefit greatly from her valuable experience and keen political sagacity. Mrs. Weis has a wide acquaintance over the country, is regarded as a potent factor in women's political achievements, and is admirably qualified to share in directing both the women's and men's activities for our winning ticket."

Western Meals—With a Continental Flavor

berries and plenty of whipped cream.

NOT far from Reno are the beautiful Sierra Nevada Mountains where there is fine skiing. (The word "Nevada," incidentally, means "snow-covered.") Mount Rose is only 30 minutes drive from Reno, and Truckee, an old frontier town that's also a ski resort, is 45 minutes away. In the fall and winter, the Malones enjoy entertaining dinner guests at their home in Reno after skiing trips or after University of Nevada football games. Both of them are alumni of the university, which is located in Reno.

To start off dinner after these outdoor occasions, Mrs. Malone likes to serve hot tomato juice instead of soup. She gives her guests big brown earthware mugs of it to drink as they stand around the fire in the living room before going in to dinner. It isn't just plain tomato juice, though. Here is the way it is prepared:

The juice is heated and seasoned well with Worcestershire sauce, salt, and pepper. Then whipped cream with finely chopped cucumber and onion added is prepared. A big bowlful of the latter is passed around to the guests, who put generous spoonsful of it on top of the hot tomato juice.

"The smooth, flavored cream is delicious with the hot, tart juice," Mrs. Malone says.

THOUGH Nevada is noted for its cattle and sheep, there are porkers, too, nosing around in the foothills of the Sierras. And since Idaho's!—, she likes to combine potatoes on its irrigated land—Mrs. Malone says they're just as good as Idahos!—, she lives to combine potatoes and pork chops in a hearty and filling main dish for an informal supper party:

PORK CHOP POTATO

Salt and pepper the chops and let them get just brown in the frying pan. Meanwhile, butter a casserole and place in it a layer of thinly sliced raw potatoes. Sprinkle over it a little chopped onion, salt, pepper, and a few drops of drawn butter.

On top of the potatoes, arrange a layer of the browned pork chops, put a potato layer on top of that, then another layer of chops. End with a layer of chops on top. Leave about a tablespoon of the pork fat in the frying pan, add several tablespoons of flour, and pour in milk to make a thin gravy. (The amount of flour and milk depends, of course, on how large a casserole you're preparing.) Pour this gravy over the chops and potatoes and bake in the oven about an hour or until well done.

Served with a big green salad and dessert, this potato-pork casserole makes a very filling meal.

BELIEVING that people eat with their eyes, too, Mrs. Malone takes pleasure in arranging and serving food as attractively as possible. Color contrast in a meal adds greatly to its enjoyment, she believes. The way the following dessert comes to the table, for instance, is almost as important as its ingredients. The recipe is of Italian origin but was given to Mrs. Malone by Raymond T. Baker, a Nevadan who was Director of the Mint at one time and the father of glamour girl, Gloria Baker.

CLARET FRUIT

Peel and slice freestone peaches. Put them in a bowl, sugar them, and cover with dry California claret. Wash and stem strawberries, and put them in another bowl. Sugar and cover with claret, too. Let both fruits marinate separately in the refrigerator for several hours before serving.

When ready to serve, put the peaches in a large glass bowl. Draw them back to make a cavity in the center of the bowl, and fill it with the strawberries. Put the bowl on a tray, preferably a silver one, covered with any pretty green leaves from the garden. Mrs. Malone serves the fruit into sherbert glasses at the table and says a delectable accompaniment is fresh cocoanut cake.

FRUIT desserts are particularly delicious after a game dinner, Mrs. Malone believes. Out in Nevada, where there's "one square man to each square mile," game flourishes and hunting is a favorite sport. There are mule-tail deer in the mountains (big fellows weighing as much as 300 pounds), Chinese pheasants on the plains, and wild duck around the small man-made ponds. After a meal featuring one of this, Mrs. Malone often serves the claret fruit or the following:

FRUIT FILLED PINEAPPLE

Cut small pineapples in half. Cut out the fruit from the inside and arrange two halves end to end on each plate, with the stems on the outside. Slice the pineapple thin, cover with sugar, and leave in the refrigerator for several hours. Cover fresh strawberries with sugar and put in the refrigerator, too. (If necessary, frozen strawberries can be used very nicely in this dessert.) When ready to serve combine the two fruits in the pineapple halves (which should also be cold). Add a few thin slices of banana if desired, preferably the little finger bananas.

In Bridal Procession

St. John's Church in Forest Glen, Md., was the scene of the wedding yesterday of Miss Pauline Louise Clark and James Earl Helsel, jr., the Rev. Francis Lauriola officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paul Clark of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Helsel, sr., of Silver Spring, Md.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace over satin. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with stephanotis.

Miss Anne Speelman served as the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Arthur Q. Tool and Miss LaGretta Helsel, sister of the bridegroom.

Norman A. McKay served as best man and the ushers were John Malcolm Cobb 3rd, Ensign Theodore Glowacki, James Edwin McKeever and William B. Wilkinson, jr.

Following the reception at the Manor Country Club, the couple left for a Northern wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Silver Spring, Md.

Krise—Bradt

Miss Beth Ann Bradt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Bradt of Birmingham, Mich., became the bride of Edward Fisher Krise yesterday afternoon in the Christ Church Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., the Rev. Robert Dewitt officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gamer Krise of Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white marquisette gown with a rose point lace cap and finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride was attended by Miss Nancy Whitelaw and Miss Lewis Booth and Dick Saeli served as best man. The ushers were David Bradt, brother of the bride; Lee Kitchen and David Knight.

Following the reception, the couple left for a motor trip East. They will reside in Providence, R. I.

The bride attended Wheaton College in Norton, Mass., and her husband attended Brown University, where he was a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity.

MRS. LESTER RINDLER
. . . to live in Washington

Rindler—Braun

Miss Aline Braun, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Braun of Lodz, Poland, became the bride of Lester Rindler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rindler of Lowell, Mass., on July 18 in a ceremony performed at the home of the bridegroom's parents by Rabbi Joseph Warren.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Otto Braun of Washington. Mrs. Rita Klinger was matron of honor for her sister and Miss Mildred Rindler, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Emanuel Naparstek was best man.

Following a wedding trip to the White Mountains, the couple will reside in Washington where the bridegroom is employed in the Department of Agriculture.

The bride recently arrived from Switzerland where she attended schools in Zurich. Her husband is a graduate of Harvard University.

Sullivan—Bykko

Elizabeth K. Bykko and Lamont N. Sullivan were married at Keller Memorial Lutheran Church July 31, the Rev. Carl R. Simon officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Kisacky of Olyphant, Pa., and the widow of Alan Bykko. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chancellor Sullivan of Washington.

Given in marriage by her brother, Andrew F. Kisacky, the bride wore an aqua crepe dress and a corsage of yellow roses. Miss Ann Kisacky, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Laverne Sullivan was his brother's best man.

Schiaparelli Hoops Hemline

Paris, Aug. 4 (AP).—Schiaparelli has indulged her whimsy to the full in designing her fall fashion collection. The results: skirts with hooped hemlines, slim silhouettes and fancy buttons.

Newest Schiap craze is to hoop the hemlines of skirts. Some of them are very narrow, others extreme in width. She has dubbed them "cone skirts."

Schiaparelli pulls designing and accessory tricks out of the bag with the regularity of a conjurer. Fancy buttons—always a weakness with her—are a highlight of the show. They come in the shape of a small magnifying glass, are colored and often rimmed with gold or rhinestones.

She offers tremendous pleated bat sleeves that look like waterwings on sack-shaped coats. To evening wear she adds detachable long sleeves which end in a huge puff at the top. The same crimson velvet sleeves are used on innumerable strapless gowns. Scarves of lilac and petunia satin are ruffled high at the neck of suits and dresses and evening wear.

Schiap features sweater blouses of silk and wool jersey and taffeta. All of them have intricate swathing which finishes in necklines that reach to the ears, just like a high chocker. High heeled boots of bronze kid are worn with topcoats and day dresses. Ankle length bootees are trimmed with monkey fur and leopard.

Christian Dior showed his new fall fashions and surprised his audience by still plugging his "new look" silhouette, but raising hemlines to 14 inches from the ground. He exploited variations of his original "new look" theme, but showed no completely new silhouette.

Dior has two lines. The one that predominated throughout the collection had fullness jutting out straight from the waist. Skirts were stiffened from waistline to hem to make them really kick.

The other was the pencil line. This usually came with a pencil line skirt topped by a straight box jacket or, more often, by one of his famous flyaway jackets. These are short and lined with buckram to make them stand out roughly a foot away from the body at the back.

To Mark Independence Day

New Indian Ambassador Will Give First Party

By Marie McNair

THE NEW Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau will give their first party on Sunday, August 15, a celebration to honor India's first Independence Day.

On the day before, the ladies of the embassy staff will visit the various social service centers in Washington to learn ways and means of helping the lot of the less fortunate.

This is a part of the program to be dedicated to the memory of their leader, Gandhi, who never ceased to urge the women of his country to work in that direction.

The invitations to Independence Day celebration on Sunday read, "at half after 10 o'clock in the morning."

The following day, Pakistan independence will be celebrated at a late afternoon reception at the Pakistan Embassy with the Ambassador, M. A. H. Ispahani as host.

WHAT every school girl dreams of, actually happened to Margaret Thomure Morris, daughter of Mrs. Bernice Thomure Morris, who's returning from Europe on August 13 aboard the DeGrasse.

Miss Morris was chosen as one of 50 American college girls to spend a year in Paris under the Smith College Group plan of "Junior Year Abroad."

This year was the first time that "Junior Year Abroad" had been resumed since the war. The girls live at Reid Hall, former home of Mrs. Ogden Reid, who gave her house as a student center for American university women some years ago. It was formally reopened last year with ceremonies attended by Jefferson Caffrey, our Ambassador to France, and various officials of the French government and educational circles.

Recently Vogue's Paris edition devoted three pages to "Les Cinquantes Juniors de Paris," showing snapshots of the girls at work in various classes at the Sorbonne, L'Institut Catholique and the Ecole du Louvre. There's a corner of an atelier at Reid Hall pictured and what's of particular interest to Washington, a glimpse of the late Mme. Jusserand seated in her drawing room with a group of school girls at her feet.

It was to be Mme. Jusserand's last photograph, for this great lady, American-born wife of Jules Jusserand, for many years French Ambassador to the United States, died a fortnight ago at the age of 87.

Margaret Morris had opportunity to travel during her year in Europe. She spent some time in Switzerland, Belgium and Holland and was in Rome for Easter week, when she was granted an audience with the Pope. Last month she visited friends in England. A student at Bryn Mawr College, Miss Morris will return there in September for her senior year.

Meanwhile she hopes to see all her friends again at the party she and her mother will give Sunday afternoon, August 15, at their Georgetown home.

Poet and Daughter Visit C. A. Holsts

Mrs. Clara Seuel Schreiber and her daughter, Ruth, are spending the week in Washington, visiting Mrs. Schreiber's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Holst at their home on University pl.

Mrs. Scheiber is a poet and author of several short stories. Mrs. Holst is known professionally as Marie Seuel Holst, head of the Columbia School of Music.

Mrs. Schreiber was entertained at a reception Sunday given by Mrs. Holst at which time Mrs. Schreiber read from her recently published book of poems.

usually informal, girls like to own a pretty dress-up frock. The Essie O'Donnell Co., on Connecticut ave., has a couple of cute ones, in stiff taffeta, trimmed with lace. Colors are black and dull gray. Both are cut on early American lines, with colonial neckline, tight bodice and full, ankle-length skirts. One has lace around the hem, another has lace ruffles on the sleeves. But for later on in the season when the proms get under way, Miss O'Donnell shows a baby blue nylon taffeta with huge skirt and strapless bodice. An important accessory for this type of dress, the strapless bra, is also available at this shop. This garment is boned, not wired, and is 12 inches long in front. The back tapers away sharply to allow for low-backed gowns.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tribby and their daughter, Miss Margaret Anne Tribby, are vacationing at Atlantic City and are at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

Miss Luella Chase is at Hot Springs, Va., for a few days and is at The Homestead.

Miss Bresette to Be Catholic Delegate In Rio de Janeiro

En route to Brazil is Miss Linna E. Bresette, consultant, Committee on Social Action, National Council of Catholic Women. She will represent the organization at the first assembly of Inter-American Catholic Action Confederation convening Augst 22 in Rio de Janeiro.

In the U. S. delegation, headed by the Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, Bishop of Toledo, in addition to Miss Bresette of this city, are the Most Rev. William T. Molloy, Bishop of Covington, and the Rev. R. A. McGowan, director, Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Miss Bresette is field secretary of the Social Action Department, National Catholic Welfare Conference, and of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems. She is also one of five women in the United States on the correspondence committee with the International Labor Organization and just returned from the International Labor conference in San Francisco.

Before coming to the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Miss Bresette, a native Kansan, was secretary to the Kansas State Industrial Welfare Committee.

Women's City Club To Hear Review By Mrs. Nesbitt

Mrs. Henrietta Nesbitt, author of "White House Diary," will be the guest of honor of the Women's City Club tea on Saturday, August 14, when she will review her book and answer questions.

Mrs. Seymour Jesselsohn, chairman of the Club's "Meet the Author" programs will preside.

The program will be open to members of the club by 1948 membership cards, and the public may purchase tickets at the club office, 1733 Eye st. n.w.

Mrs. Sebastian Heads Alumnae

Mrs. Richard A. Sebastian was elected president of the Washington Chapter of the National Park College Alumnae Association for the year 1948-49.

Other officers are Mrs. Clyde E. Culp, first vice president; Mrs. Frederic John Ball, second vice president; Mrs. John S. Bartlett, recording secretary; Mrs. Clarence N. Chaffee, corresponding secretary; Mrs. LeRoy Sherman, treasurer, and Miss Caribelle Waters, assistant treasurer.

The committee chairmen are Mrs. Charles A. Camalier, publicity; Mrs. C. Robert Mathis, hospitality; Mrs. Thomas A. On the Town

ONE of the few dancing spots that's making its weekly gross is the Congo Room in the Carlton. Under ordinary conditions this wouldn't be remarkable, but today when the club owners and operators are seeing red ink in their dreams it's something to dance a jig to when a spot makes the grade. You can blame this delightful situation on almost anything you want to, but we prefer to believe that Basil Fomeen and his orchestra are playing the major role in this drama of the dashing dollar.

One of the prime factors in his success in the room is the fact that Basil really loves to play for the dancers. Nothing pleases him more than a whole floor full of dancers, because then he knows they like his music.

During a conversation with him the other night we managed to get a few anecdotes on his life. Basil born in Russia and was a cadet in the White army when the revolution came along. After a bit of dispute with the Bolshevik army, he decided that the climate in Greece was a much healthier one and left very suddenly. After wandering about Europe with a lot of other refugees for a time he decided the United States was the place for him . . .

Some time later Basil and the boys were playing a hotel date in New York. At that time the Russian-Finnish war was a thing of the present and feeling ran pretty high. Basil played a Russian number on his accordion and a drunk took it upon himself to ask if Basil were a citizen and if he liked that kind of music why was he here and so on into the night. Basil stopped the music, asked the man to his feet and told him, "My friend, you were born here by accident. I came here by choice."

THE Bali has evidently found that it pays to book top talent, because Johnny Moore and his Three Blazers are opening there tonight. They've been a unit for a little less than four years, but already they've hit the top. Johnny's brother Oscar, who made quite a name with the King Cole Trio, will be featured in the outfit.

Speaking of bands, Woody Herman and his orchestra will be at Chesapeake Beach Park tomorrow night.

The rash of beauty contests in and around the city should be about over now. WWDC will choose their Miss Washington next week as will Chesapeake Beach Park. The rest of the outlying towns already have their Miss Whatevershes and everyone's happy.

After our suggestion last week of an awning over the Roger Smith roof and the Shoreham terrace we got a letter from the Roger Smith telling us it was against the law to erect such a thing on a high building. What's with the Washington roof, eh?

The Mayflower lounge is about to get a new orchestra. Starting next Monday Michael Dunn and the boys will be making the music there.

Normandy Farm now has a bus stop that stops right at the gate. A lot of people aren't able to get out there. Miss Hendricks tells us that you can have a schedule by calling the farm.

You rehearsed late last night, Mr. Green. I saw lights on in the barn. Wasn't it after two?
Grandma, it was Mr. O'Malley, my Fairy Godfather. He and Gus, the Ghost, are in the play. And Gorgon wants to be, but—
There aren't any parts for an imaginary Pixie and a Ghost and a talking dog in my play, Barnaby. I know. I wrote it—
There aren't?
Mr. O'Malley! Mr. Green says you're not in the play. And he wrote it!
He wrote "Hamlet"? Nonsense!

Peggy Never Works for Nothing

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Lester Velie did an interview of Peggy Hopkins Joyce for True Confessions magazine, on the subject, "How I Get Men to Propose." . . . When the interview began Miss Joyce asked: "How much am I getting for this interview?" . . . "The magazine pays me, the writer, not you," replied Mrs. Velie. . . . "You go back and tell your editor," said Miss Joyce, "that Peggy Hopkins Joyce, never does things for nothing." . . . The interviewer reported this to her editor—who submited his offer, $25. . . . The wealthy Miss Joyce, of course, took it.

SOCIAL NOTE: The Maharajah of Baroda, who arrived in New York last week, will return to England in the next few days. He came here to examine some racehorses, because he is determined to have a better stable than the Aga Khan's. The maharajah spent the weekend at the country home of Harry Winston, the jeweler whose firm has acquired some of the best known gems in the world. The maharajah came dressed in proper attire—slacks, sport shirt and wearing a gold bracelet which had a pearl, a ruby, a diamond and an emerald, all worth a quarter of a million dollars.

BOOK DEPT.: Carl Van Doren's new book, "The Great Rehearsal," is dedicated to his four grandchildren. Van Doren's contract with his publisher has a clause which provides that if he should have more grandchildren, he has the right to enlarge the dedication in subsequent editions of his book.

NEWS DEPT.: Hans Gisevius, one of the top German secret service officials, has arrived in this country and is living near Nantucket. Gisevius is the author of the book, "To the Bitter End," and cooperated with the OSS and Allied agencies in Switzerland. . . . Johny Broderick, the Broadway detective whose story may be filmed by MGM, heard that Van Johnson would portray him. "No, no," said Broderick. "I'd never live it down."

MOVIES: Universal-International issued a release last week denying the reports that Sir Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet" would be censored in Boston. " 'Hamlet,' " read the announcement, "will be exhibited in the exact form in which it was completed by Laurence Olivier, producer and star of the film" . . . "Hamlet" was censored, but the cuts were made in England. Olivier knew at the time that portions of it would be cut by the British censors, although Shakespeare had written it. "I know it's censorable," said Olivier at the time, "but let's do it anyhow. It'll do the censors good to see it."

PHOTO DEPT.: Martin Munkaci, the photographer, took some models to Long Island for a series of pictures ordered by Kaleidoscope magazine. When the picture-taking was over, Munkaci took the models to the George Washington Inn on Long Island, for some drinks and to cool off after their long work in the hot sun . . . The proprietress refused to permit them to sit inside, because Munkaci wasn't wearing a jacket. "Do you realize, sir," she reminded him, "that at that very spot where you're standing, George Washington once sat?" . . . "Really, ma'am?" replied the cameraman. "But how do you know he didn't have his coat off?"

TRAVEL DEPT.: Warner Bros. is sending Harry Kurnitz, the producer-writer, to Europe for a special assignment. The business office representative called him and asked him what kind of letter of introduction he wanted . . . "Oh, just a very simple letter," Kurnitz suggested. "A letter through which I will meet somebody who will love me passionately, get currency at bargain rates and introduce me to art dealers with $8 Rouaults."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Sherman Billingsley, proprietor of the Stork Club, feels that his attention to his business isn't complete unless he knows all about his competitor's business. He therefore retains a staff of men who visit the rival places and who report on the number and quality of persons, etc., and collect the menus from each place so that he'll know of any price changes . . . A few nights ago Gene Cavellero of the Colony Restaurant, dined at the Stork Club. "A menu, please," he asked the waiter. And the waiter gave him a Colony Restaurant menu.

THE LADIES

No, dear, it's been a quiet day here . . . the baby ate one of her hairbows . . . Junior sat behind the sofa and mixed up one can of enamel and 5 pounds of flour . . . and the plaster in the bedroom ceiling fell down. Anything exciting happen at the office?

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Abroad at Home

In all except the smallest towns in the United States one will find foreign restaurants. Chinese food has become well known to the American people. In the larger cities many other national groups are represented by restaurants.

Why not plan an adventure in eating and, incidentally, in human relationships? The family can decide which restaurant they would like to visit. If there are none in your own town, make a point of planning to have a meal in a foreign restaurant the next time the family goes to the city.

Children usually will show real interest in the food and the people in one of these eating places. Building on this, one has a fine chance to get acquainted with the proprietor, some of the waiters or other patrons who may have originally come from the country whose food is being served. They will be glad to translate some of the words on the menu and tell the youngsters interesting things about the way people live abroad.

Here, then is a simple and effective way of beginning to help your children become world citizens, interested in their fellows from other countries. And what an important job this is today.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Martin Praises 80th Congress

By Drew Pearson

Here is the inside story as to what happened when the American, British and French envoys met with Premier Stalin in what may be one of the most historic conferences of modern diplomacy. At the conference, the Western powers proposed a general diplomatic conference to decide all the problems of Europe.

Gen. Smith

Prior to their meeting with Stalin, the three envoys had conferred with Molotov. In all, two aide-memoirs were presented to the Russian government—one to Molotov and a longer one to Stalin.

In the Molotov meeting, United States Ambassador Bedell Smith read the American aide-memoir, which contained the following three main points:

1. The Western powers are anxious to avoid any sterile diplomatic discussions.

2. The Western powers reaffirmed their right to remain in Berlin.

3. If the Berlin blockade is lifted, the Western powers would be willing to discuss the entire German problem. (Hitherto, the Western powers have not been willing to discuss the whole German problem, particularly the operation of Bizonia—the American-British-French part of Germany.)

After Ambassador Smith had read the memoir, French Ambassador M. Yves-Chetaigneau read a French paraphrase of the same document, while Frank Roberts, the British envoy, did the same in English.

The three representatives then told Foreign Minister Molotov that they considered the whole matter so important that they wished to discuss it with Marshal Stalin. This was arranged.

The next evening when the three Ambassadors visited Stalin, Ambassador Smith read a new aide-memoir on behalf of the three governments. This document included the first three points mentioned above but added the following point:

That Russia not only recognize the right of the Western powers to stay in Berlin, but that the Western powers be given the means of exercising this right.

The French Ambassador then made the point that if the interruption of the railroad to Berlin was because of Russian technical difficulties, the west would be glad to help, but if the interruption was due to political difficulties, then this matter should be thrown open to discussion immediately.

Premier Stalin asked the three envoys during the course of the conference what other subjects the Western powers would be willing to discuss. They replied—and this may be the most important subject of the entire Kremlin conference—that they believed the time was propitious to discuss a settlement of the entire European problem.

Stalin was rather noncommittal about this, but seemed at least sufficiently interested to ask what specific points should be on the agenda for such a conference.

The Ambassadors left the Kremlin with the understanding that the Russians might agree to lift the blockade if the Western powers submitted an agenda for later discussion which met with the approval of all sides. At present, the Western powers are working to draw up such an agenda.

House Republicans shoved the Democrats off the House floor the other day, locked the doors, and obediently rubber-stamped the decisions of their leaders at a cut-and-dried caucus.

Only a mild protest was raised by one Republican—Minnesota's Walter Judd, who wanted to know whether the leadership had intended to commit the Republicans without holding a conference. He referred to the fact that GOP chiefs had answered President Truman's message without talking it over with members of the party.

Speaker Joe Martin pacified Judd by saying that the statement drafted by the leaders was only a "proposed statement." If it wasn't adopted by the caucus, he promised, a new one would be drafted. Needless to say, it was adopted—unanimously.

Before the rubber stamp vote, Representative William Dawson of Utah urged his colleagues not to close the session "without making an honest, conscientious effort to do something about the high cost of living.

"We may not agree with the President on price control and rationing," Dawson declared, "but the people still expect us to do something about high prices."

Martin agreed that the committee should "tackle the problem" and give it more than superficial examination. Even Majority Leader Charlie Halleck admitted that "we should not be cavaliers and dismiss the session with a polite bow." However, he made it clear that he still favored an "early adjournment." This last remark was greeted with boisterous applause.

Note—Even this was a change of heart for Charlie, who had argued for an immediate adjournment until he was knocked back on his heels by Speaker Martin and Senator Taft.

Ohio's wealthy Mrs. Frances Bolton wanted to know whether the Republicans planned to issue a detailed statement answering Truman's message. Speaker Martin replied the job had already been done in a speech before the House by Illinois' Everett Dirksen. He also mentioned radio addresses by Taft and Halleck.

The Speaker urged the members, when returning to their districts, to refute President Truman's charge that the Eightieth Congress was the "second worst" in history.

"The Eightieth Congress has done a splendid job," he defended. "And it will become known as soon as the members get back into their districts and let the people know the true record."

Halleck said a reporter had called him from Indianapolis and asked whether it was true that the Democrats would be able to override the Republican leadership by getting enough Republicans to sign discharge petitions.

"I told him I didn't think there was anything to it," the majority leader added.

Overcome The Causes of Baldness—ACT NOW!

Trichologist

Washington, Aug. 6, 1948. You don't have to accept baldness. Scientists agree that if your scalp is properly treated when the first signs of approaching baldness appear, you can save your hair. You will surely become bald, however if you ignore increased hair fall, itching, dandruff, excessive dryness or oiliness. These are the first symptoms that your hair needs attention and when you notice them you should visit the Hair and Scalp Clinic for a Free, Private Examination. They will tell you exactly what can be done for your hair, how long it will take and what the reasonable cost will be. If you are accepted for treatment, modern scientific methods will eliminate the causes of your hair loss, your hair will thicken, your scalp will feel healthy and alive. The appearance of your hair will improve, and you will learn how to care for your hair—how to keep it healthy and strong. Come in today for your Free Examination. The Hair & Scalp Clinic, Inc., office is located at 606-609 Bond Bldg., S.W. Cor. 14th St. and New York Ave. N.W. Hours: 9:30 A. M. to 7:00 P. M. Saturdays, 9:30 to 4 P. M. Phone EXecutive 2832.

Our World Today

The world may still be having dreams . . . When you and I are gone . . . And every night of silver stars . . . May bring another dawn . . . But now it does not matter what . . . The future may reveal . . . For only what we do today . . . Is certain to be real . . . So let us not depend too much . . . On what tomorrow holds . . . While we may have the happiness . . . The present time unfolds . . . Why should we walk our separate paths . . . And live our lives alone . . . When we have hours on our hands . . . That we may call our own? . . . Let us be honest with ourselves . . . And make the most today . . . Of every moment we may share . . . Before it fades away.
